FOSTER'S BULLETIN

FORECAST OF STORMS TO CROSS THE CONTINENT

A SEVERE COLD WAVE

Winter Storms Will Prevail in the Three Vicinities Heretofore Located—Variable Temperature

(Copyrighted 1913 by W. F. Foster.)
Washington, D. C., Dec. 6.—Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross the continent Dec. 4 to 8, warm wave 3 to 7, cool wave 6 to 10. This will be preceded by a severe cold wave following which the tendency of temperatures will be upward till after the middle of December. About and following December 6 the storm forces will be greater than usual and severe winter storms will prevail, particularly in the three vicinities heretofore located as the foci or centers around which the most severe storms of December would gather.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about Dec. 9; cross Pacific slope by close of 10, great central valleys 11 to 13, eastern sections 14. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 9, great central valleys 11, eastern sections 13. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 12, great central valleys 14, eastern sections 16.

Higher average temperatures will be the feature of this disturbance. The intensities of its weather features will be about or a little above normal and its rainfall generally below normal, but specifically above in certain localities. The rains and snows in December will principally fall in the three vicinities of the December storm foci which we have located near Newfoundland, in northern Mexico and including our southwestern states and the Gulf of California and near Vancouver, B. C., and to a less degree along the lines connecting these three foci. Not much precipitation elsewhere.

These foci cover large sections and the storms of December will principally affect eastern provinces of Canada and the New England States, all of the West Indies, Central America, northern portions of South America, Mexico and our southwestern States, British Columbia, the northern Rockies, Oregon, Washington and northern California. The central section lies near Omaha and that part of the country will be comparatively free from bad storms and will have less than usual precipitation.

Third disturbance of December will reach Pacific coast about 15, cross Pacific slope by close of 16, great central valleys 17 to 19, eastern sections 20. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 15, great central valleys 17, eastern sections 19. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about Dec. 18, great central valleys 20, eastern sections 22.

This will bring a great high temperature wave which will be followed by a cold wave and thus causing one of those weather events in which the temperatures go to great extremes. These events are to be regarded with great concern. They cause more sickness than all other things combined. Such weather is the principal cause of pneumonia and tuberculosis. Every one should be prepared to change clothing to suit those extreme and sudden temperatures, and just previous to them in the fall and winter all baths should be avoided except for hands, face and feet. Look out for that warm wave and the sudden cold wave following.

The harvesting time is now progressing southward in South America and we have good reason to exult over our success in forecasting their crop weather. To foreknow South American crop weather is of great importance to millers, dealers, consumers and producers in this country. The South American crops have much to do with prices on this continent. The big speculators have vainly bought up the news columns of newspapers and tried to make believe that the South American crops were ruined by drouth. We knew that could not be true because our new moons have been down there at the right time to make good crop weather.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Alf Smith, a White Man, Is Jailed in Default of Bond.

There was jailed yesterday a white man, Alf Smith, who is held on the charge of having had carnal knowledge of a female under the age of consent, the limit being fixed by law, being 18 years.

The victim is said to have been in Arcadia recently for an examination as a teacher. Her name is purposely withheld from publication by Mrs. Rickerson, assistant matron at the Union Depot, whose suspicion was aroused by their apparent intimacy. The pair arrived in Shreveport Monday or Tuesday and secured a room at a lodging house not far distant from the depot and parted Thursday. It was then that Mrs. Rickerson, having secured the confidence of the victim, was made aware of the knowledge she possessed. The victim's home is either in the Parish of Claiborne or Webster.

According to the statement obtained, Smith is married and is the father of several children. Smith was arrested in Minden on a telegram from the lady matron, when the necessary affidavit was executed and enforced. On reaching Shreveport yesterday Smith was jailed in default of giving bond fixed at $1,000.

THE PEDDLERS LICENSE

Is Explained and Made Clear by City Commissioner Rives.

In its issue of Tuesday the Caucasian criticized the City Council on the reported increase of peddlers license from $10 to $50.

This increase was reported in the Shreveport Times and was accepted as being authoritative. Besides, the license as published in the Journal was not fully understood by the public, and therefore, following the Caucasian's disapproval of the reported increase, there has been made clear what is the purport of the license as published in the Journal of Thursday, from which is reproduced the explanation by City Commissioner Rives, which is satisfactory, and relieves the public of the apprehension entertained in driving the peddlers in question from the streets through the reported increase of the license from $10 to $50.

"City Commissioner C. G. Rives, further explaining the peddlers license ordinance amendment, issued the following statement Thursday:

"There is still doubt among some of our best people as to just what the city license for peddlers of poultry, eggs, vegetables and fruit shall pay, beginning Jan. 1, 1914. It will be as follows: Foot, $10; one-horse wagon $15; two-horse wagon $20; on horseback $12, and peddlers selling their own produce will not be required to pay anything. "The above is what we intended the license to be for the present year and the ordinance as introduced is simply to correct an error. "This explanation is made again at the request of some of our people."

Secretary McAdoo's Report.

In his report to Congress Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has discussed the subject of currency legislation, reviewing the activities in his department related to it. He speaks of an unrest in business circles following the beginning of the special session of Congress in April, to a "propaganda of pessimism which, designedly or not, produced a condition of extreme nervousness and tension," and points to his announcement in June that the treasury was ready to issue $500,000,000 of emergency currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland act to prevent restriction of credits and to ease any situation.

It is Secretary McAdoo who frustrated the panic which had been programmed to be effective soon after President Wilson had been inaugurated. He simply notified the schemers that he would use if necessary all the money in the treasury of the United States to defeat them and to protect the people. And there was no panic.

THANKSGIVING

At this season of the year when we are all supposed to give thanks, we ponder upon the blessings for which we should be most thankful. The greatest blessing that we enjoy is the friendship and patronage of a host of the best people on earth. Without this favor from these loyal friends our plant of over one hundred thousand square feet of floor space, with the most costly and up-to-date machines, which represent the work of a lifetime, would be next to worthless. It is superfluous to say that we are grateful for their friendship and patronage. We seriously and conscientiously try to express our appreciation by giving them the very best goods that it is possible to produce and by selling to them at a price that is as low as is consistent with high quality, and by treating them fairly in every way.
