BATON ROUGE, DEC. 27, 1896.

MASONIC.—There will be a meeting of the brethren of the St. James Masonic Lodge No. 47, this Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to install newly elected officers of the Lodge for the coming year. The installation will take place privately at the Hall, cor. of Main & Church sts.

De Soto Lodge No. 7 (O. F. E.) on Thursday, the 26th inst., following officers were elected for the coming six months: T. FAY, N. G., J. MAYLOR, V. G., W. A. BRYAN, Sec'y. A. MATTA, Treas. I. N. COLLINS, P. A., Sec'y. J. HAN FORD, Com. A. MATTA, HENRY JON A. BRADFORD, Representatives to G. I. A. S. HERRON, O. BARBER.

BARBER & BENJAMIN.—Among the other articles, just in store at the warehouse of R. & B. It will be seen, they have Cherry Valley Butter, Sugar Cured Hams, Spiced Piggs Feet, in small packs, Star Candles, Winchester Soap, etc.

AMERICAN LIFE.—American life is but the agony of a fever. There is no repose for us. We push on in head excitement through the crowds, through the hot place and dust of the highway, without turning for a moment to look upon ourselves in the quiet and shade of the by-ways of life. We have but one object in our rapid journey, and that is to get to the start of our fellow-travellers. On political equality, offering to all a share of the prizes of life, and thus encouraging every one to try his speed in the race, is doubt a spur to the characteristic energy of Americans. Our institutions, however, are not responsible for the price we choose to pay for them. There is no reason that we know of why a republican should have no her aim in life but to get richer than his neighbor; but there are a thousand good reasons, if we value health and happiness, why we should pursue other and higher objects. When the pursuit of wealth is the great purpose of life in so rapidly progressive a state of material prosperity exists in our commercial communities, requires exclusive devotion and the highest strain of the faculties to succeed, fair competence, however is easily reached and if we had learned to care for better things, we would not strive for more.

WHOSE ALE IS IT?—"Will you give me a glass of ale, please?" asked a rather seelish looking person, with an old but well brushed coat and almost too shiny a hat. It was produced by the bar-tender, coming over the edge of the tumbler. "Thank ye," said the recipient, as he placed it to his lips. Having finished it right off at a swallow, he smacked his lips, and said, "That is very fine ale—very, whose is it?" "It's Harman's ale," said the bar-tender. "Well, give me one more glass," it was done, and holding it up to the light, and looking through it, the connoisseur said, "Pon my word, it is superb ale—superb indeed as Madaris. I must have some more of that! Give me a mug of it." The mug was furnished; but before putting it to his lips, the imbiber said, "Whose ale did you say this was?" Harman's replied the bar-tender. The mug was exhausted, and also the vocabulary of praise; and it only remained for the appreciating gentleman to say, as he wiped his mouth and went towards the door, "Harman's ale is it! I know Harman very well, I shall see him soon, and settle with him for the two glasses and a mug of his incomparable brew."

AFRICAN ABSOLUTION.—The King of Dahomy is one of the most absolute tyrants in the world; and being regarded as a demigod by his own subjects, his actions are never questioned. No person ever approaches him, even his favorite chiefs without prostrating themselves at full length on the ground, and covering their faces and heads with earth. It is a grave offence to suppose that the King eats, drinks, sleeps or performs any of the ordinary functions of nature. His meals are always taken in a secret place, and any man that has the misfortune or temerity to cast his eyes upon him in the act is put to death. If the King drinks in public, which is done on some extraordinary occasions, his person is concealed by having a curtain held up before him, during which time the people prostrate themselves, and afterwards shout and cheer at the very top of their voices.

During Doniphan's march from El Paso to Chihuahua, the black servants of the different officers of the regiment formed themselves into a company. There were twelve of them, of which number eleven were officers and one high private. Jo., servant to Lieut. D., was elected Captain. He was the blackest of the crowd, and sported a large black feather with a small black hat—also a large sabre with an intensely bright brass hilt—while some sabre was eternally getting in the way of the intricate windings of his bow legs. With Jo. for Captain they were a formidable body, and to hear them talk, they would work wonders!—During the battle of Sacramento, however, the company were not to be seen, but after the action was over, they were espied breaking out from the wagon and joining in the pursuit.—That evening one of our officers attacked Jo. about his company.

"Well, Jo. I hear your men were hid behind the wagons, during the fight?" "Lieutenant, I'm berry sorry to say I am do true! I done everything—I call'd on the vaterman ob the men—I injecked dem by all day hold most dead in dia world an do nex, but it was no go; dey would git on do wrong side ob do wagons." "But what did you do there?" "I stood dar gittin' cooler, and do firing kept gettin' hotter, and at last do cannon balls cum so ornighly fast, I thought the best ting dis nigra could do, war to go behind the wagons harsel!"—Rev. H. H.
