Broadcast Sowing.

Broadcast sowing of rice should be discontinued; the seeds are scattered with uniformity; some grains remain upon the surface and the remainder is buried by the harrow and the tramp of the team to depths varying from 1 to 6 inches. Rice sown broadcast does not germinate with any uniformity. Some seeds are taken by the birds, some are too near the surface and lack moisture to germinate, while others are buried too deep. In some instances the variation in the germination of the rice in the same field has been as much as eight weeks. Then at the harvest when the main portion is ready for the reader, quite an amount of rice is still immature. The product commands a very low price in the market, because the merchantable grain must sell at the price of the low grade. Care must be taken to plant the several fields at different periods, so that the harvest will not be too crowded. It requires much more care to produce a strictly first-class quality of rice than is found necessary in the production of any other cereal, and nearly every fall prime offerings are the exception.—S. A. Knapp, in Rice Culture.

Plant Oats.

It may be well to call the attention of the rice growers to the importance of planting some fall oats. This is one of the easiest and cheapest crops to grow in this section, provided the following directions are carried out: First, be sure the land is well drained; that is, that no water be allowed to stand for any length of time, as this would ruin the crop. Be sure to plant Texas rust-proof oats; sow broadcast at the same time 150 to 200 pounds of fertilizer; the latter amount would probably be none too much, as the season is getting rather late. The oat crop will be ready to harvest from the 15 of May to end of month, in ample time to plant into late rice if needed.

With a favorable season the oats should yield from 35 to 40 bushels per acre. It will readily be seen, at the present price of feed, the value of this crop in reducing the expense bill; besides leaving the land clean for the succeeding crop. Seeding should not be delayed for a single day, provided the seed can be procured. JAMES MAUND.
