PUSH THE GOOD ROADS QUESTION.

The good people along the road between Wilhelm and Pinckneyville, in the seventh and eighth wards of this parish, are very anxious to secure the establishment of rural free delivery of mail along this route. But at the outset, they are confronted with the obstacle of bad roads, and no proper provision for the improvement of them, and these facts, the government will not overlook.

Good roads are required as a sine qua non to rural free delivery. They must be.

The above mentioned section of country is probably the most cut-off in the parish from daily communication with the world, hence it is a logical point at which the rural free delivery system may begin.

And since no beginning can be made without good roads, we urge upon the Police Jury to take up the question of good roads in earnest, and no better beginning can be made than one which will introduce the blessings of R. F. D. into the parish.

Too long has this question been trifled with under an inadequate system. Too long has it been left to unpaid, unwilling service. Too long has it been left to unscientific overseers and ignorant labor. A secret of civil engineering, drainage, which takes the careful study of trained minds to discover, is left for the most part to men, who make no pretense of knowing anything on the subject, beyond what observation and experience, both negligently conned, have taught them.

The Governor has intimated that he intends giving the people the benefit of expert knowledge on this question of civil engineering, by sending out the trained men in the state's service, but this work, of necessity will proceed slowly with an extent of sixty parishes to cover. The Police Jurors need not merely await this assistance in a receptive spirit, but since they are men of intelligence and energy should go to work for results at once. And if rural free delivery, is really wanted, produce the good roads.

THE COOPER CASE.

The Cooper case at Nashville continues the choicest news of the daily press. The taking of testimony having been concluded, the speeches of the defense and of the prosecution have taken up the greater part of the week.

Capt. Fitzhugh opened for the state making a speech full of argument and strong with invective. He denounced Cooper as an embezzler and a railroad lobbyist, and said that the killing of Carmack was a deliberate assassination. His speech seemed to make the most noticeable effect on the jury, while that of the young attorney for the state, Gen. Garner, has aroused the greatest interest in general. His eloquence and the vigor and succinctness with which he presented the case commands admiration. We wish all of our readers could read the verbatim reports of all these speeches, or better, that we had the facilities for giving them out.

Gen. Meeks for the defense has gained by his speech less favorable comment, especially outside of Nashville, by two remarkable positions he took with regard to the case. The one was in effect that the unwritten law be applied to editors, who defamed public men, since the latter had no recourse in law against men without property. Waxing warmer he said that the streets of Nashville had before this "run red with the blood of men who improperly used other men's names in public prints." The gist of his statement all rests in the work "improperly," and yet Gen. Meeks himself admitted that the Carmack editorials did not justify the murder. Incidentally it shows how hard this lawyer for the defense was put to it to find arguments. He has not endeavored himself to the newspaper men by his unfortunate remark for he becomes a target for criticism from Maine to Alaska; and he did not help his case surely, for even the non-newspaper reading jury must see that if public men's names and reputations were not touched upon by the press that misrule would soon run riot.

But an even more remarkable statement was that made by Gen. Meeks when he said, "You are not trying common thieves or murderers now, gentlemen; you are trying men who come from as fine stock as ever human flesh was made of—the best people of the South." Thus he voices an idea, all too prevalent, that birth and position can protect a man from the punishment of his crimes; that aristocracy is immune from answering for its misdeeds. Such ideas continued through a long train of years brought about the fearful retributions of the French Revolution; it held up the head of Henry VIII of England in haughty insolence and pride of power but it laid low upon the block the head of Charles I. Even in republican America, wherever the feeling has obtained, it has caused many miscarriages of justice for which future generations may yet suffer. Law is perfect only when justice is blindfolded. Gen. Meeks does no service to the progress of humanity when he advances such an outworn and pernicious theory. It will not appeal to the jury, whom we judge are indifferent to the claims of long descent. Nor will it appeal to "the best blood of the South" which is "best" by clean living and high thought.

WHY THIS APATHY?

Dr. Bruns' letter, reproduced in another column from a daily paper, incidentally conveys a startling bit of information, and that is, that though the assassins in Tangipahoa, who carried their damnable hatred into the murder of unoffending women, is still at large, the Chief Executive of the State has offered no reward for their apprehension for this foul murder.

As we observed last week, it is not surprising, although hardly commendatory, that the press and people of Tangipahoa are not so active as would be desirable, in this matter. Their apathy can be understood at least. The people are paralyzed, are intimidated by an all-powerful fear, that action on their part, would be followed by an immediate and dire vengeance. The local press is silent. It does not see its opportunity, but is blinded by prudential motives. It is inglorious but true to average human nature.

But why should not the ordinary routine, when murder has been committed, be followed at the State House? If the answer be, that no reward offered would bring results, it is no reason for the stoppage, and is only another plea for extraordinary methods in ferreting the assassin, or assassins, and accomplishing their punishment.

As Dr. Bruns suggests, the junketings are over, let the powers that be set the machinery to work which will remove from our fair state's escutcheon, the bloody blot that Tangipahoa puts on it. Surely the whole state cannot be terrorized by a handful of murderers, unworthy to breathe the free air of Louisiana and whose souls are as craven as their methods of vengeance.

