Editorial Notes.

—We call the attention of our readers to the names of persons who have paid their parish Licenses for the year 1875, handed to us by the Parish Treasurer.

—Call at S. T. Grisamore's and get the Best thing out, the "improved Fire Kindler," the most convenient and economical thing of the kind ever invented. Make twenty fires at a cost of one cent.

—This has been decidedly a rainy week; much apprehension is felt that the continued rains and damp weather will injure the seed cane not yet planted.

It is not thought that the frost of last week did any serious injury to the young crops.

—It all happened at the bridge the other night and the struggle was desperate and earnest. On one side was the strong arm of the law, on the other was two or three burly sons of Africa, between them was an irate individual that seriously protested against going to both ends of the bridge at once.

Finally the whistle brought aid and the majesty of the law triumphed, the Deputy sheriff was happy, the burly sons were sad, and the irate individual dreamed sweetly of green pastures and delicious flowers in the Parish jail.

—We have neglected previously to refer our friends and the public, to the advertisement, in our paper, that the fine, fast steamer St. John, F. Bergeron, Master; J. C. Bergeron, Clerk; heretofore running from New Orleans to Donaldsonville has extended her trips down the bayou to Thibodaux, and will leave New Orleans every Wednesday at 12 M. and Saturday at 5 P. M. For prompt attention to business, and polite attention to passengers, we commend the St. John and her officers. Mr. G. W. Squires is the agent at Thibodaux.

FUNERAL—Last Tuesday was a sad day in Thibodaux. A Good and honest, a conscientious citizen had passed away and it was well that his fellow citizens should mourn. When a man dies and leaves behind him a name and reputation for sterling integrity, untarnished honor, and inflexible honesty it is meet that those who survive him should pay his memory the tribute due to his worth by following his remains to their last resting place and mingling their tears with those to whom he was so near and dear.

Such a tribute was given to the good and genial Sylvere Navarre on last Tuesday.

One of the founders of Thibodaux Fire Company No. 1 of which he was an exempt member after years of faithful service his remains were taken in charge by the members of that company, assisted by the members of the Société de Bienfaisance et d'Assistance Mutuelle de Thibodaux, of which he also was a member.

The Fire Department were out in full uniform and preceded by St. Joseph Band playing solemn music, his remains were followed to St. Joseph Cemetery by almost the entire population of the town, all the stores and places of business being closed in obedience to the proclamation of the mayor.

After the usual ceremonies in the Church all that was mortal of the deceased was laid away in its final resting place amid the wails of his orphan children, family and friends.

There stood around that tomb men who had known the deceased from his infancy, who had played with him in childhood and with him had met the stern realities of life. There were those who had stood by his side in those dark days at Vicksburg when it was surrounded by a cordon of fire who had sat with him around the fires of the gay bivouac, there were those who knew him around the bedside of his quiet home and who met him daily in his occupation; but there were none who did not feel that a true and honest man had gone, who were not ready to drop a tear to the memory of him whose spirit had sorrowfully passed "over the rivers of death to repose under the shadow of trees of Eternity."

The New Election Bill.

The infamous bill originating in the Senate last week to regulate elections in this State is, it possible worse than the old one. It retains in full force the Returning Board, consisting of five members, three of whom are to be appointed by the Governor and two to be elected by the House. All know the character of such men as will be the three controlling appointers, we suppose that those who did the work of infamy so well in 1874 will receive the recognition their labors entitled them to, and again occupy the proud position of makers of the government of a State called in mockery sovereign. It must be a source of gratification to every true Louisianian to note the expressions of indignation and warning uttered by the conservative minority in the Senate. The N. O. Republican exclaims in holy horror at these expressions, and affects to regard them as evidence of an intention on the part of Democrats to carry the approach ing election by violence; they indulge no such thing; but they do emphatically denote the roared determination of the white men of Louisiana to enforce a just and accurate count of their ballots in November next. These utterances are not bluster, either in words or intent: they are the grave warnings of men who realize what they say, and who, deprecating the possible fearful results of the desperate policy, are yet prepared to meet in fitting manner the emergency, and only ask those in whose power it lies to avert commotion, to do simple justice to all, and avert the calamities. We believe that the moving spirits in the iniquitous design of the Senate, are but the faithful henchmen of the controllers of the National Republican Party, and desire outrages in Louisiana to inflame the minds of Northerners during the presidential election. Let them remember the fate of the engineer "hoist by his own petard," and beware lest they point the moral of the tale of their own iniquity.

Sylvere Navarre.

