Asthma and Consumption.

DR. SHERMAN'S ALL-HEALING BALSAM, as a remedy for Asthma, Consumption, Bronchitis, Coughs, Colds, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, and all Diseases of the Lungs, Throat, Liver and Stomach, stands unexcelled.

Read what it has done! More Home Testimony in Favor of DR. SHERMAN'S ALL-HEALING BALSAM. NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 25, 1848.

To Dr. Sherman's Agent, 151 Chartres street: Dear Sir—Having derived great benefit from the use of Dr. Sherman's Balsam, you will permit me to address a few lines to you. I have been troubled for a long time with a bad cough, together with raising blood, to such a degree that I could scarcely talk without coughing. A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Sherman's Balsam, and in less than two weeks after its use, I find myself perfectly well, and able to attend to my business. I have recommended it to several of my friends, and in all cases with success.

Yours, dear sir, with respect, J. E. BRISCOE, Clerk for T. L. White, 53 Canal st. Residence, 24 Maria street, New Orleans STILL THEY COME!

Having accidentally become acquainted with the virtues of Dr. Sherman's All-Healing Balsam, I have no hesitation in declaring that its use in my family warrants the assurance that it possesses all the gifted qualities attributed to it. In one case, where the medicine was taken on my recommendation, the effect was almost magical, as the Cough and Expectoration of mucus matter bore a strong analogy to a decided consumptive tendency. I believe a more general knowledge of this medicine is only required to place it among the best curatives extant, for Consumption, Dyspepsia and other diseases arising from a disorganized state of the stomach and affections of the lungs.

JAMES REESE, 13 Camp st., New Orleans; MOBILE, December 7th, 1847.

Thereby certify, that for 18 months I had been lingering under Consumption, and expected every day to be my last. At length I procured a bottle of Sherman's Balsam, and it raised me as it were from the grave. It cured me, and I am now able to attend to my daily avocation of a boatman.

Louis Cass and Louis Philippe. The following delectable correspondence between two great men, has just come to light in England, through the accidental discovery of some of the fallen monarch's papers.

CLAREMONT, London, Sept. 1st., 1848. Dear General:— Comment va la santé? You ave not forgot la belle France! You see I am in England. I shall get some rest, nevaire. Mes subjects have say to me—good bye! or, tout la meme chose, I tell them good bye! We parted, and that coquin, Lamartine, he would ride the steed which ave throw me; mais, entre nous, Lamartine is un fou! "Un fou en fait d'autres," is the proverb; or, anglais—one fool makes many.—Like le Bucephale d,Alexandre—France on its back must ave a rider like that Mameluke, Napoleon. I was ver good to my peoples. Cavaignac is uneasy in the saddle—his turn will come next—certainment. Mais, pardonnez moi!

I write now, to assure you of my grande regard. "One good turn deserves another" is the English saying. Now, I ave nothing to do and I design when you are President des Etats Unis, to proceed over and write a book—"LE PRESIDENT ET LA REPUBLIQUE DE LOUIS CASS!" You know I am grateful. You did all possible to keep me in power. I shall do the same for you. The gamins of Paris did not value my government—you did. Since I left, they have been cutting one another's throats. Tres bien! Let them. You and me could manage them, and if you had stick by me—if you had continue to praise my government, your grande example might ave saved me. What you adured, the gamins thought cou'd not be ver bad; but when you left—sacre le Diable, it was the signal for "kick down a row" "E Pluribus unum"—we are one, as your republican motto say. I believe dat is the English of it, but I ave forgot my Latin, though not my English since you and me was teach school so many years ago.—If it is not right you make it right si'il vous plais.

Vic treats me ver cooly—avec ver grande sang froid. She thinks I did not hold the reins tight sufficient, and my steed running off, Vic say it started the hunters of Tipperary and Ballyingary: "But 'Divil burn me if I care!' I ave learned so much Irish since I ave been here.

