The Saloon the Enemy of the Wage Worker.

John B. Lennon, treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, recently said:

"There are no reasons why the wage workers should be against the saloon that do not apply to every other class and condition of society. But there are some reasons which perhaps apply with a little greater force to the wage worker than to any one else.

"First among these reasons is the unquestioned fact—I have never seen it denied by any one—that money spent in the saloon is absolute waste. I have never heard in my life a man contend that expenditure for alcoholic beverages was not money wasted. It does not clothe the body; it does not stimulate the mind—at least not in the direction that means greater intelligence—it does not make the home more comfortable or enable the wage worker that spends money in the saloon to provide more of those things which are well worth having, either for himself or for his family.

"And as a waste bears more heavily upon the wage workers than any other class of people, this question is one of peculiar interest to them, as they can least afford to waste of what is at best but meagre earnings to enable them to live as they should live. And if a few cents is wasted each day more or less, it means a more material injury to the wage worker than it does to any one else.

"Second, the wage worker as a rule is handicapped in his life struggle, because of lack of opportunity for culture and education that is within the grasp of other classes of people. The drink habit to a considerable extent retards intellectual development, and what the wage workers need in order to make their contest for better condition successful is the highest possible development of their intelligence."

Notes and News of Interest

By M. S. W.

With the two great political parties of our country in convention shouting their battle cries till the welkin rings with defiance, and the G. O. P. almost dismembered by the jealousy of rival candidates, we may recall that so many crises were invented by the different British lords that in 1495 Parliament passed a special law forbidding these cries on the ground that they produced disorder, allowing but one battle cry, "St. George and the King."

The French had their "Cri de Guerre," the Scotch their slogans and the cry of "A Warwick A Warwick" decided the fate of Barnbury field.

It is held that the British national anthem is founded upon the watchword and countersign ordered through the royal navy by Henry VIII's lord admiral in 1545: "The watchwords in the night shall be thus 'God save King Henry,' the other shall answer 'And long to reign o'er us.'"

The Puritans went back to the Old Testament for their war cry, taking the cry of David, "To your tents O Israel."

Cromwell's watchword was "The Lord of Hosts."

The war cry of "Alban! Alban!" was used at the battle of Standard by the Celtic portion of the army of Scotland.

At the battle of Hastings the Saxons cried "Holy cross, God Almighty." The Normans cried "Notre Dame, Dieu et nous ad." (Our Lady and God help us).

The oldest battle cry known is the one mentioned in the book of Judges in the Bible: "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon" used by the Israelites when they rushed down upon the Midianites at night smashing earthen jars and waving torches.

Elks Opening.

The Elks home was formally opened on Tuesday last, beginning with a dance for the children in the afternoon, which was a delightful affair enjoyed by the young folks and many others interested in the success of the entertainment. At 8 o'clock in the evening the dedication ceremony presided over by the national exalted ruler and local exalted ruler, Mr. L. C. Butler, took place, this was followed by reception and dance. The Elks and their friends were there in full force and bore the jostling in the crowded halls and rooms with good nature. It was an occasion to be proud of, and an occasion notable for the sumptuous entertainment of hundreds of guests. The lower floor of this handsome building is for the use of the ladies who are fortunate enough to have Elks lineage in the family. The finishing of this room is done in rich mahogany, the hall, parlors and dining room are in shades of brown, green and cream, the portieres and furnishing matching in tone and color.

Vases of white peonies were very effective in the parlors. The Elks colors, purple and white, were artistically arranged from points of vantage. Palms adorned the halls and bouquets of white daisies were placed on the small tables at which teas were served.

The second floor has the distinction of being the club rooms. But it is to the third floor you must go to find the inner court, the lodge room, with the throne chairs. The floors are of polished maple, very tempting to the light step of the dancers. The fixtures throughout the building are of brass and crystal, very rich and beautiful in design.

The Elks hour of departing from a fraternal meeting is well known to be "eleven o'clock," and to give prominence to this magic hour, nearing twelve, the "turn of the night," the several electroliters that lighted the lodge room were ornamented with the face of a clock, the hour hand pointing to 11. The picture gallery was thronged throughout the evening with visitors interested in examining the pretty badges and pennants and portraits of high officials in Elksdom. Among those prominent whose picture was gladly greeted by many friends was Mr. F. G. Snyder, past exalted ruler, Mr. J. C. Able, another exalted ruler and great worker, might well have furnished the companion portrait. On every floor, delicious punch, teas and cakes were served. In the lodge room the appropriate device for table decoration was a grotto of rocks and ferns with a noble Elk head high, ears and antlers set, as if listening to the call of its mate.

