PARISH DIVISION RALLY AT ROANOKE.

Large Attendance and Frequent Applause From Jennings.—Roanoke Voters Little Interested.

The school yard at Roanoke presented the appearance of an up-to-date garage Monday night, when the ten to fifteen automobiles that brought the Jennings division boosters over to attend a parish division meeting, were drawn up in a semi-circle.

The meeting, which had been called by the divisionists for the ostensible purpose of editing (?) the Roanoke-ites, was what will doubtless be heralded in division papers as a "great success." There were probably a hundred or more people present, consisting of some eight or ten auto loads from Jennings, three auto loads from Welsh, a goodly sprinkling of ladies, a number of boys and a number of Roanoke voters, variously estimated to number from nine to eleven.

The meeting was opened by Rev. Jas. Ellis, who apologized for assuming the position that seemingly belonged to some of the local divisionists, by assuring the audience that they were there, but that they were bashful. Mr. Ellis, in his customary pleasing manner, entertained his audience by regaling them with reminiscences of the trials and struggles of the early pioneers, "some twenty odd years ago." Being a man of the cloth, it is doubtless permissible for Rev. Ellis to think that the "sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children," hence the fact that it was difficult to secure schools and bridges "some twenty odd years ago," calls for division for the parish now, although a subsequent speaker eloquently assured his hearers that "beautiful school houses were being built all over these broad prairies" and "in the piney woods." Mr. Ellis also assured his hearers that the proposed division was "a fair division and a square division." Rev. Ellis also denounced the police jury, and doubtless justly, for squandering $75,000 in the repair of the court house, a few years ago. It was difficult, however, for his audience to understand where the division of the parish would remedy this condition, as it is a well known fact that all the members of that body, but two, came from outside that earthly body of Gehenna, Lake Charles, and that a majority of them came from territory that would be comprised within the boundaries of the new parishes.

Following Rev. Ellis Hon. Judson Harris took the floor, and after a brief interlude, in which he recalled the fact that he used to drive his "bulls" into Roanoke from the "Grand Miras," launched out in his characteristic eloquent style, in a grand tirade of condemnation of everything pertaining to, or connected with Lake Charles. His remarks drew forth a ringing round of applause from the Jennings portion of the audience, and from the Welsh divisionist, who was there. Among other things he told his hearers, was, that should the division of the parish cause an increase in the rate of taxation, it would not amount to much, as it could only be increased four mills, which he solemnly asserted, would amount to $1.75 per annum on an average, for each farmer. But what he failed to tell them was that it would increase their taxes just $4.00 on every $1,000 of their assessment, or $20,000 on the reputed $5,000,000 assessment of Jeff Davis parish. He concluded his address by a pitiful tale of how dear, old Uncle Williams had to pay $400 to redeem a "forty" that the assessor had failed to put on his tax receipt, which omission Uncle Williams failed to notice when his receipt was returned to him. The impression here was strong, that had the parish seat been some thirty miles further east, Uncle Williams would have noted the omission and immediately had it corrected.

That tried and always parish divisionist, the Hon. H. K. Midkiff, next took the stand and evoked numerous and sundry rounds of applause from his Jennings friends, and the Welsh divisionist who was there, during a strong and fervent arraignment of the parish officials, the police jury, parish divisionists in general and those of Welsh in particular, who were denominated as selfish and unwise because they are obdurate and have thus far, refused to be herded into line by the Hon. H. K. Leaving out his vilification of parish officials, parish salaries and the cumbersome workings of the laws of the state, which of course, have nothing to do with parish division, Mr. Midkiff made no telling point in favor of division, it being commonly conceded that he made the weakest speech of the evening. Regarding the contention, which he asserted was being made, that the lines were not drawn satisfactorily to a good many people, he said: "WE drew those lines after WE had consulted everybody that WE could find, about them. He called forth a ringing round of applause from his Jennings contingent and the Welsh divisionist, when he asserted, with great candor, that he could prove the tax rate of LaSalle, the parish of the state, had not been increased since it was divided from Catahoula, but he neglected to mention in this connection, that the parish of Catahoula, before it was divided, was comparatively a small parish and ALREADY TAXED TO THE FULL CONSTITUTIONAL LIMIT, hence there was no possible chance for an increase in the rate, after the parish was divided.

Mayor Hathaway made the concluding speech, discussing the matter in a rational manner, from a strictly business point of view, and while we do not believe he changed a vote, yet he won the admiration of his audience by the fair manner in which he handled the subject.
