R. F. D. No. 2.

C. E. Finch, record keeper for the Maccabees lodge at Brunswick, delivered a draft for $2,000 to Mrs. Julia Suswind of four miles southeast of Brunswick Friday, that being the amount of insurance which her husband, the late Henry Suswind, carried in the Maccabees in favor of his wife and children, William and C. August Suswind and Mrs. Christina Blunk. The insurance was paid the beneficiaries just eight days after proof of the death of the elder Suswind was made.

G. R. Layher, formerly Wabash agent at Keytesville station, but now vick inspector for the Wabash with his headquarters at St. Louis, was at Keytesville depot an hour or so Friday morning, and the editor of the COURIER had the pleasure of meeting him. George is the same genial and sunny gentleman as of yore and is a sure cure for the blues. He was going to Brunswick on the local freight. The duties of his new position keep him on the road most of the time. He wished to be remembered to all his old Keytesville friends.

Our young friend, John Fetzer, who is attending the Chillicothe normal school, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fetzer of five miles south of this place. John has finished the commercial course at the normal and is now taking pen art and other studies in which he is doing nicely, but say there is nothing like a fellow's getting his feet under his mother's table occasionally, and that life hath no pleasure like it either in school or out.

Attorney J. A. Collet concluding to break a team of young mules last Friday, but they objected and made up their minds to "break" him. So they ran away and threw Mr. Collet out onto the Keytesville street railway track, near M. B. Hunt's residence. His face was skinned up so that it was made to somewhat resemble the physiognomy of a vanquished prize-fighter. This story would be more interesting if the editor of the COURIER had been near enough to hear what Mr. Collet said after he got up and found he was not knocked senseless and was able to make remarks to such an occasion. The mules escaped injury and were still enjoying good health when last heard from.
