THE HOUSEHOLD.

Stoneware Cooking Utensils—Artistic Red Draping—A Sea Bath at Home.

A "bachelor housekeeper" who is endeavoring to bring about the renaissance of kitchen pottery presents its claims after the following convincing fashion in Table Talk:

A kitchen in which pottery appears in plenitude for the various kinds of its capable service waits an odor of purity and fascinates with a sense of cleanliness. In numerous kinds of cookery it has no equal, and in some there are dishes one might better abandon than attempt to prepare and serve without its aid. Many who are using iron, tin and copper to the exclusion of earthenware do so in ignorance of the perfect adaptability and service of the stone pot.

For the simple forms of boiling, broiling and frying the metals are more convenient, but for baking, pot roasting, braising, stewing and fricasseeing it is far superior to all its rivals. Cooking in the stone pot simplifies the preparation of all the dishes that come under these heads, relieves the cook from close attention and constant stirring to defeat the imperfect action of applied heat and performs its work with unflinching accuracy and without accident. It gives its best and almost exclusive service in the baking oven and under close cover. Few avail themselves of its reliable and easy use, and being, as I declare myself, an experimenting and progressive housekeeper, I wish to recommend it to others who are anxious to learn and know for themselves of its unequalled merits. Any cook will with one demonstration understand perfectly its superior action under the influence of heat, and for such the details of preparation will be necessary in but one case. I shall therefore confine myself to a single recipe and formula.

Procure a large earthen pot with a closely fitting cover of the same material. This may be found in almost any house furnishing store. Make the first attempt with the ordinary and familiar fricasse of disjointed chicken. After preparing sprinkle each piece with salt and pepper and dredge with a little flour. Lay the pieces singly in the pot, which has been rubbed with a little butter or melted suet. Pour in a pint or more of hot water, just enough to appear toward the surface of the chicken. Dredge the top again with flour. Put on the cover and set in the oven. The oven should be very hot for the first 15 minutes, after which the heat should be reduced to the lowest degree that will keep the pot simmering.

At the outset it may be necessary to examine the pot occasionally to ascertain oneself with the action of the oven's heat, but when this is once ascertained the pot may be left undisturbed from the beginning till the dish is about done. Young chickens will require only two hours; older ones, three to four, more water and the slowest possible heat to bring them out tender.

The chicken will be cooked to a point that the meat will easily come from the bone and yet may be served in its perfect form as when laid in the pot. It will have all the richness of a roast without the dryness that quite forbids the open oven baking of a chicken. It will have all the juiciness of the fricasse without any of the wateriness which one wishes to avoid.

In the Bedroom.

The illustration shows a brass bedstead of good design, draped in a simple but artistic fashion. The spread and bolster cover are of pongee silk in a plain color, with a box plaiting of the same on the edge of the valance. The canopy drapery is of figured silk, in festoons and cascade at the front and longer drapery caught back at the sides. This forms a rich combination appropriate to expensive furnishings. Quite as artistic and pretty an effect, however, may be obtained by the use of less expensive materials. A very dainty effect is obtained by the use of point d'esprit over a colored lining or dotted muslin used in the same way. In colored goods there are the liberty muslins in delicate figures, which cost from 15 to 40 cents a yard, according to quality, and the chintzes, which are very dainty and attractive. The iron bedsteads which are enameled in white may be had for $2 up, but a good bedstead will cost about $5. The brass bedsteads cost from $12 to $15 and upward.—Housekeeper.

OFFICE OF ASSESSOR,
Thibodaux, June 9th, 1900.

All persons liable to taxation upon any description of property, whether real estate or movables, are hereby notified that in conformity to Section 22, of Act No. 170 of 1888, that the listing of property for assessment made by the undersigned Assessor for the current year, 1900, in and for the parish of Lafourche, has been completed, and that said list will be exposed at my office, at the Courthouse, for a term of twenty days, for inspection and correction, beginning June 11 to 30, inclusive.

All tax-payers are earnestly invited to avail themselves of the opportunity afforded to make known their objections to any assessment, and to test the correctness thereof in the manner provided by law.

E. A. DELAUNE,
Parish Assessor, Parish of Lafourche.

STATE TAX SALES.

Of Immovable Property.

The State of Louisiana vs. Delinquent Tax Debtors, Parish of Lafourche.

BY VIRTUE OF THE AUTHORITY vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the State of Louisiana, I will sell at the principal front door of the Court House in which the Civil District Court of said parish is held, in the parish of Lafourche, within the legal hours for Judicial Sales, beginning at 11 o'clock a. m., on and continuing on each succeeding day until said sales are completed all immovable property on which taxes are now due to the State of Louisiana and parish of Lafourche, to enforce collection of Taxes assessed in the year 1899. Together with interest thereon from the 31 day of December 1899 at the rate of 2 per cent per month until paid, and all costs.

The number of said delinquent Tax payers, the amount of Taxes due by each on the assessment of said year and the immovable property assessed to each to be offered for sale are as follows:

Why Grandpa Let the Chimney Wait.
How Far Off the Lightning Struck—A Sand Castle.

