We are authorized to announce the name of J. B. McHugh as our duly authorized agent at Ambrosia, East Baton Rouge parish, and authorized to receipt for subscription and advertising.

Our old friend W. G. Waller, Esq., remembers us in his Northern tour, a copy of the New York Herald having reached us this week with his compliments.

The indefatigable stationer, M. Chambers keeps us under constant obligations for literary favors. If you want the latest and best periodicals, call on him.

If two hundred boys in Baton Rouge, who are now idle, were put to learning a trade and kept at it in five years good results would be clearly visible.

M. E. MARTINEZ.—This unflinching Democrat announces his name as a candidate for Representative. If elected, he will be found at his post as "true as steel" in support of every measure looking to the welfare of his constituents. Mr. Martinez is one of our best citizens.

THE COURT HOUSE.—It would be a Capital idea for our Police Jury to have that dilapidated frontispiece or screened in some manner so that the delegates to the Convention, might not think disparagingly of their administration of public affairs.

A young man, whose conduct had always been above suspicion, went to a neighbor's house the other night and stole a kiss from a young lady's lips. The next day he became so conscience-stricken on account of the theft that he went over to the neighbor's and put it back where he had found it!

A BANKING ESTABLISHMENT.—We are pleased to announce that this much needed institution in our city is about to be opened at no very distant day. From reliable authority we have learned that some gentlemen of the highest standing, among the mercantile community here, are taking steps towards this desirable end. We hope soon to be able to furnish more positive information on this subject. We have no doubt that such an institution, properly conducted as it surely will be, will result in profit to the managers and great advantage to our community. Thus it is that step by step, our Capital city is moving onward.

MAGRUDER'S COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE. This old and reliable college will open its courses on the 24th of September prox. Prof. Magruder will be prepared to give that attention to pupils, that has won for him that wide and justly earned reputation that he enjoys as a thorough educator throughout this and adjoining States. Among the list of graduates are gentlemen who have made their mark in the most elevated professional pursuits, and other walks of life. His pupils receive constant attention and care. Every comfort is given them, coupled with a liberal and moral education. Parents need not seek for their youths a better institution of learning than is Prof. Magruder's Collegiate Institute.

MANUEL RODRIGUEZ.—In another column will be seen the advertisement of this untrusting cigar manufacturer. If there is anywhere a man who knows how to make a good cigar, that individual is certainly Manuel Rodriguez. What he doesn't understand about tobacco is not worth knowing. He is prepared to furnish cigars of his manufacture to the traders and consumers at prices that defy competition. His prices will be found astonishingly low. Of all grades and styles, his stock is composed; from the fragrant Havana to the mixed and home-made tobacco. We are satisfied that so soon as one has given Rodriguez a trial, he will ever afterwards get his cigars from him. Go and see him before you go elsewhere; you'll be cleverly treated even, if you don't buy right off.

LOCAL'S RIFLE BALLS.

Mr. Editor—A promenade through Baton Rouge is always pleasant, but now it is perfectly delightful! The rains have effectually laid the dust, the luxuriant foliage affords a cool shelter from the sun, and everybody you meet looks happy and so glad to see you. When not near enough to speak, you are sometimes attracted by the waving of a hat, fluttering of a handkerchief, or some other familiar token of recognition, and flatter yourself that you must be an object of special interest. But just bear in mind, friend—the election is on hand, and nine-tenths of the people you meet are candidates! We were walking along, the other day, when one of the candidates stepped up and asked "why we didn't ride," and forthwith drew from his coat pocket a—bridle. They do say that some of these accommodating individuals carry seven bridle, eleven sticks of peppermint candy and nine Moody & Sankey song books in their pockets—at one time! With the bridle he gave us the confidential information of a horse he kept, on the commons, for the use of his friends.