The people of Thibodaux were on Monday morning last, February 7th, shocked to learn that one of their most estimable and beloved citizens had committed suicide, by cutting his throat in his bed.

The cause of the mental depression which resulted so unfortunately is not known. The deceased was a native of this vicinity and always maintained the greatest respect and esteem of all with whom he came in contact. Urbane and dignified in his daily intercourse with his fellow citizens none knew him but to admire his genial traits and social characteristics.

As a business man he was prompt and correct in all transactions, as an accountant he had no superior, as a merchant he retained the confidence and admiration of his customers. Mr. Navarre has all his life resided in Thibodaux and ever took a cordial interest in anything connected to its prosperity and welfare, and served at one time as incorporation clerk, and at various periods was selected as one of the trustees of the town, a position he occupied at his decease.

Previous to the war he was one of the firm of Richard & Co, one of the most extensive business houses in this place and distinguished for the ability and fairness with which it was managed.

He served as a Lieutenant in the 26th infantry during the war, and won the distinction of a good soldier, a faithful and conscientious officer.

On his return, being ruined in fortune, he has followed such pursuits as he could obtain, earning a support for his himself and family.

He was for several years Parish Treasurer, the numerous duties of which he filled with credit to himself and satisfaction to the Parochial authorities.

He was one of the original founders of Thibodaux Fire Co. No 1 and was an exempt member of said company at the period of his decease.

In an unfortunate moment, yielding to depression and mental anxiety, the depth of which no one knows or ever will know, he has passed away from the realities of this world, to that bonnie whence no traveller returns, leaving behind him a memory, sadness and sorrow for those who knew and loved him.

He is dead and the green grass grows over his remains, but the souls of the valley cover no form, more noble, more honest, more upright and faithful than is found in the tomb that contains the dust of Sylvere Navarre.

A true and consistent member of the Catholic Church, his freed spirit now enjoys the reward of the good and true in that letter world to which all mankind is journeying.

S. T. G. The first duty on T—Don't forget to cross it.

Communicated.

MR. EDITOR:—A recent view of the rice mill at Lafourche Crossing caused regret that Thibodaux had none, nor any manufacturing establishment worth special mention. except a foundry and a saw mill—the former being erected previous to our late "unpleasantness."

Situated as the town is within range of breezes, fresh from the Gulf of Mexico—sixty miles distant—which modify the heat of Summer and cold of Winter, it can safely challenge comparison as a healthy locality with any other town or city in the South; excepting, perhaps, a few in mountain districts or on the sea board. Surrounded by or near the centre of a large extent of productive soil of a varied superior nature; on the bank of one of the largest and most beautiful bayous in the State, the waters of which flow from a great "inland sea" thirty odd miles remote by water, on which large steamboats "walk the water like a thing of life" most of the year; near a railroad (three and a half miles) that has daily trains to the Crescent City, fifty odd miles distant; a branch thereof (sixteen miles in length) to Houma, the seat of the Parish of Terrebonne; a canal three quarters of a mile long, connecting the Lafourche with Bayou Terrebonne, upon which small steamers have run its entire length from Thibodaux to the Gulf mentioned; in brief, all advantages of nature and art actually needed for a highly flourishing town or city.

The advantages of Thibodaux for a manufacturing town or city are not excelled by any point or place—with possibly a few exceptions—in the valleys of the Ohio or Mississippi, or east of those rivers in the Southern States.

This is not to be construed in favor of cotton or woolen factories, or any other kind that employs females by scores or hundreds, keeping them away for months at a time from the happy or charming influences and restraints of home or the family circle.

Our first efforts at labor were in a woolen factory at Wheeling, Va., where were also two cotton factories that daily and nightly (part of the year) let out, regardless of weather, like chickens from a well fitted coop, the operatives (children and adults) of both sexes, speckled or spotted grotesquely with oil or grease and cotton or wool.

Whilst travelling in the Eastern States in 1852 and 1853, the mills at Lawrence, Lowell, and other places were visited: their management was about the same as at Wheeling. Since the time mentioned, evils of the factory system respecting the employment of children has been somewhat modified by law. Gallantly or ardour to the fair sex is wanting in any country where females are allowed, urged, or compelled to desert home altars for employment or support.

It is true want of capital or monies renders it difficult to manufacture extensively, but if one-half or more of the monies now invested in various articles or ways yielding little, if any profit, together with that in traffic which it "must be admitted is doing immensely more evil than good, (ardent spirits, tobacco, etc), and to which might be added a moiety, at least, of the amount spent at the nod of folly or fashion, was used to give regular employment to mechanics—reliable supports for towns or cities—making agricultural implements and machinery of various kind, and the public roads in order, a good beginning would be made, which in due time would invite capital for manufacturing extensively.

