

FEBRUARY, 1881.

LOCAL MATTERS.

For Administrator of Police. Mr. Editor—Please announce me as a candidate for re-election to the office of Administrator of Police. Election to be held on Monday, April 4th prox.—Paid. T. B. HILLEN.

For Administrator of Finance. We are authorized to announce MICHAEL CHAMBERS as a candidate for Administrator of Finance at the approaching municipal election, on Monday, April 4th, prox.

For Councilmen. EDITOR CAPITOLIAN—Please announce Messrs. JOHN J. WAX and JOHN GRADY as candidates for Councilmen, First Ward. Municipal Election to be held on the fourth of April, next. MANY VOTERS.

MALARION, the great specific for fevers and other complaints, is advertised in to-day's paper. It can be procured at Steady's.

Messrs. John J. Wax and John Grady, both members of the City Council and good citizens of the first Ward, are presented for re-election, by "many voters."

The Wells murder case was commenced on yesterday. A jury has been empaneled and the examination of witnesses begun. It is likely that the case will be submitted to-night to the jury.

B. Feibleman comes to the front to-day like a little man. He says that "he's healed" so far as having a tremendous stock of boots, hats, spring dry goods, clothing, gaw gaws for the ladies, etc. He is determined to face the music by selling those goods at the lowest prices imaginable. He has an idea that he can sell more by so doing. Go and see his really magnificent stock, a great portion of which was selected by the great tragedienne Sarah Bernhardt during her stay in the eastern cities.

MICHAEL CHAMBERS.—The name of this deservedly popular citizen appears to-day in connection with the candidacy for Administrator of Finance, at the approaching Municipal Election. He is known to all, from the oldest resident to the newcomer, as a large hearted, upright and industrious man. Surely, no one whose name may be mentioned as his competitor, will be able to offer to the public a better guarantee than the responsible office of Administrator of Finance will be filled with intelligence, integrity and the proper spirit of considerate performance of duty. It would be superfluous for us to recommend him to a public, whom we are sure, will testify their appreciation of Mike Chambers on election day.

It happened right here, in Baton Rouge. An honest and law-abiding citizen perceiving one of Sheriff Bates' deputies looking for a tamen to form a jury in a criminal case. The good citizen's first idea was to hide in the back part of a certain store, whose proprietor never fails to get in a practical joke whenever the opportunity is presented. "Don't hide," says the proprietor, "you just tell the Deputy Sheriff that you don't know a darned thing about the case." And the good man took the advice given him by the proprietor. The result can be once be imagined. The deputy took our man along, after telling him: "You are the very kind I'm after. I don't want anybody who has heard of the case, because his mind might be made up." The unfortunate citizen was accepted by both sides and made a splendid juror.

"Fairbanks" is the name marked on a box at Jackson's store, on Main street, which that go-ahead business man has been requested to forward to the address of the owner, who is said to be a merchant in New Orleans. The clerks have examined every newspaper, and thus far they have totally failed to find where Mr. Fairbanks holds forth. It is evident that the mysterious owner of the box is one of that class of merchants who believe either that the printer lives on thin air, or else that he does not deserve to be supported in his efforts to spread general news and information among the masses. In fact, that he ought to be totally squelched, so that he, Mr. Fairbanks, shall be allowed to conduct his business unbeknown to the world, in a secluded corner of the Crescent City. He never advertises, Mr. Fairbanks don't—because everybody knows where to find him; the newspapers to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Baton Rouge Branch N. O. Pacific Railroad.

A letter was received last evening, from President Wheelock, containing blank agreements to be signed by the planters, giving right of way through their lands, in West Baton Rouge. He states that the contract for grading the branch road has already been closed and that the work will commence at once. We hope that our friends across the river will not delay operations by opposing the passage of the line on their places. Besides giving the public and themselves the accommodation of a competing avenue of travel and transportation with the Mississippi river, they will greatly increase the value of their property by making it accessible by rail.

Since writing the above, we have been shown a dispatch, which says that Mr. Cleary, the contractor will be at Bruy Landing on to-morrow, with his force, to begin grading in the direction of this city.

Dear Capitollan—My last letter was posted at Cincinnati. The latter city, together with St. Louis and Chicago, supports newspapers of an enterprising character. These three "boss" towns of the undeveloped West, as exemplified by their respective journals, are jealous of one another; and the fineness displayed by the Chicagoans in reading about the ears of a St. Louis girl resembling those of a braying animal, is on par with the avidity that the denizen of the "Future Great" show in devouring rosy descriptions of the Chicago damsels hoof. To more fully illustrate this later allusion the term mastodon being used. In this vein the Chicago Times, has lately denominated Cincinnati as the "Plaster Paris of America!" This is cruel! Cincinnati has, for a twelfth month or so, made many pretensions toward being the American counterpart of the gay city of France—but those who are best qualified to judge, allow that distinction to the fascinating and tax-ridden city near the mouth of the Big Muddy.