Off we started in pursuit of the horse, meditating meanwhile on the noble nature of some men, the generosity of mankind in general, and feeling wonderfully charitable towards the whole human race. After walking twice the distance of our original destination, we came upon an antediluvian specimen of horse flesh, answering the description of the object of our pursuit. He was intently nipping the grass, as if securing here the only subsistence he had ever known, and looking like an ocular demonstration of the poetic sentiment that "horses want but little here below, nor want but little long."

We stole up cautiously, and thought we had him, but by a deft movement of the head he escaped our hand, and quietly pursued his grazing. Repeated attempts resulted in similar failures. We grew desperate, and made a violent attempt to secure the prize, when, to our astonishment, he successfully dodged the bridle, let fly his hind feet in the direction of our location, soon put several squares of real estate between us and him; and when we got up, brushed the dust out of our eyes and took a final look at him, he gave his old head a diabolical turn, then rested it on his left shoulder, leered at us with the whites of his eyes, as much as to say: "Mr. Voter, the old man got you, but I ain't so easy caught." We've got the bridle; reckon they don't want it returned!

Our unknown friend, "D. Faith," evidently means to rebuke us severely in one of his elaborate essays. After expressing his fear that we could not see "the point," he concludes with a pun which baffles us entirely. He seems to feel great contempt for newspaper controversies, charges us with inconsistency and reproves us for "want of respect" for religious faith.

For a while we felt almost "used up," and felt like "calling for the calf-ropes," till we remembered good old Balaam, and the unexpected source from which he was rebuked; and we comforted ourselves by reflecting, "well, all them reproving animals ain't dead yet." Nor did he stop with us, but shows his weakness still more in a defense he undertakes of Dr. Marshall. Nobody knows what the Doctor did to offend any one; but "Faith" writes as if he regarded the Doctor as a good meaning, but a "weak brother" from a superabundance of charity.

Uncommon case this; and certainly the only one on record. We warned him about deep water; now he is after the big fish. Attempting the charge against us of contempt for the faith of any church or the M. E. Discipline, is simply absurd. This Discipline is not a book of rules for any secret association, but a book to be read by the public, and we referred to it for the correctness of our statements and to prove our views of consistency.

The worldly amusements here denominated, we too admit, are immoral in their general tendency; but we advocate some of Dr. Marshall's charity towards the offending members. The big, bluff, rheumatic old brother, who feels no temptation to dance—and could not if he wanted to—must not be too severe on the young folks, who are led off by the seductive charms of the violin; nor should the one who loves to lavish his money in beautifying and ornamenting his house of worship denounce too severely the one who does not like home made lemonade, and when he goes for it, does not see "the lights along the shore," but only the Weeks at the corner!

The buildings and improvements going on in our town are quite encouraging, several residences on one square are now being completed on Government street.

We hope our amiable correspondent (and critic) will respect our humble confessions of obtuseness "in not seeing the point" in his puns, and in the future save us seven long weeks of puzzling torture over them, which only left in greater darkness his friend and admirer.

LOCAL.

The Rev. Isaac Palmer Suspended!

We are glad to note the fact that, on last Tuesday night, acting under the good advice of their elder, John Marks, of New Orleans, president of the Baptist Association, the late Rev. Palmer, whose name was coupled with the voodoo divorce case—the testimony of which appeared in our columns—was relieved from further duty and his credentials as pastor of the Baptist Church, withdrawn.

We are of those Democrats who, in the late Convention, voted for unrestricted suffrage and the extension of education through the establishment of a university for the colored population of our State, believing that by this liberal policy, they will soon become intelligent and useful citizens.

We sincerely hope that our colored people will see the necessity of carefully selecting their ministers of the Gospel, so that through their churches the precepts of morality and religious faith, which are so necessary to the advancement and well being of society, may be obtained.

This action speaks well for the colored Baptists of Baton Rouge.

