SYNOPSIS.

Challis Wrandall is found murdered in a road house near New York. Mrs. Wrandall is summoned from the city and identifies the body. A young woman who accompanied Wrandall to the inn and subsequentity disappeared, is suspected. Mrs. Wrandall starts back for New York in an auto during a blinding snow storm. On the way she meets a young woman in the road who proves to be the woman who killed Wrandall. Feeling that the girl had done her a service in ridding her of the man who though she loved him deeply had caused her great sorrow. Mrs. Wrandall determines to shield her and takes her to her own home. Mrs. Wrandall hears the story of Hetty Castleton's life, except that portion that relates to Wrandall. This and the story of the tragedy she icribids the girl ever to tell. She offers Hetty a home, friendshin and security from peril on account of the tragedy. Mrs. Sara Wrandall and Hetty attend the funeral of Challis Wrandall and Hetty return to New York after an absence of a year in. Europe. "You do know it, don't you?" he went on.

-God knows I don't want you to I never meant that you should-" she was saying, as if to herself.

"I suppose it's hopeless," he said dumbly, as her voice trailed off in a whisper.

'Yes, it is utterly hopeless," she said, and she was white to the lips "I-I sha'n't say anything more, said he. "Of course, I understand how it is. half-closed lips. Her eyes darkened with pain.

'No. I don't love you. Oh, I am so sorry to have given you—"
He was almost radiant. "Tell me

"But I know it now. You do love me. I could shout it to-" The miserable, whipped expression in her eyes checked this outburst. He was struck by it, even dismayed. "My dearest one, my love," he said, with infinite tenderness, "what is it? Tell me?"

He drew her to him. His arm about her shoulders. The final thrill

"Good God, Hetty, I-I can't do without you,' he whispered, shaken by his passion. "Nothing can come like this."

"Che sara, sara," she sighed, like the breath of the summer wind as it sings in the trees.

The minutes passed and neither spoke. His rapt gaze hung upon the glossy crown that pressed against him so gently. He could not see her eyes, but somehow he felt they were tightly shut, as if in pain.

"I love you, Hetty. Nothing can matter," he whispered at last. "Tell me what it is."

She lifted her head and gently with drew herself from his embrace. He did not oppose her, noting the serious, almost somber look in her eyes as she turned to regard him steadfastly, an unwavering integrity of purpose in their depths.

She had made up her mind to tell him a part of the truth. "Brandon, I am Hetty Glynn."

He started, not so much in surpris as at the abruptness with which she made the announcement.

"I have been sure of it, dear, from the heginning." he said quietly.

Then her tongue was loosed. The words rushed to her lips. "I was Hawkright's model for eix months. I posed for all those studies, and for the big canvas in the academy. was either that or starvation. Oh.

He drew her close and kissed her full on the trembling lips. She gasped between us. I must have you always and closed her eyes, lying like one in swoon. Soft, moaning sounds came from her lips. He could not help feeling a vast pity for her, she was so gentle, so miserably hurt by some thing he could not understand, but knew to be monumental in its power to oppress.

"Listen, dearest," he said, after a long silence; "I understand this much, at least: you can't talk about it now. Whatever it is, it hurts, and God knows I don't want to make it worse for you in this hour when I am so selfishly happy. Time will show us the way. It can't be insurmountable Love always triumphs. I only ask you to repeat those three little words, and I will be content. Say them." "I love you," she murmured.

"My dear." said Mrs. Redmond Wrandall, as she stood before Hetty's portrait at the end of the long living room, "I must say that Brandon has succeeded in catching that lovely little something that makes her so-what shall I say?-so mysterious? Is that what I want? The word is as elusive as the expression."

"Subtle is the word you want mother," said Vivian, standing beside Leslie, tall, slim and aristocratic, her hands behind her back, her manner one of absolute indifference. Vivian was more than handsome; she was striking.

"There isn't anything subtle about Hetty," said Sara, with a laugh, "She's quite ingenuous. Leslie was pulling at his mustache.

"Nonsense," cried the elder Mrs. Wrandall, lifting her lorgnette again. "Pure, honest, unmixed blood, that's what it is. There is birth in that girl's face."

"You're always talking about birth, turned away. "It's a good thing to have," said his Sara repressed the start of surprise. then went on with sardonic dismay She thought Hetty was alone.

"She will bring him in for luncheon I suppose," she said carelessly, although there was a slight contraction of the eyelids. "He is a privileged character.'

It was long past the luncheon hour when Hetty came in, flushed and warm. She was alone, and she had been walking rapidly. "Oh, I'm sorry to be so late," she apologized, darting a look of anxiety at Sara. "We grew careless with time. Am I shockingly late?" She was shaking hands with Mrs.

Redmond Wrandall as she spoke. Les lie and Vivian stood by, rigidly awaiting their turn. Neither appeared to be especially cordial.

"What is the passing of an hour, my dear," said the old lady, "to one who is young and can spare it?"

"I did not expect you-I mean to say, nothing was said about luncheon, was there, Sara?" She was in a pretty state of confusion.

"No," said Leslie, breaking in; "we butted in, that's all. How are you?" It—it is a tragedy," cried Hetty, meet-He clasped her hand and bent over it. She was regarding him with slightly dilated eyes. He misinterpreted the steady scrutiny. "Oh, it will all peel off in a day or two," he explained, going a shade redder.

'When did you return?" she asked. "I thought tomorrow was-

"Leslie never has any tomorrows Miss Castleton," explained Vivian "He always does tomorrow's work today. That's why he never has any troubles ahead of him."

What rot!" exclaimed Leslie. "Where is Mr. Booth?" inquired Sara. "Wouldn't he come in, Hetty?"

"I-I didn't think to ask him to stop for luncheon,' she replied, and then hurried off to her room to make herself presentable.

Hetty was in a state of nervous excitement during the luncheon. The encounter with Booth had not resulted at all as she had fancied it would. She had betrayed herself in a most discon certing manner, and now was more deeply involved than ever before. She been determined at the outset she had failed, and now he had a claim-an incontestable claim against her. She found it difficult to meet Sara's steady, questioning gaze. She's surely had time to think it over; how much better everything will be for her, and all that. She's no fool, Sara. And do you know what Vivian's doing this very instant over there in the corner? She's inviting her to spend a fortnight over at our place. If she comes—well, that means the engagement will be announced at once.

Sara did not marvel at his assur ance in the face of what had gone be fore. She knew him too well. In spite of the original rebuff, he was thor oughly satisfied in his own mind that Hetty Castleton would not be such a fool as to refuse him the second time "It is barely possible, Leslie," she said. "that she may consider Brandon Booth quite as good a catch as you, and infinitely better looking at the present moment."

"It's this beastly sunburn," he la mented, rubbing his nose gently, thinking first of his person. An instant later he was thinking of the other half of the declaration.
