VOLUME II. JENNINGS, LOUISIANA FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1901 NUMBER 283

Union Oil and Development Co., Ltd.

Capital Stock, $200,000 Jennings, Louisiana

This is one of the strongest companies financially there are, or will operate in the Jennings field. Its officers are all men of exceptional business ability and its holdings are of the best, consisting of 250 acres, constituting the Big Spring farm, formerly owned by Cooper & Lehman, lying southeast of Jennings and adjoining the Southern Pacific right of way, making the site unequaled for the speedy and economical handling of the product. This is a big saving to stockholders.

The derrick is now being constructed and the contract for drilling is being let. Work will commence very shortly.

A limited number of shares in this company are now offered for sale at 50c per share, par value $1.00. Fully paid and non-assessable.

LANDS FOR SALE.—About 80 acres adjoining the well site have been subdivided into tracts ranging from 2½ acres up, and are now offered for sale at a reasonable price. This is a fine opportunity to get a splendidly located small tract.

OFFICERS.—Dr. E. L. Bird, President, Physician Citizens Bank.
A. M. Arthur, Vice-President, extensive rice grower and buyer.
R. Dudley, Secretary-Treasurer, a prominent real estate broker.

DIRECTORS.—J. B. Hoffman, Cashier C. of C. and Banker; C. A. Lawyer, Rice Miller; Ed Mayes, J. M. Cooper, R. E. Beckwith, P. Black, Alfred Demanade, C. C. Candidus, B. Hebert, of Jennings; Geo. Reid, Rice Miller and Farmer, Basile; and Col. W. B. Stevens of Crowley, the balance of the company.

GONE TO THEIR REWARD.

The Angel of Death Visits Our City and Causes a Deep Sorrow

At the hour of 3:20 a. m. yesterday, the spirit of the Rev. Dr. Wilbur C. Miller, the beloved pastor of the Congregational church in Jennings, was loosed from the moorings of the mortal and wafted into the presence of the ruler of the universe, there to receive the rewards of a well spent life. Dr. Miller had been here but a short time, and his sickness dated from the time of the occurrence of Jennings' destructive conflagration, upon which occasion he took an active part in the subjugation of the flames and toward saving all that might be saved from the devouring element. Undoubtedly this was the starting of the disease that led to his untimely end and cut short his earthly career of usefulness. About two weeks ago he was taken with what he supposed was la grippe, but all [illegible] and failed to give any permanent relief, and he grew steadily worse, until it became plainly evident that his life was surely ebbing away. He filled his pulpit for the last time on Sunday morning, the 17th inst. After which an examination by the physician disclosed the fact that he was inevitably suffering with typhoid. Hope, however, was not entirely abandoned until within the last few hours of his earthly life.

Mrs. Miller was lying at the [illegible] another room, too ill to [illegible] at his bedside when the death [illegible] came. Other friends [illegible] at the time and [illegible] present at the [illegible] wonderfully and Mr. Miller had so woven his life into the lives of the people that when the urgent call came from Decatur, Illinois, it was very hard for him to see that his duty was to leave Shabona for the new work. In 1889 he came to be the pastor of the First Congregational church of Decatur, Ill. The church was in its infancy. Scarcely a handful of members gathered in a little chapel room on Sunday morning to worship. Dr. Miller began to work early and long and the church began to grow. A handsome new church was built, a mission was started and is still doing a great work. The church increased from the handful to nearly 350 and the pastor and the church membership were as one, so dearly did they love each other.

During the Worlds Fair boom Dr. Miller invested heavily in Chicago real estate and with many lost considerable money. He has worked very hard all these years to pay these obligations. In Sept. 1900 he resigned as pastor of the church in Decatur in order to devote his entire time to business, expecting thereby to the sooner meet his financial obligations and then return to the ministry. While a [illegible] mind and heart. He was attracted to Southwest Louisiana last February came here and invested in rice lands. He has been very successful and in a short time [illegible] entirely free from obligations. He was largely interested in two of the rice mill companies. When he first came here, through the influence of a friend he preached at the Congregational church and [illegible] the hearts of the congregation. He was urged to become the pastor and at last accepted and began his work the first of September. His work here gave promise of great results. [illegible] delighted the [illegible] and the entire town [illegible] a noble citizen and the [illegible] a devoted, tender husband.

In 1877 he [illegible] married to Marsha S. [illegible] was born in N. Y. [illegible] died Oct. [illegible]