Grand Festival and Pyrotechnical Display

That favorite organization, the Independent Silver Cornet Band, intend to give an entertainment of this nature on Monday and Tuesday nights, October 6th and 7th, for the purpose of adding to the fund that they are raising towards the erection of a Music Hall in our city. They have selected the Capitol grounds as the place wherein to give their exhibition. It is useless to say, that every effort will be made by our amateurs to render the occasion one that will reflect credit both upon our excellent band and the community. A brilliant fete will no doubt be the result, and one that will furnish a pleasurable time to our Democratic friends and visitors who will attend the Convention. We know that our ladies and the public will extend every encouragement to these deserving young gentlemen.

The weather is cool and clear, and the moon shines brightly on this column.

"AS YOU LIKE IT."

EDITOR CAPITOLIAN: The leading facts of the following have been gleaned from a back number of "Harper," and serve to give some idea of the tastes of different nations and the various classes of men—how little they depend upon any inherent quality in the thing eaten, and how very dependent upon custom and cultivation. In fact, it would seem that one thing is as good to eat as another, if not better! The King of Owyhee dined with Capt. Cook on his visit to the Sandwich Islands, and for the first time ate bread, which so disgusted him that he spat it out and returned home with pleasure to his roast dog and decayed fish. The New Hollanders surfeit themselves with stale shark and earth-worm, but abhor butter-bread; while the negroes of the West Indies revel in the luxuries of baked snakes, finger long palm worms, fried in their own fat, but their delicate stomachs revolt at rabbit stew. Russians eat tallow candles, Greenlanders drink train oil; an Esquimaux will eat twenty pounds of meat and oil per day. The Chinese eat half hatched eggs, shark fins and bird's nest soup.

To the first of these the Irish seem not to be averse. Upon one occasion, when everything was very high, chickens being worth $1.50, eggs two for twenty-five cents, and everything else in proportion, an Irishman had ordered eggs at the restaurant, and finding a young chicken in one of them, his friend said: "Swallow it down quick, Pat, or they'll charge you for eggs and chickens both," which he did before the waiter could stop him.

Capt. Cook vouches for the excellence of dog, though the Philosopher of Cos recommends it boiled, when every one who has tried knows the superiority of roast dog. Sir Robt. Schomburgk found monkey very palatable, though before dissection it looked very like roast child. We could not vouch for the delicacy of the baked missionary of the New Zealand cuisine, the under done human thigh of the Feejee Islander and the broiled fingers which are thought "a dainty dish to set before the King" of Sumatra. The father of young Stokes, who went as a missionary to New Zealand, received the following consoling note from a native of high rank: "Dear Stokes—Your son, the Rev. Wm. Stokes, arrived all right, and we found him very tender and fine, though not as juicy as was expected. If you have any more sons of a pious turn of mind, send them on; they are a great delicacy."

The Jews reject pork as unclean, while we, perhaps for better reasons, turn up our noses at Limburger cheese. We laugh at the South Sea Islander's use of buckskin breeches, who stuffs a pair with seaweed and boil them for dinner; but at the time of the great London Exposition, in 1851, it is known that so extensively were buffalo hides and sheep and calf-skins boiled down into jellies that the price of those staple articles rose considerably in all English ports. With the Chinese, where dogs are regularly fattened for table use, roast puppies or a puppy stew is considered the greatest delicacy; the former dish is cooked in such a way as to contribute very much to its gastronomic success. A hole is dug in the ground and a fire made in it; stones are then thrown in, and when they become very hot, the dog is laid on these on its back, the body is covered with leaves and stones, then with earth, and the heathen Chinese impatiently awaits the unearthing of his savory mess. When done, the interior is full of the finest juices of the animal, which makes a delicious gravy. Oxtail soup is said to be far inferior to rat soup. The Ceylonese eat the bees after robbing them of their honey. The African bushmen eat all caterpillars they can find. The Australians are notorious as maggot eaters. The Diggers of California fatten themselves on grasshoppers. Many persons have eaten spiders in different ways, from the plain raw spider to baked spiders, mashed in butter and spread on bread.