Cincinnati like most northern cities at this time of the year, offers few out-of-door attractions for the stranger within her gates. The mud-covered streets and damp pavements together with the chilling atmosphere cannot discount the allurements of a warm, cozy room, newspaper files and a Havana cigar, made in Connecticut. Still, you can, if you wish, climb the dizzy heights back of the town and view its vastness from a bird-eye standpoint—if the expression may be used; or you can cross over the Ohio into Kentucky on a fine suspension bridge. If you have never been over the Rhine, you may accomplish that feat here—or while dreaming of German cloud-piercing castles fall asleep over a mug of well-brewed beer. All without getting sea-sick. Six theatres strive by means to drive dull care away, and the showy store windows will no doubt cause many a weary mortal to long for the welcome era of low priced spring bonnets.

Cincinnati's Big Musical Festival was a handsome feather in her cap and the $5,000 profits was an anthem that many took pleasure in listening to. I think that I am safe in predicting that before many days every third boy in Ohio's Queen City will know how to play the accordion and triangle. Music is power. But the person attempts to sleep within earshot of a practicing brass band, has a heavy job on his hands.

With the evening train for Pittsburgh and the East, the writer on February 25th took leave of the kindly city of the vine clad hills—and whilst whirling through the darkened valley of the Pan Handle route, notched on memory's stick a reminder of the "Plaster Paris of America."

Shades of darkness! Can this be the Birmingham of America? Pittsburgh, Pa!

The city of a thousand smoke stacks, which, if they do not give the average Sunday School scholars a faint idea of the infernal regions, do most certainly, with their belching smoke and fire, cover this abode of iron, steel and glass with an impenetrable gloom. The houses have a snappy appearance, and the doorsteps of some of the finer residences would drive into despair the average Philadelphia housewife, such strangers to soap and water do they seem. At present the factories are all in full blast and the sound of the hissing, roaring, tearing and cracking metals as they pass under the hands of skilled mechanics, would put to blush the uproar at a Chinese picnic, when the participants discern that the refreshments are missing.

As the train slowly crosses the Monongahala on a net work of wood, under which a score or two of coal barges are passing, the scene presented, looking down the river, is on upon which the memory fondly lingers, until the bustle and general confusion of the Union depot, in the heart of the city, warn the traveler that it is time to change cars and to disperse of the traditional twenty minutes for knife and fork pastime.

The ride from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia, over the Pennsylvania Railroad, by daylight, is one not devoid of interest and is a trip that will repay the participants. The wild, rugged mountain scenery, with views of coal and iron mine exteriors and glimpses here and there of busy rolling mills, straggling hamlets and thrifty villages, lying adjacent to snow-covered valleys and well-cultivated fields, keep the busy eyes of the tourist in a constant flutter.

At length we reached the top of the Alleghany mountains, and the snow hidden peaks, deep, pine-skirted valleys, and general absence of human habitation reminded one of Colorado. As we approached the famous horse-shoe curve, near Altoona, the beauties of this portion of Pennsylvania forcibly impressed themselves. The rushing train came to a dead stop at the Logan House on Altoona, shortly after, and the brakeman's door-slaming echo of "five minutes for refreshments!" caused a general stampede for a well-filled lunch counter.

Altoona is a healthy mountain town of 20,000 inhabitants. Thirty years ago it was a desert waste, soon transformed however, into its present character, by the Pennsylvania Railroad locating its building shops there.

All aboard! One stop between Altoona and Harrisburgh. Away whirls the train, past hill and dale, charming homesteads, long vistas of prosperous farms, rattling over bridges, rushing through way stations scooping up water as it flies, away whirls the train. Lewistown narrows, beautiful Juniata, pretty girl with white apron at farm house door. Yonder is the Susquehanna; beautiful stream wide as Mississippi, hasn't got time to talk about it, with a sudden jerk, standstill. "Harrisburgh, twenty minutes for dinner!" what, already, it seems but five minutes since we left Altoona. We live to eat. Shades of well cooked oyster stews. Harrisburgh is your home. All aboard! Philadelphia; 106 miles, one-stop only. Away! Past finest cultivated farms in America. Lancaster County, beautiful Chester valley. Downingtown, a constant rackety-racket through the darkness. Be jabbers! there's Fairmount Park! a sudden jerk, air pipes, train stops.

Philadelphia! city of fat buckwheat cakes, gilt edge butter and solid bottom pies, I embrace you!

TRADE MARK S.S.S.

PERRY, Houston County, Ga., Jan. 22, 1880. In the year 1873, there were two negro prisoners confined in the jail of this county, who were very badly afflicted with that loathsome disease Syphilis. In my official capacity as Ordinary, I employed Capt. C. T. Swift, then a resident of this place, to cure them, under a contract, "no cure, no pay." He administered to them his celebrated Syphilitic Specific, and in a few weeks I felt bound, under my contract, to pay him out of the county treasury, as he had effected a complete and radical cure. In testimony I herewith set my official signature and seal. A. S. GILES, Ordinary Houston County, Georgia. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., February, 14, 1879. We take pleasure in saying that the S. S. S. is giving good satisfaction. We have had excellent suits from a number of cases. One gentleman who had been confined to his bed six weeks with Syphilitic Rheumatism has been cured entirely, and speaks in the highest praise of it. It also acts as well in primary as in secondary and tertiary cases. CHAS. W. CHILDS & BERRY, THE SWIFT SPECIFIC COMPANY, Proprietors, Atlanta, Ga. Sold by W. T.