"God made the country, But man (the mechanic) makes the town"

Should the example set at the Crossing and Morgan City be not followed ere long, is there not danger that the advantages of having the public buildings—now a leading attraction—lost by removal or in some other way diminished, especially if the public roads that diverge from the town are not much improved?

This can be done at all events, and if the law is faulty or ineffective, proper efforts would doubtless insure its amendment, so that good roads would be the rule and not the exception the year round. It is disgraceful to the people and very injurious to the interests of this section of country—Thibodaux in particular—that such roads are tolerated, when, with a little or less labor and expense as in any other part of the State, the Union, or Christendom, they can be made otherwise. We have known those (ourselves of the number) to work on levees and roads moonlight nights and Sundays—when prevented by regular business—it is thought that the clergy of all sects would accept the like in way of improvement in lieu of cock-fighting, playing cards, and other games, or remaining away from their services on the Sabbath Day.

It is vain to think that a trade which induces some of those engaged to stand or sit in store doors, no small part of the time, watching, like a hawk for a chicken, for country customers' dimes or the leavings of country stores, will ever build up or make a town prosperous.

Is it not high time that a town, which escaped the torch (bridge excepted) of years of civil war—ten years since—should banish old fogysm or any other ism of a detrimental nature, and the policy that "where there is a will, there is a way" adopted?

ONWARD.

From Lockport

LOCKPORT, Feb. 9, 1876.

Editors "Sentinel":—Noticing some time ago, in your paper, that communications giving news upon general topics would be gladly received, and, being a constant reader of your paper—which, by the way, is gradually improving in appearance and interesting reading,—I shall endeavor, though imperfectly, to acquaint your readers with the items of interest at present on the tapis.

The citizens of this place and vicinity, headed by their energetic priest, Rev. Letilly, have just completed a wooden pavement or plank road, from the upper limits of the (would be) corporate limits down to the Church, which is quite an improvement to the town and a great convenience to pedestrians. Buildings are going up rapidly, lots are in demand, and, no doubt, in a short time Lockport will be an incorporated town.

Last evening, the quiet stillness of our little burgh was much startled by the discordant sounds of horns, bugles, old tin pans, pots, etc.,—in a word, a first class charivari. Upon enquiries this morning, the chief of the revelers informed me that the gallant Mr. Jean Rizan, a resident of the river Parishes, and a brother of our well-known store-keeper Mr. P. Rizan, would in a few days lead to the hymenial altar one of the fairest and most charming young ladies of Lafourche, Miss Genevieve Grabert. Our young gallants should look to their laurels, and not let our neighbors from the river thus spirit away our fair daughters.

Yours, More anon. C. J. B.

Organizing the Forty Fifth Congress

Saturday, when "Big English" saw that it was going to be a lonesome day for the bootblacks, he set his head to work to devise something to break the monotony. About 10 o'clock he got a number of boys into the alley behind the Post office, and organized the "Forty fifth Congress." "Big English" is a regular reader of the daily papers, and he is a great organizer. It took him but fifteen minutes to get the "House" and "Senate" running so smoothly that lawyers and others looked down from their windows with great interest.

"Who's a liar?" yelled a white headed boy, as he jumped up. "Oh, dry up!" shouted "Sixth Ward Tom."

"Put him out—he was in the rebel army!" called a boy from Grand Riveravenue.

"Some one clubbed my dog fifteen years ago, and I can never forgive him," howled Strawberry Bob.

"Get out the records and less see who was loyal," put in king's boy.

Big English rapped on his box to restore order, but king Eommy threw up his hat and yelled:

"I moves for the aizes and the nozes." "He can't gag me!" shouted a lathy boy from Windsor.

"Less have a salary grab," piped a Congress steet boy.

"The peepul won't stand it," whooped another.

"Ain't we the peepul?" demanded a boy on the railing.

"Are we one country?" asked the Speaker as he rose up.

"I are, but you ain't!" yelled "Nickety Nick."

"Doesn't one flag float for all?" continued the Speaker?

"It does about tax time!" screamed a cross eyed youth from Springwells.

Some kicked the honorable Speaker. He then struck the honorable gentleman from from Wisconsin. The honorable gentle from Georgia and hair stood up and coat-tails stood out. When the row had quieted down, the honorable Speaker remarked:

"It was pretty good for the first time, though you didn't abuse each other enough."