The Dutch eat a cheese called "Hand Case," made into balls and allowed to stand until long white worms appear sometimes one-half to three-fourths of an inch in length, then they eat it, and an old, there's nothing like it. (I am ready to accept this fact as true.)

Americans eat oysters, while in Europe snails are a prime luxury. At Cape Coast Castle the great African snail, which attains a length of eight inches, is made into soup; those which have been fattened on strawberries bringing in the highest price.

In the Arctic regions to drink water is unheard of. You eat your daily allowance of ship's rum and ask your intimate friend for a chew of brandy and water.

How grateful then to the Esquimaux palate must be the yielding tallow candle, which, having eaten, he carefully draws the wick between his teeth to save the remaining morsels of fat. The greatest luxury of the Greenlander is half-purified whale's tail; and next to it comes the gum of the right whale, which the Tusk call their sugar, and which a British officer reports to be delicious, tasting as much as possible like cream-cheese.

"There is no accounting for tastes," etc.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE PARISH CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

ROOMS PARISH CENTRAL COMMITTEE, Democratic-Conservative Party, BATON ROUGE, Aug. 27, 1879.

The meeting was called to order by H. Skolfield, President, when Dr. M. Pope was made Secretary.

The President stated the object of the meeting when the roll of members was called. Every ward was represented except the fifth.

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That in pursuance to the call for a State Convention, to be held at Baton Rouge, on the 6th day of October next, the voters of the several wards of this parish are requested to meet at their respective polling precincts on Saturday, the 13th day of September, and select by ballot their representatives in the Parish Convention, to be held at Pike's Hall, in the city of Baton Rouge, on the 20th day of September, for the purpose of sending delegates to the State Convention.

Resolved, That at the meeting on the 13th day of September, the people shall decide by ballot the question of primary election or convention for the nomination of their parochial ticket, and also whether a plurality or majority shall nominate.

Resolved, That the qualification for voters who participate in said ward meetings shall be that the person offering to vote shall be a duly qualified voter of this parish and State and for the ward in which he offers his vote, and shall agree to support the nominees who shall be declared the choice of the said party as candidates for the respective offices.

Resolved, That should the people decide to have a primary election, the qualification for the voter shall be the same as already stated.

Resolved, That while the Central Committee does not presume to dictate to the people in any particular, it would most respectfully suggest that, as there are so many candidates for the different offices, should a primary election be decided on, a plurality vote would be the safest, easiest and best way to choose our nominees. We, as a Committee, and as individuals, stand pledged to whatever the people desire, and will do our best for the party which has redeemed our State from the thraldom of our enemies. We are now free and on the upward to prosperity and happiness. Let every Democrat do his whole duty from beginning to end—from the nomination to the election.

By Mr. Gardere: Resolved, That the President of the Central Committee be authorized to issue a proclamation ordering an election in the several wards of the parish, to be held on the 13th of September next, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. The polling places to be the same as those designated for general elections. The commissioners of election to be selected by the member representing the ward in this Central Committee.

The President having submitted to the Committee an account of receipts and disbursements during his term of office, the Committee, after examination, approved of the same, and the President was discharged from all further responsibility in the matter.

The undersigned, members of the Central Committee, have endeavored to serve their party faithfully during the year that has just expired, and now, at the best wishes for the success of the Democratic-Conservative party of this parish and State and country, we hereby tender our resignations with the suggestion and recommendation that the people fill our places by ballot on the 13th of September.

H. SKOLFIELD, F. M. BROOKS, by proxy. E. F. DAVIS, JAS. M. LOUDEN, JOHN G. KLEINPETER, P. S. HARELSON, ERNEST GARDERE, MARSHALL POPE, R. E. AMBROSE.

ROOMS DEMOCRATIC-CONSERVATIVE PARISH CENTRAL COMMITTEE, Baton Rouge, August 27, 1879.

