A Dance at Hollywood.

The delightful dance, at the residence of Mrs. W. S. Gay, on Wednesday of last week was partially reported in the True Democrat, but it struck me that a few notes additional might not come amiss, so that those who were present may have some data to con, when the affair has passed into the dim but dear background of memory.

The young ladies all looked sweet and pretty, but among the costumes may be noted that of Miss Sara Reed of dotted mull with lace and ribbon garnitures, and of Miss Belle Reed, who wore a combination of albatross and satin, with gauze and ribbon trimmings.

Miss Christian of New Orleans, pink mull and cream ribbons; Miss Nettie Doherty, pink mull with satin trimmings of the same shade; Miss Lucy Perkins, white mull and lace, scarlet ribbons; Miss Stockett, white organdy with pale blue ribbons; Miss Lizzie Morris, white organdy, white ribbons; Miss Lucy Ogden, white dimity, white ribbons and flowers; Miss Kilbourne of Clinton, figured mull trimmed with lace; Miss Christine Percy, white dotted swiss, scarlet ribbon; Miss Kate Woods, white mull, blue satin ribbon; Miss Isabelle Doherty, pink dimity and pink ribbons. Meeting of Stock-holders of West Feliciana-Building & Loan Association.

W. Leake resigned his position as President, since his other duties would prevent his holding the position in future.

A Fatal Accident.

On Tuesday, a negro named Scott Anderson, while clearing up some new ground for Mr. F. E. Harvey in the second ward, met with a fatal accident. He cut down a tree, the branches of which lodged in another tree, causing the trunk to bound off the stump and strike him in the stomach, inflicting internal injuries, which resulted in death in about two hours.

If you want shingles, see ad of same for sale at Freyhan's upper store.

As will be seen from notes in another column the West Feliciana Building and Loan Association comes to the front with its usual handsome showing of dividend earned for its stockholders, carrying to the contrary notwithstanding.

No enterprise here has ever done better service than this one has. The number of tasteful homes, which adorn our towns and which otherwise might not be in existence, bears eloquent testimony to the good the association has done in this respect alone, not to mention others, in which it has served to keep money in the channels of useful trade.

All honor to such an institution. We trust it will continue to flourish, as also the new association of a similar kind now making its first steps.

As pretty a bit of domesticity as the little reporter has taken note of in many a day was the surprise a certain husband and father of this town provided for his wife and children against their return from a visit of several days away from home.

He painted and put some pretty touches to the house, he bought some new furniture and house furnishings, and as a special treat for the little ones made a nice swing for them.

Any woman who reads this will know what a pleasant surprise it all was, and how the forethought and painstaking was not the least part of the pleasure given.

Meeting of Stock-holders of West Feliciana-Building & Loan Association.

The annual meeting of the stock holders of the Building and Loan Association was held Tuesday afternoon at the Court House, and the necessary business for the ensuing year was attended to. Judge W. W. Leake resigned his position as President, since his other duties would prevent his holding the position in future.

In commenting upon this, Judge J. L. Golsan spoke in highly eulogistic terms of the able manner in which Judge Leake had conducted the affairs of the association during the time he had held the presidency which was since its organization. A dividend of $7.30 per share was declared.

Messrs. J. L. Golsan, J. F. Irvine Sr., A. Teutsch, C. F. Howell, E. L. Newsham, W. H. Tenney, M. C. Levy, F. M. Mumford, and W. W. Leake Jr. were elected on the Board of Directors for the coming year.

The Board selected the following officers later: Judge Golsan, President; J. F. Irvine Sr., Vice President; R. M. Leake, Secretary; E. L. Newsham, Treasurer. Messrs. Semple and Percy were chosen attorneys, F. F. Converse, notary public. Messrs. F. H. Tenney, W. B. Smith and H. T. Laboye compose the Auditing Committee.