A new chimney was going to be built on grandpa's house, and the boys were in a state of high glee. They were always delighted when there was something going on, and this would be "something like." Wayne said.

"Mike's coming to mix the mortar, you know, and carry it up the ladder to the mason. He'll tell us stories, you know. Mike's such fun!"

"Yes," echoed Casper. "I guess he is. You spell Mike's kind of fun with a big F and a big U and a big N! I say, Wayne, let's go get his hod and play we're hod carriers, with mud for mortar, you know. Come on!"

"Come on!" shouted Wayne. "It's leaning up against the barn. Mike left it there last Friday when he brought his things over."

On the way to the barn they saw grandpa harnessing Old Molly to the big blue cart. That meant a beautiful, jolly ride down the orchard, and the boys forgot all about playing hod carrier. They climbed in and jolted away.

"Mike's coming tomorrow, you know, grandpa, and the mason," said Casper, his voice quiver quivering over the job. "Oh, good!" cried Wayne, but dear old grandpa shook his white head.

"Not tomorrow, boys. You'll have to wait a bit longer. I sent word to Mr. Koet and Mike last night that they needn't come for a few weeks longer. I'd decided to put the chimney off."

"Oh, grandpa!"

Both clear little voices were shrill with disappointment. Both little brown faces fell. Grandpa did not speak again at once. He was guiding Old Molly carefully out at the side of the cart road. The bus saw a little, crippled butterfly fluttering along in the wheel track. That was why grandpa turned out. Grandpa's big heart had room enough in it for every little thing. Back in the track again, farther on, grandpa spoke.

"I'll show you why we must wait for the new chimney when we get home, boys," he said cheerily. "You'll agree with me, I know. It's a case of necessity."

"But I don't see what made you decide to grandpa," Wayne said soberly. Grandpa's eyes twinkled under their shaggy brows.

"A little bird told me to," he said, and that was all they found out until they got home. Then the same little bird told them. Grandpa took them up into the attic, with a great air of mystery. The old chimney had been partly taken away, half way down to the attic floor. Grandpa tiptoed up to it and lifted them, one at a time, to peer into it.

"Sh!" he whispered softly. "Look sharp."

And there on a little nest of mud, lined with thistle down and straws, that rested lightly on the projecting bricks, sat the little bird. She blinked her bright eyes at the kind faces peering down, as if to say:

"Oh, dear, no! I'm not afraid of you. Isn't this a beautiful nest! So exclusive and safe! There are four little speckly, freckly eggs under me. When I've hatched them and brought up my babies in the way well educated little chimney swallows should go, then you can build your chimney, you know."

So that was why grandpa's new chimney had to wait—Annie H. Donnell in Outlook.

Save Surplus Fruit.

Millions of dollars' worth of fruit annually goes to waste because in its marketable state, when green, the market is glutted, says The Agricultural Epitomist. Evaporation would save much of this loss. Even drying in the sun is better than to permit the fruit to rot. The only trouble is that fruit honestly evaporated on the farm is compelled to compete with sulphured evaporated fruit, which, though it may be inferior in quality, sells at the highest price because it is of brighter color. Some of the finest appearing evaporated fruit will likely be found to have been treated either before or after evaporation with the fumes of sulphur, and it is probable that sulphur will be used as long as the eye of the consumer demands first to be satisfied. But with evaporators as cheap as they now are, and with a good market for such fruits during a large portion of the year, there can be no excuse for sacrificing any portion of the fruit crop.

What the Best Breeders Do.

Breeders generally would make money by observing the practice of those who command the highest prices for their cattle, says the Tennessee Farmer. In the first place, they do everything in their power to keep up the standard of their herds. In the next place, they never cheapen their cattle by offering cheap bargains. As a rule, with very rare exceptions, the very best bargain offered in any sale is the highest priced animal. There are numbers of herds in the United States from which, in order to buy a choice calf, bull or heifer, one has to engage it before it is dropped. These are the herds whose practice it behooves the beginner to study.

Good For the Scrub Cow.

The best cow owned by the Kansas Agricultural college gave last year 9,113 pounds of milk and 384.7 pounds of butter fat. The value of the product for the year was $73.17. For the best month last year she gave 977 pounds of milk and 37.12 pounds of butter fat. For the first month of this year her milk yield was 1,250.1 pounds, which made 44.89 pounds of butter fat. This is an improvement over her best month last year of 273 pounds of milk and 7.77 pounds of butter fat, or 21 per cent.

Yachts and People.

They were both splendid little, they were ready for the run, but they couldn't show their mettle. Ere the setting of the sun, they were fit for demonstrations. To astonish high and low, and to increase the joy of nations, and the wind refused to blow.

Oh, you'll find a man who started in the race of human life with the purpose honest, hearty. To be noted in the article. He was satisfied, he was ready. For each chance that fate might show, he was upright, true and steady, but the wind refused to blow.