In pursuance to a resolution this day adopted by the Parish Central Committee, I hereby order a primary election in all the wards of this parish on the 13th of September, 1879, for the purpose—

1st. To elect delegates to the Parish Convention.

2. To elect members to the Parish Central Committee.

3d. To decide by ballot the question of Primary Election or Convention.

4th. To decide by ballot whether a plurality or majority vote shall nominate our parochial ticket.

It is ordered hereby that the above election shall be held at the several polling places between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m., the day and date above written.

The commissioners shall be appointed by the members of the Central Committee.

H. SKOLFIELD, President Central Committee. MARSHALL POPE, Secretary.

THE FIFTH AND TENTH WARDS.

EDITOR CAPITOLIAN.—As the Democratic party in the eastern part of our parish is entitled to a Representative at the coming election, we, the undersigned, claim that the voters in the 5th and 10th wards have the right to name that Representative.

Polls to be opened at 6 o'clock a. m. and closed at 5 p. m., to be presided over by commissioners to be selected from among the friends of the different candidates. Base Ball Game.

Mr. Editor—On Sunday, August 24th, the Southerners and Capitolian Base Ball Clubs met on their grounds and played a friendly match game in the presence of about two hundred spectators, which resulted as every one had anticipated—in another victory for the "boss nine" of the Southerners. It is rumored that there will be another game next Sunday between the same clubs. In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I herewith append the score of the game:

Table with 2 columns: SOUTHERNER BASE BALL CLUB, RUNS, OUTS. 1. Hernandez, A. 6 1, 2. L. Gimler, P. 5 2, 3. C. Hartley, L. F. 4 2, 4. R. Martinez, H. 5 1, 5. E. Gimler, S. F. 1 7, 6. R. Powers, M. 1 4, 7. J. DeLroy, M. 1 4, 8. Nodder, B. 3 3, 9. Whitfield, C. 5 2.

The Cosmopolitan Restaurant.

That celebrated culinary establishment on Royal street near Canal, New Orleans, is in full blast, ready for the approaching season. Mr. Louis Chaplain and the "Madam" have made every preparation to accommodate their numerous customers. They have two fine buildings divided in most comfortable rooms, kept in the neatest and most comfortable manner. One feels at home always at the Cosmopolitan. For many years past this restaurant has been the favorite headquarters of the Baton Rougeans who are invariably received by the friendly proprietors as "home folks." "John" and his staff of waiters are on hand at a second's warning to furnish all that is required. Everything is done up in the best of style, and "according to Hoyle." Those who would either a good breakfast or a dinner can't possibly do better anywhere in this country. The establishment is visited by a class of gentlemanly customers only, so that it is a pleasure for any one from the country to stop there. Gentlemen and their families need not hesitate to locate themselves while in the city, at this pleasant resort.

RAILROAD TALK.—We have information which renders it more probable that the Illinois Central is about to enter into a contract for the completion of the New Orleans Pacific road, through Pontchartraine and Baton Rouge, to Alexandria and Shreveport. In a very few days we hope to be able to announce that the pending negotiations have resulted favorably. Through the Hon. W. H. Pipes, of East Feliciana, member of the State Central Committee, we learned, during our late visit to the city that our neighbors are moving in the matter of the extension of the Clinton Railroad to our city. Developments are expected soon.

Police Jurors, so says the acting Governor, are not to be elected this coming December. They, like municipal officers, are created by law, and until the General Assembly provides for a change, the tenure remains as the present statutes specify.

Married.

HINSON—In this city, on Thursday, August 28th, 1879, by F. A. Nephler, Justice of the Peace, Mr. JOSEPH HINSON to Miss MARTHA ELIZABETH ROBERTSON—all of this parish.

So the Captain has concluded that life in the country is too dull without a companion. In this way does he prove that fact by abandoning the noble army of bachelors. We extend him our congratulations and hope that henceforth he will enjoy that happiness that the possession of an amiable and lovely wife is sure to afford him. May his good example be followed by many others.

Died.
