and buoyancy, and causes the pedestrian to feel almost as if treading on air, or walking on rubber tires.

The Home Charitable picnic, which took place on Saturday last on the beautiful grounds of the Genevieve Orphanage was in every respect a complete success; happy children and their elders flitted about over the mossy green, lovely ladies attended to the wants of the inner-man, song and merry laughter could be heard far away even from the festive scene and for some time to come the picnic will live in the recollection of our little ones mind and furnish many a pleasant topic for their hours of recreation.

The Shreveport Branch of the Louisiana Division of the National Council of Jewish Women has completed its organization and is ready for earnest work. The object of the organization has already been stated, the books selected for the use of the different circles, formed convenient for neighborhoods, are the Montifore bible, with Moulton's literary guide to the bible, and any other literary work relating to Jewish literature as the circle may wish to read; there being a mistake in the list of officials recorded in last week's issue, we give the correct names as follows: President, Mrs. Henry Florsheim; Vice-President, Mrs. Ben Holzman; Treasurer, Mrs. Herman Herold; Secretary, Miss Belle Bath; Board of Directors, Mesdames Carrie Leman, Louis Liebman, Sam Dreyfus, Carroll Cahn, Sarah J. Asher, Lazar Kahn and Miss Rosa Saenger; Committee on Religion, Mrs. Ida Florsheim, Chairman; Mesdames Louis Liebman and Seymour Cahn; Committee on Philanthropy, Mrs. Jules Dreyfus, Chairman, Mesdames. Henry Bodenheimer and Marx Bluestein; Leaders of Circles, Mesdames. Herman Zodiag, Paul Lowenthal and Louis Liebman.

The Fidelio Club met at the residence of Miss Carrie Levy on Tuesday last, the author to be discussed next being Moore, roll-call was replied to with quotations from that author, followed by the reading of his biography by Miss Carrie Levy, a humorous reading by Miss Louise J. Asher, an instrumental solo by our young visitor, Miss Annie Betts, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and several songs; an elegant repast, most temptingly served proved no small feature of the afternoon's enjoyment, the next meeting will take place two weeks hence at the home of Miss Fannie Moch. The Club will compliment the Misses Rachie and Sadie Bejach by tendering them an entertainment before their departure.

We regret exceedingly to have to miss hereafter the companionship of Mrs. Bejach and her interesting daughters, who are about to return to their former home, Memphis, Tenn., but knowing that by this removal one of their dearest wishes is to be fulfilled, and that the change is to their benefit, we wish them a most heartfelt, "God speed" and the realization of their highest expectations.

Quite a surprise was the announcement of the marriage of Miss Maude Bacon to Mr. Ned Poleman, which took place on Tuesday morning at the Episcopal church, Rev. Dr. Dalzell officiating with Mr. Will Dalzell as witness; we have known the fair bride since her earliest childhood, known her sweet disposition, her loving womanly ways, and think him a happy man, who has won her young heart's warm affection, which, we doubt not, he knows how to appreciate; we extend our best wishes for a long, happy life, and the Lord's choicest blessings upon their pilgrimage over this earth.

Mr. Joe Kahn has returned from a business trip to the Crescent City.

Miss Lallah Goldberg, who for sometime past has gladdened by her presence, the household of Mr. and Mrs. H. Florsheim departs for her home in New York on Sunday next; Miss Goldberg has had a most enjoyable visit and received much social attention and we trust to see her soon again; she will be accompanied by Mr. Henry Florsheim.

Through the energy and indefatigable perseverance of Capt. Simon Levy, Jr., ably assisted by some of our best citizens, Shreveport has added another monument of beauty to its many handsome buildings, the "Columbia Club." For Capt. Levy to will means success, any object undertaken by him, means accomplishment, we have had the pleasure of the gentleman's acquaintance since almost a quarter of a century, and never, in all those years have known him to fail, that word don't seem to exist in the Capt's. dictionary. Capt. Levy is proud of his achievement, and so are Shreveport's inhabitants, proud of the beautiful structure, that owes its existence to his fertile mind, proud to have such a man at the helm of such social organization. Wednesday night witnessed the crowning success of almost a year's labor, the "Inaugural reception of the Columbia," when its hospitable portals were thrown wide open to hundreds of admiring guests. The building is an imposing four-story structure, built in the latest style, and its furnishings are all that refined taste and ample means could suggest, and the most aristocratic society of the largest city of our Union, would not need blush to call it their own, their work; it will stand long after this generation has ceased to be, a living monument of man's energy, man's will-power and perseverance. Seen Wednesday night in the illumination of its myriads of lights, adorned in every available nook and corner with lovely palms and blooming plants, their fragrance and beauty surpassed only by the living bloom, youth, beauty and chivalry of the guests there assembled, our stately men and matrons, our noble sons and daughters, it was little less than a picture of paradise, and even the atmosphere, so threatening in the morning, donned its handsomest star-lit garment and looked smilingly upon the elegantly robed dames and their attendants, as they alighted at the handsome entrance, to take their places in the festive halls, those that failed to avail themselves of the privilege to be present, missed an enjoyment, that probably will not be witnessed again in Shreveport for many, many years to come. Mr. Leon I. Kahn, chairman of the reception committee, and his chosen lady, the lovely youngest daughter of Capt. Levy, Miss Fannie, welcomed the guests at the entrance, while the other gents and ladies constituting the committee were stationed at different parts of the beautiful hall, parlors, library, on the third and fourth floors adding their efforts to give pleasure to everyone; those assisting Mr. Kahn were: Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Randolph, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Holzman, Mr. and Mrs. H. Florsheim, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Rand, Mr. S. Hohenthal and Mrs. Ida Florsheim, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Lazar Kahn, Capt. Simon Levy and Miss Theresa Bodenheimer, Mr. and Mrs. Ike Barron, Mr. T. B. Chase and Miss Meta Jones, Mr. Joe Levy and Miss Rachie Bejach, Mr. Henry Cahn and Miss Clara
