

ONE KIDNEY GONE

After Doctors Said There Was No Hope.

Sylvanus O. Verrill, Milford, Me., writes: "Five years ago a bad injury paralyzed me and affected my kidneys. My back hurt me terribly, and the urine was badly disordered. Doctors said my right kidney was practically dead. They said I could never walk again. I read...

Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. One box made me stronger and freer from pain. I kept on using them and in three months was able to get out on crutches, and the kidneys were acting better. I improved rapidly, discarded the crutches and to the wonder of my friends was soon completely cured."

ALL OF ONE KIND.

"Have your poems been read by many people?" "Certainly—about twenty publishers that I know of."

Prof. Munyon has generously placed the Cold Cure with druggists throughout the United States and has authorized them to sell it for the small sum of 15 cts. a bottle. He says these pills contain no opium, morphine, cocaine or other harmful drugs, and he guarantees that they will relieve the head, throat and lungs almost immediately. He gives this guarantee with each bottle of his medicine: "If you buy my Cold Cure and it does not give perfect satisfaction, I will refund your money."

Why It's a Homely Beast. Augustus Thomas, the playwright, told in a recent speech of a hunting trip they had taken in the south. They were after coons and possums, but the only trail the dogs struck was one which made them put their tails between their legs and turn for home. "Just what does a polecat look like?" Thomas asked one of his negro guides. "A polecat, boss? Why, a polecat's somethin' like a kitten, only prettier. Yes, a polecat's a heap prettier'n a kitten, ain't it, Sam?" he said turning to another negro for corroboration. Sam did not seem so sure. He hesitated a moment. "Well," he replied, scratching his head, "it's always been mah contention dat handsome is as handsome doan."—Atlanta Journal.

The Tactful Sutor. A youth in Trenton, whose devotion to the young woman of his choice has encountered many obstacles during the long courtship, recently sought her out with this apparently encouraging statement: "I think it's all right now, Alice. I managed to get access to your father the other day, and while he wouldn't readily give his consent I rather imagine I've made some headway. He borrowed $40 of me. Surely he can't send me off much longer after that!" The young woman sighed. "Yes, I've heard about it," she said, "and I think you've made an awful mess of it. Father mentioned the $40 and remarked that I'd better give you up—you were too easy."—Harper's Weekly.

NO MEDICINE

A Change of Food Gave Relief. Many persons are learning that nerves are not the thing to rebuild worn out nerves, but proper food is required.

There is a certain element in the cereals, wheat, barley, etc., which is given there by nature for food to brain and nerve tissue. This is the phosphate of potash, of which Grape-Nuts contains a large proportion.

In making this food all the food elements in the two cereals, wheat and barley, are retained. That is why so many before nervous and run down people find in Grape-Nuts a true nerve and brain food.

It can say that Grape-Nuts food has done much for me as a nerve renewer," writes a Wis. bride.

A few years ago, before my marriage, I was a bookkeeper in a large office. I became so nervous toward the end of each week that it seemed I could give up my position, which I could not afford to do.

Whether purchased some Grape-Nuts I found it not only delicious but refreshing from day to day that I was improving until I finally realized I was nervous any more.

I have recommended it to friends as a brain and nerve food, never having found its equal. I owe much to Grape-Nuts as it saved me from a nervous collapse, and enabled me to resume my position."

MYSTERY STIRS GOTHAM POLICE

QUESTION IS: "WHO STABBED FAT PERSON NAMED BILL AT DEAD OF NIGHT."

"BILL'S" FRIEND WILD-EYED

Leads Mounted Men, Detective, Blue Coats and Dogs on Queer Chase in Rural District of the Bronx.

New York.—After all their trouble, the police of Kingsbridge have no murder to investigate. They have no mystery to solve, and they realize that things of the sensational brand rarely happen in the rural district of the Bronx. All they have is remorse and one very imaginative Yonkers newspaper man, who takes dreams too seriously and reality too lightly.

