

ALL SAINTS DAY.

On Monday November 1st, will be All Saints day, the day that the people pay tribute to the dead, the day that all visit the cemetery to place a flower upon the grave of the dear ones who have gone to rest and offer a prayer for the repose of their souls.

It is a day on which no one will think of working, it is entirely devoted to the attention of the resting place of those who are no more.

Parish Fair Out Of Business.

The property of the St. Martin Parish Fair Association located at Breau Bridge will be sold at auction on Nov. 6th., by a committee having in charge the liquidation of the affair of the association.

The Parish Fair at Breau Bridge was successful for several years and the people seemed to take a great deal of interest in it, but what was the cause of its suspension and dissolution, we do not know, but we believe the passing of the fair will prove a loss to the parish, as the parish fair today is more popular than ever before, and now there is hardly a parish in the state without a parish fair, which is proving a great benefit to the agricultural and manufacturing interest and the general public.

PRACTICAL TRAINING IN THE SCHOOLS.

The idea of giving practical training in the schools is pretty well grounded in Louisiana, and is securing a firmer hold on the people each year. There are now about 150 schools in the State that teach sewing, cooking, and other household arts. In fifty-two of the high schools there agricultural departments in which the boys are taught the best-known farming methods. Many of the schools have manual training departments which give instruction in the various forms of mechanic arts.

According to State Superintendent Harris, every country school will soon be teaching the girls how to make a home, and the boys how to provide it. This training does not take the place of the older subjects in the curriculum but is given in addition.