FOR AND AGAINST BUYING AT HOME.

The buy-at-home plea is so obvious in its advantages for the general good that it is amazing to have an intelligent person argue against it. It is so plain that the money spent at home has increased capacity for benefiting the community as many times as it is spent at home. The person with an atom of local pride will buy at home, even if the price be a little in excess of what may be asked elsewhere. How else is the home merchant to live?

The home merchants are of necessity public-spirited to a degree. They are asked to contribute to every charity, to every church or school enterprise, to every scheme for private or public good, and business policy makes them respond more or less liberally, according to their disposition or means. But they respond. A tax is assessed upon them and though they are privileged to decide the amount, something must be paid. And yet all too frequently, the persons, who have benefited by this liberality send their orders to Pears, Sawbuck & Co. or some such place, counting it as a privilege to pay expressage and to forfeit the non-examination of goods beforehand. Every one to his taste to be sure, but it does not say much for a man's judgment or home loyalty when he prefers to get the same goods from a distance because of a slight difference in price.

Not to be too sweeping in strictures upon away-from-home buying it may be well to note that there are circumstances, which justify the mail order:

1st. Of course when the article wanted cannot be procured at home in proper quality, or at all.

2nd. When there is too great a difference in price. In these days, a hundred per cent profit is obsolete, and the buyer should not be expected to pay it.

3rd. When there is an absence of reciprocity between merchant and buyer, that is, when the merchant does not give that support to the customer's business that he expects the customer to give him. To illustrate: the merchant, whose wife does not buy the milliner's hats, cannot expect the milliner to patronize him. The merchant who has his printing done away from home, or who fails to support the home paper, has no argument coming for a lack of reciprocity there.

The main fact is however, that the seller, whether printer or merchant, must keep his methods, and his stock up to date to meet modern requirements in order to keep trade at home. Otherwise it will pass like the rushing winds, he knows not whither.

GREEKS BEARING GIFTS.

A boom is now started to make the Hon. Jas. L. Ransdell candidate for governor next time. It seems to proceed from Baton Rouge, which in itself is a suspicious circumstance. Mr. Ransdell's splendid record in Congress as representative from the Fourth District, certainly entitles him to promotion when he wants it, but it should proceed along the line of his personal achievements. Of late he has been mentioned frequently as logically in line for the United States Senate, and it is there that his admirers wish to see him some day.

The present boom seems to be inspired by the fact that some one is exceedingly anxious to keep off all trespassers from the senatorship. Once governor, Mr. Ransdell might chance upon the same fate that retired the Hon. N. C. Blanchard to private life, when he had hoped to wear the toga of a senator. An executive officer must antagonize many, where a legislative one need not. We should counsel Mr. Ransdell to beware of the Greeks bearing gifts.

PUNISH THE MURDERERS.

Dr. Henry Dickson Bruns, of New Orleans, always in the lead in what tends to the best in human thought and action, has written a stirring communication to the daily press on the Tangipahoa matter. He says most forcefully:

"Now that Mardi Gras is over and Mr. Taft has passed from us into the Presidency, might it not be permissible to ask what the law officers, the Executive and the people of Louisiana intend to do about the murder of the man and the two women who were not long ago waylaid and shot to death in the neighboring parish of Tangipahoa?"

"According to our latest information the chief murderer, indicted by the dying words of his victim, was still at large and no extraordinary efforts were being made to capture him; the executive had offered no reward for his apprehension in the name of the State. Yet this was a deed that would have disgraced a community of Sioux. A being who could take from the arms of its mother an infant, and laying it by the side of the road, return and shoot her to death with a shotgun at close range, is unspeakable. Even the language of Shakespeare and Milton falls impotent. Are our people lauding prosperity, rejoicing in wealth and aggrandizement, absorbed by business and the pursuit of pleasure, about to pass on, demanding no vengeance for the deep damnation of their taking off?"

The court in Scotland that gave the children in cross divorce suits to the father, instead of the mother, illustrates the usual attitude to male and female virtue. How can a guilty father be more fitted for the care of the children than a guilty mother? True justice would have given them to neither.

At Washington, Taft came in like a lion. Roosevelt went out like a lamb.

Boston calls Dr. Edward Everett Hale the "chaperon of the Senate."

Pecan Planting.

J. M. St. Paul, of Port Hudson has sold to the Southern Nut Nursery Company, of Kansas City, Mo., his Holloway place which will be laid out in ten-acre lots and planted in pecan trees at once. This company has options on several other adjoining places, but may not purchase any more till next fall. It owns several pecan groves between here and Shreveport and near Lafayette, also one at Ocean Springs, Miss., and wants about 10,000 acres in this section. This new industry here will help to solve the boll weevil problem, which has paralyzed the farming interests. The Holloway place contains about 600 acres and it will be planted about fourteen trees to the acre. There is many a non-profitable piece of land that could be made valuable property by conversion into a pecan grove.