Everything in the Elks' elegant home is in keeping, and its opening function was a brilliant and delightful social success.

On a Visit Home.

The friends of Mr. Maxey Leiber, and they are many, are delighted to welcome him home after an absence of four years, during which time he has cruised in foreign waters on the big battleship Georgia. The regular routine of ship duty was relieved by clerical work for the officer of the ship, which position Mr. Leiber filled with ability, being a good stenographer and capable correspondent. "Maxie" has not come to stay; he is only "on leave" and will in a few weeks return to his duties on board the Georgia and again enjoy "life on the ocean wave."

June.

And what is so rare as a drop of June? Then, if ever, come perfect days; Then heaven tries the earth if it be in tune, And over it softly her warm ear lays. —Lowell.

'Twas an evening of beauty; the air was perfume, The earth was all greenness, The tree were all bloom, And softly the delicate violet was heard, Like the murmur of love or the notes of a bird. —Whittier.

June falls asleep upon her bier of flowers; In vain are dewdrops sprinkled o'er her, In vain would fond winds fan her back to life, Her hours are numbered on the floral dial. —Lucy Larcom.

A June Wedding.

The great social event of the week was the marriage of Mr. Lowell C. Butler and Miss Mary Lou Doll, which was beautifully solemnized Tuesday morning at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Doll.

The guests were received by two pretty maidens, Mattie V. Butler and Eunice Doran, wearing dainty white frocks and white ribbons. Just within the big hall way stood members of the two families and close friends, Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Doll, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Doll, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doll, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Belcher, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Broghan, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Butler, Miss Winnie Davis Butler.

The beautiful floral adornment of the rooms was of roses, white roses, blush roses and pink roses, with feathery ferns making a rose bower for the lovely bride.

Little Maud Ellen and Mabel Lou Broghan, nieces of the bride, held the white ribbons that made the aisle for the bridal party. Master Howard Doll headed the line and carried a long stem white calla lily, a perfumed chalice for the wedding ring. Then came the attendants, Miss Emma Terry and Mr. Fletcher, and the maid of honor, Miss Loretta Doll. Standing under the wedding arch of roses the groom and his best man and brother, Dr. Willis Butler, awaited the coming of the bride, who was met by the maid of honor and together they walked to the trysting place, where the ceremony was beautifully and impressively solemnized by Rev. Father Bertels.

The bride was attired in an exquisite gown of hand made lace, worn over white satin en train. The richness and beauty of the lace is priceless, being the artistic needlework of the bride's sister, Mrs. Broghan. The bridal veil was fastened with a coronal of lilies of the valley forming a becoming coiffure of modish elegance.

Love lyrics were sung before the entrance of the bridal party by Miss Marie Norris, accompanied by Mrs. Pawnee Butler. The wedding march was played by Miss Lila Belcher. When the benediction was pronounced Mr. George Martin sang "O Promise Me."

"After congratulations the wedding party repaired to the dining room, where they assembled around the rose wreathed table with the big beautiful wedding cake as the centerpiece. Mr. Milton Elstner in his inimitable style toasted the bride and groom. A pretty conceit about bride's favors was carried out by drawing ribbons from the table. The ring was drawn by Miss Harmon, Miss Leona Leceraz the swastika, Miss Mercedes Richards the book, Mrs. Randolph the heart, Mrs. S. B. Hicks the pig, and many pretty trifles for others.

The bridal gifts were numerous and of great elegance and beauty. The Elks Club of which the groom is the high exalted ruler, sent a set of silver; the Commercial Bank a silver ice cream service; a silver set came from the bride's immediate family, Mr. and Mrs. Belcher, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Doll, Mr. John Doll and Miss Loretta Doll. But the gifts were too numerous to mention all. They will find a place for use and beauty in the home that will be opened on the return of Mr. and Mrs. Butler from their wedding journey. They left at noon for New York and will sail on the 29th for the continent, where they will spend the summer traveling and visiting historic places.

Congratulations and "bon voyage" to the happy pair.

Happy Young Visitors.

Miss Mattie Boisseau has welcome visitors at her home in Allendale in her lovely little niece, Beverly Boisseau and her fine young nephew, Robert Grant, of Texarkana. These visiting cousins, with the lovely Mrs. children, Josephine and Nettie, make a very happy and congenial quartette. Games on the lawn and drives with "Aunt Nettie" are daily pleasures for the young folks.

News.

News of the death of Mrs. Henry Chalaron of New Orleans was received during the week and brought sorrow to her relatives and friends in Shreveport, her former home.

