"Dead Yesterday."

If we could only forget "dead yesterday" what renewed vigor we could bring to the tasks of to-day, but many are being pulled back by remembrances of the past. They really seem to take pleasure in letting their thoughts dwell on the things of yesterday; things that are gone and past recall; follies and mistakes that can never be righted and are only made worse by letting the mind dwell on them now. Our pass is irrevocable.

"The moving finger writes,
And having writ moves on,
Nor all your piety nor wit
Shall lure it back
To cancel half a line,
Nor all your tears
Wash out a word of it."

Live in the present and build dream for the future. There is today and to-morrow in which to redeem yesterday.

—THIBODAUX SENTINEL.

The St. Martinville Brass Band played some music on the streets Wednesday night, which was a good idea and the music was much appreciated.
