A SOUTHERN STORM.

Thirty Eight Lives Lost by the Tornado which Swept over Texas.

A Fort Worth dispatch dated August 23 says: From Indiana come the startling story yet reported the storm during the height of the storm the signal office was blown down, carrying with it Capt. I. A. Reed, signal officer, and Dr. H. Rosecrans, both of whom were lost. Fire broke out among the ruins which extended in blocks on both sides of the street, destroying thirteen houses, among which were D. S. Bryan's large dry goods store and Dr. Lewis's extensive drug establishment. Dr. Lewis was in the building at the time it took fire. He escaped being burned to death, but was subsequently drowned, his body being found the next day. So far as can be learned the following is a complete list of the lives of white people lost: Capt. I. A. Reed, signal officer; Dr. Crocker; Dr. H. Rosecrans, of Elgin, Ill., formerly a resident of Indiana; Mr. Hodges and two children of Dr. Hodges family of Indiana; Mrs. Crocker of Austin, visiting at Cedar Falls; two children of Mrs. Mary Shepard; Mrs. Crocker of Austin, visiting at Cedar Falls; Dr. David Lewis and a German, name unknown. Besides the above, the bodies of ten colored persons have been found; also the body of Dr. Crocker. Four miles of the track is washed away, rendering it impassable for trains to approach Indiana. There much destitution there among the poorer classes who have lost everything they possessed. The depth of the water is reported as great as it was during the great storm of 1875 when Indiana had nearly two hundred of her citizens, swept away. Friday the flood of water over the doomed town was so rapid that within two hours after the first apprehensions were felt every street was submerged many feet.

At San Antonio the loss to property is $300,000. At Floresville the loss is $100,000. Never before was the lower Texas coast visited by so terrible and destructive a storm. It extended for 200 miles inland, destroying thousands of houses and involving a pecuniary loss of many millions. Among the poorer classes great destitution must prevail, as but few were able to save any considerable portion of their small possessions from the general wreck. The entire crop of the present year is practically gone and a vast deal of suffering must ensue, especially among the negroes, most of whom are without means of any kind. It is feared that many more people were drowned at Indiana. The lower end of the peninsula was completely washed away. Many people are missing and nothing definite can be learned until the angry waters recede. The storm came in the shape of a hurricane. The waters of the Gulf rose up, and in three hours the whole peninsula, in which Indiana is situated was under ten feet of water. The total loss, as now known to Texas, from the Gulf storm, is: Human lives lost, thirty-eight; loss to crops, $1,000,000; loss to city and town property, $3,400,000; loss to shipping and harbor improvements, $900,000.

TWO HUNDRED LIVES.

Are Lost by the Burning of the Russian Passenger Steamer Vera.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg under date of Aug 21st says that a passenger steamer plying on the River Volga, at Saratoy in Russia, was burned to-day and that 200 lives were lost.

Advices from St. Petersburg say that the steamer which was burned was the Vera, belonging to the Samolet company and bound from Astrachan up the river. The fire was caused by the fall of a hand lamp in the saloon. The work was ignited and all efforts to quench the flames were unavailing. The passengers, all of whom were in bed at the time the fire broke out, rushed to the deck as soon as the alarm was given, and many of them panic-stricken sprang overboard. The captain ordered the vessel to be run ashore. This was done, but while the bow became embedded in the bank, the stern remained in deep water and the passengers were still obliged to swim ashore. Many persons lost their lives by being struck by tables and chairs which were thrown from the vessel to aid struggling swimmers in the water. Owing to the failure to stop the engine the water was churned up by the vessel's wheels, rendering more difficult the task of the rescuers who put out from shore to save the drowning passengers.

He Knew When to Stop.

A clergyman at Lebanon, Pa., when he began his sermon recently announced that as soon as three of the congregation fell asleep he would stop preaching. The afternoon was rather warm, and some heads became heavy. After awhile the preacher observed that three had gone to sleep, and stopped his sermon. This made somewhat of a stir in the audience and soon raised all drooping heads, when the sermon was continued. Boston Transcript.

DOOMED TO DEATH.

The Jury Does Its Duty, and Find the Anarchists Guilty.

Seven of Them Will Hang, Neebe Gets Fifteen Years in the Pen.

The Scene When the Verdict was Rendered. The Prisoners Silent and Gloomy.—Not Much Chance for a Reversal.

CHICAGO, Aug 26. There were four different versions this morning as to the verdict decided upon by the jury in the all-absorbing Anarchist trial. The one most generally accepted was that, but Neebe had been found guilty and given various kinds of punishment. It was rumored that Spies, Fisher, Fielden, Parson, Schwab and Ling had been found guilty of murder, and that Neebe and Engel would be given penitentiary sentences. There was no mention of ascertaining the real outcome, however, until the verdict was rendered at about 11 o'clock.

The twelve jurors remained in their rooms at the Revere House. Just across the street from the court-room, in the rear of the building, there was a large number of police to prevent any attempt to break in upon the privacy of the jury.

In front of the main entrance of the court-house were thirty police and three lines of police, and court bailiffs had been encountered before any one could approach the court-room. At 9 o'clock this morning there were twenty police in uniform in the court-room and several representatives of the press.

At 9:30 P. M. Parsons entered the court room to be rendered. The relatives of the prisoners could be allowed in the court-room, and the English version of the Arbeiter Zeitung, in the interest of revolution, obtained a wide-spread circulation for such a sheet, as each member of the Anarchist organizations was compelled to subscribe and pay for one copy of the paper.
