KNIGHT & RUCKER,

GENERAL STORE,
BRUNSWICK, MO.

groom's father in that city Monday, Oct. 6, 1902. Rev. J. P. Rice doing the splicing.

PRATHER-WILLIAMS:—J. C. Prather of Keytesville and Miss May Williams of Fayette were married at the residence of Clarence Foster in Keytesville Sunday, Oct. 5, 1902. Rev. Alpha Ingle sealing the plighted vows. The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Prather of Keytesville, while the bride is a former attaché of the central telephone office at Fayette. She and the young man who is now her husband fell in love by telephone, which probably accounts for the failure of the patrons of the line to receive prompt service sometimes while "Con" and Miss Williams were connected with the Keytesville and Fayette telephone exchanges. Telephone systems won't work successfully for other people when a spoony couple are in charge. But most of us can recall the time in days gone when we, too, were "spoony," and now that "Con" and Miss Williams are married we all freely and fully forgive them for entailing past vexatious delays upon us, and wish them a bright, happy and prosperous wedded life. They will make their home for the present, at least, with the bridegroom's parents.

JENKINS-HOLMAN:—Rev. J. C. Jenkins of Huntsville, Mo., and Miss Susie M. Holman were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Holman, 3 1-2 miles north of Keytesville, Wednesday, Oct. 8, 1902. Rev. J. L. Routt, assisted by Rev. R. T. Callwell of Macon, launching their hymeneal bark. About forty invited friends and neighbors were present to witness the marriage which was beautiful and impressive in its simplicity. The interior of the house was handsomely decorated with seasonable flowers, and in one corner of the parlor a canopy of flowers was tastefully arranged, to which the brilliancy of the bridal lamp lent a pleasing effect, and beneath which the bridal couple stood while making their sacred vows. The attendants were Jas. Holman, a brother to the bride and Miss Myrtle Bony of Cairo, Mo., and Clarence Mills and Miss Willie Dameron. After the ceremony the guests were invited to the dining-room where palatable refreshments were served. The bride is a young lady of fine attainments and a noble Christian character. The bridegroom is a young man of true worth and is a candidate for the ministry in the Cumberland Presbyterian church. They both have a host of friends who join the COURIER in wishing them a successful and felicitous journey through life. Rev. and Mrs. Jenkins will make their home at Huntsville. On the occasion of their marriage they were remembered very generously with a number of nice presents.

MCINTIRE-TERRETT:—The Yellowstone Journal of Thursday, Sept. 25, 1902, published at Miles City, Mont., gives the following account of the marriage of Warren McIntire and Miss Georgie Hunter Terrett, a lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Terrett, formerly highly esteemed citizens of six miles west of Keytesville: "In the presence of a large and fashionably dressed audience of friends and acquaintances, near the hour of 7 o'clock in the evening in the Emmanuel Episcopal church, Warren McIntire and Miss Georgie Hunter Terrett pronounced the fatal words that united their hitherto segregated streams of individual life in one broad stream of mutual existence and made them man and wife. The chancel of the church was profusely adorned with festoons and interwoven branches of the hop and elemtis, which retained their verdancy in defiance of the stealthy approach of the icy hand of winter, and interspersed for color effect were blooms of the aster and other flowers whose bright hues reflected the appearance of gladness and festivity consonant with the event. There was a slight delay after the expectant hour was reached, when the groom entered the chancel and met his best man, Paul Milburn, and the bridal procession entered the vestibule. As it passed up the aisle, the newly made Mrs. W. W. D. Terrett of Forsyth, as bride's matron was in advance. Behind her tripped Dorothy Snell, as the little flower girl, scattering roses and blossoms of sweet peas, carnations and asters, and by her side the ring bearer, the 4-year-old son of Luther Terrett of Forsyth. The little folks were in immediate precedence of the bride and her father and whole party moved toward the altar to the animating strains of Mendelssohn's famous composition. Rev. John Evans tied fast the hymeneal knot in accordance with the impressive rites prescribed for the momentous event by the church, and the assemblage passed out to meet again at the rectory, where a reception was held and a host of friends of the young folks were given a chance to congratulate them and wish them a happy voyage on the journey of life. They will remain in Miles City to-day, and to-night leave for Chicago via Billings, stopping at Forsyth to pass a day with relatives of the bride there. They will make their home at Chicago and will be open to callers after November 12 at 531 East 64th street. Gifts through which their many friends gave material testimony of their esteem were very numerous and conveyed sentiments of good will and fair wishes that the happy recipients will ever recall with pleasure. In account of their adolescence, the young folks are not known to the frontiers in the county their parents, at least, enjoy an acquaintance that within its limits may be termed universal. Warren McIntire is the only child of H. W. McIntire. The young man was raised in Miles City and received his early education here. He afterward went to Chicago and attended an institution where he took up the specialty of journalism. The Journal frequently in times past regaled its readers with his snappy morsels of Chicago doings. So naturally and by training was the young man adapted to his chosen profession that his facile pen soon won recognition in the higher strata and he now holds the responsible position of night editor for the Associated Press in the Babylon of the Middle West. The bride is the youngest daughter of W. W. Terrett, one of the most, among the many, solid and substantial citizens that Custer county can lay claim to. The Journal joins the multitude in congratulations and in wishing a long life and a happy one."