Mrs. Chalaron is affectionately remembered as Mrs. Mackie Sewall. Her beauty, wit and vivacity made her attractive in society and the more prize characteristic of a sweet nature held her friends close to her.

On Mrs. Sewall's removal to New Orleans some years ago she became the wife of Mr. Henry Chalaron, a man of fine business qualities, kind and courteous gentleman. Only daughter, Miss Fannie Sewall, devoted her life to her mother, and is deeply bereaved by her death.

Mrs. Chalaron is the aunt of Dr. Randall Hunt of this city and the sister of Mrs. Thomas Hunt of New Orleans. Her girlhood was lived in Shreveport, and here the memory of her happy girlhood and the maturity of sweet womanhood linkers in the hearts of her friends of other days.

Personal Mention.

Miss Maysie Marsden left Tuesday for Marshall to attend the marriage of her cousin, Miss Linda Alford of Marshall and Mr. Albert Heckman of Chicago. The marriage was celebrated at high noon Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Heckman departing immediately for their home in Chicago.

Newsy Notes.

From the interesting and newsy "Homer notes" sent daily to the Journal we see that Homer is stirring in things worth while. The correspondent states that Trinity Episcopal church has received a handsome new organ, and that a special musical programme is being prepared by Prof. Darden Ford, choir-master, for divine service next Sunday, which will be conducted by the Rev. Mr. Vail of Natchitoches.

Attending L. S. U. Summer School.

Messrs. Carrie Belle Billingsley and Zadie Billingsley are attending the L. S. U. summer school. Miss Carrie Belle is taking the course in domestic science and drawing which position she filled satisfactorily last session in the Many public school, Miss Zadie, who taught acceptably at Gayle last session, is taking the regular public school course. Both are capable ambitious young teachers.

Benefit Concert.

A benefit concert for the purchase of a piano to be used in the public school at Belcher was given last week by Mrs. Rebecca Ellison Johnston, assisted by Miss Katherine Hill, Miss Lettie Williams and Miss Clara Bauer Johnston. The Shreveport ladies were the guests of Mrs. L. Pierce during their visit to Belcher. Miss Mary Bains is the very capable principal of the Belcher school, ably assisted by Miss Norton.

A Little Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Will North of Bossier are receiving congratulations on the coming of a lovely little daughter whose name is Amanda Kerr. Mrs. North is well remembered as Miss Annie Ringgold, a bright young teacher of the Caddo public schools until she was happily married to one of the most progressive and successful planters of Bossier Parish. Their home is the Corner plantation.

In Sorrow.

The family of Dr. W. L. Dickson are grievously bereaved at his death. A good man has gone from earth; the loving husband and father, the true friend, the good physician, who ministered to the needy with the same readiness that he did to others. Friends throughout the parish and in Bossier, his former home, came to pay the last tribute of love and respect to one who was ever dear and near to them.

The deepest sympathy is felt for the bereaved wife and children.

The Destruction of the Tonsils.

The New Orleans States: Those of us who have been stubborn enough to go on living without having a large part of our interior embellished upon the altar of modern surgery will be cheered by a recent paper written by Dr. John N. Mackenzie of Hopkins University.

Under the title "The Massacre of the Tonsil," Dr. Mackenzie makes a contribution to the Maryland Medical Journal that is as interesting to laymen as to professional men. He explains that it is "not the object to decay in the least degree the many excellent measures which modern ingenuity has devised for the surgical treatment of tonsil affections," because there are many conditions that call for a partial destruction or a more or less complete removal of the tonsils. He protests, however, against the ruthless destruction of the tonsils on all sorts of unproved theories as a surgical abuse that is so enduring in its evil results that it is becoming a great menace to the public good.

It is to be hoped that in his next paper Dr. Mackenzie will have something to say on behalf of the unfortunate appendix, against which a war of extermination is declared by every young "sawbones" who gets a diploma from a medical college. In the meantime, however, people who still have tonsils can go about the streets without being harassed by the sneaking feeling that they are concealing property that belongs to the specialist, and the day may come when a man will not be ashamed to admit that he has a tape worm.

THIRD LEG AMPUTATED

Virginia Recovering from Operation Necessary by Deformity.

Richmond, Va., June 20.—Hunter Fitzgerald, a three-legged boy of Blackstone, Va., who attained more than a local reputation by reason of his deformity, has had the third member amputated and is recovering from the operation in a hospital here. Fitzgerald's third leg was smaller than the two upon which he walked, and since his birth 17 years ago he had suffered little inconvenience by it.