N'importe. I ave give you the news. Now about one—two oder affair. I must ave a school again, as the Paris rogues will not give me my money. I am ver able to teach how to make grande possessions.—Could you get me the Black Cockade establishment in Delaware? Guizot begs to be remembered to you Poor man! He ave not look ver well since we tree used to sit ove the Burgundy at the Tuilleries. The queen sends her regards. Attendez vous, one oder matter si'il vous plais. As you was ver good to procure a bottle of water from la riviere Jordan for the christen of our royal grandson, the queen would be ver glad you could give her one oder bottle from the harbour at Chicago, to suit De Joinville, who intends to be one grande republican.

Vive le President Louis Cass! Avec sentiments de grande consideration. Votre ami. LOUIS PHILIPPE.

Au General Cass, Ex-Minister, &c., Des Etats Unis.

In retirement, at Detroit, Sept. 15, 1848. SIR: There is so much confusion in your enquiries under date of the 1st inst., that circumstances will prevent my answering your letter in full.

I have the honor to be your ob't serv't, LOUIS CASS.

Monsieur Louis Philippe, Claremont, London, Eng.

Poetry, but not Fiction. The annexed poetical version of the grounds upon which General Taylor is "pledged" to sustain the people of these United States, as President—which we copy from the Steuben Courier—is from the pen of a veteran of 1776, a man who fought for the liberties of his country "in the time that tried men's souls," and who now, in his eighty-sixth year, is writing for his country, as earnestly as before he fought for it.

This veteran Whig, now so zealous for Taylor, was one of a party which on the 2d of October, '79, surprised a portion of the Queen's Rangers, commanded by Lieut. Col. Simcoe, in which this officer was wounded and taken prisoner.

Our whig poet, then only a boy of 16 years old, was the first to rush upon and disarm Simcoe, whose sword he retained as a trophy until it was demanded by the Governor.

It is quite natural that such a Whig should now be the ardent friend of Taylor. Here is the poetry:

[From the Steuben Courier.] GENERAL TAYLOR'S POSITION, As a Candidate for the Presidential Chair—extracted from his published letters, and private communications to his friends.

I say "party Pledges," Are mere ent'ring wedges, To open a passage to power! The man who will take them, Will readily break them, For a still larger Bribe—in an hour!

I've no private ends To gratify friends— No foes that I wish to chastise! I'll draw every rule From the Washington School. With the aid of the Good and the Wise,

A Whig I shall be, But from "Party" free, (Which oft has disgraced that high station!) I'll seek for what's best For North, South and West, And act for the good of the Nation.

If Congress shall draw A well defined Law I never will lightly reject it! The National voice, By the men of their choice, Shall always, by me, be respected.

It ne'er shall be said That my Veto outweigh'd Three fifths of a wise Legislation! I'll always be found On my own proper ground— That is—the Executive station.

Though bred up to Arms, Amidst war's alarms— I wish that all wars might cease; If Congress declare it, I'll fearlessly share it— And fight, till I Conquer a Peace!

These are my positions— And if these conditions Shall meet with your own approbation, I'm at your command, And with heart and hand Will faithfully serve "the whole Nation."

ZACHARY TAYLOR. Army of Observation, Aug. 1847.

The Mobile Herald thus hits off the cunning proposition made by the Loco-focos of Jefferson:

The Cass and Butler club of the parish of Jefferson, La., advertises for a loan of one thousand dollars, payable, with legal interest, when Taylor and Fillmore shall have been elected.—Smart boys, these! We know plenty of people who will take similar loans, payable on the election of Cass and Butler; as indeed, the election of any man for any office anywhere in any part of the world. To make the risk less to capitalists, we'll take a loan of the sort payable after the sun shall rise on Christmas, 1849."

Hon. David Wilmot, while openly advocating the election of Van Buren and Adams, was nominated for Congress by the Cass and Butler Convention of his District, by a vote of two to one. This result argues Cass rather weak in the knees in Northern Pennsylvania.

It is proposed to include marriage under the games of chance, made penal under the gambling law.

A lie may stagger through a brief existence, as a blackguard edges his way by dint of bullying through a crowd, but the truth, however absurd for a time, will triumph and live forever.

Men look up when flat on their backs—any change is for the best.