It all came about in this way. The reserve squad of the Kingsbridge station were selecting their garden seed from the catalogues, while the lieutenant in charge was telling his wild experience when he visited Broadway long ago. Suddenly there came a ring at the telephone—that of itself is exciting in Kingsbridge—and an agonized voice moaned:

"Mercy! Aid! Help!" And then, more weeping. "Succor!"

"What's wrong?" asked Lieut. Larkin.

"Oh, it's too awful to tell! I am a newspaper man from Yonkers, and I have just come from the Scottish Arms, in Van Corlandt park. They have stabbed my best friend to death there. Two women held him down, and then, when he was dead, dragged him from the room."

The man who was telephoning said that he was at Two Hundred and Forty-second street at the subway station and would give the police all details of the terrible crime if they would hurry there.

First came the mounted men, then the sleuths, then the regular or garden variety of dark blue policemen, and, trailing in the rear, came three of the police dogs. The squads were

"My Nice, Fat Friend Has Been Murdered."

In charge of Sergt. O'Leary and Detective Dwyer.

At the appointed place near the end of the subway they met the man who had telephoned. His tale was wild; so was his expression, and so were the mounted men, the detectives, the uniformed men, and the three dogs. It was awful. With Carey trailing in the rear the cavalcade started for the hostelry. When the scene of the crime was reached men were stationed at every possible exit and O'Leary went to the front door and demanded admission.

"In the name of the law, Commissioner Bingham and the Kingsbridge station, I demand entry," he roared. "Aw, go as far as yer like," came from the first floor.

"There has been a murder here," said O'Leary, as soon as one of the employes of the hotel appeared. "A murder, cold, dastardly, cowardly and also described with many other adjectives and adverbs, but that is not for now. Where is the victim, where are the murderers and when was it done?"

The employe denied that anything like this had happened. Everybody was quiet all night, except a man named Carey, he said, who came from Yonkers and who wanted a Welsh rarebit made with mince pie instead of toast, and who had claimed that submarine boats could be used as aeroplanes if fed properly and treated with loving kindness.

"No," sobbed Carey, who had come into the room, "it is not so. My friend has been murdered. My nice, fat friend named 'Bill.' They stabbed him, and now they've thrown his body out on the golf links. Call the coroner."

Most of the persons who were stopping at the hostelry had fled by this time. Some clambered into their automobiles, carrying their clothing with them, while others were satisfied to run for the subway. Then there was some more investigation and once more the bold cavalcade started back to the erswhile restful Kingsbridge station. First, the mounted men, then the detectives, then the uniformed man, with the three police dogs in the rear. Their home was gone, but Carey wasn't. He went, too.

INAPPROPRIATE.

"I am glad that Washington's birthday is a holiday; it gives me chance to lie in bed in the morning." "George wouldn't like to have you celebrate his birthday by lying."

Looking Forward. Mr. Wiggins, being in a frivolous mood, was giving a burlesque imitation of palmistry—pretending to read his wife's fortune in her palm. Six-year-old Ruth was listening with intense seriousness, but neither of them was noticing her.

"And, finally," he concluded, after the usual recitals about a dark man, a light man, a journey, and a large fortune, "you will live to a great age."

"Thank God!" broke in Ruth, clapping her hands ecstatically. "Then my children will have a grandmother!"

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and it is entirely closed. Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

A Black Eye for Home.

It is a coming fashion to hire a hall to entertain your friends, to give dinner parties in a hotel, to be married in a church, to be taken to a hospital when you are sick and to an undertaker's as soon as you die, and left there until the funeral. The tendency is to conduct all public occasions away from home. The home is getting a black eye.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

It Will Stay There

"In my family medicine chest no remedy is permitted to remain unless it proves beyond a doubt the best to be obtained for its particular purpose. For treating all manner of skin troubles, such as Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, etc., Hunt's Cure has held its place for many years. I have failed to find a surer remedy. It cures itching instantly." R. M. SWANN, Franklin, La.

His Pleasant Visit.

"Why are you whipping that child so?" asked a man of a German who was belaboring a boy of ten. "That's none of your business," replied the German. "Besides, I have a right to whip him. He is my sister's child, who is here for his pleasure."
