

To contradict certain talk and to put the consuming public in possession of the truth, we say in plain words that no one in this town can sell as good coffee as Arbuckles' Ariosa for as little money.

Misbranded and make-believe Mocha and Java, or coffee sold loose out of a bag or a bin, is not as good value for the money, nor can it be sold at as narrow profit, nor reach the consumer under as favorable conditions.

When you buy Arbuckles' Ariosa Coffee you get more than 16 net ozs. of straight, wholesome Brazilian coffee from the largest coffee firm in the world, with that firm's direct assurance that they are giving you the best coffee in the world for the money.

An editor's small son recently said to his mother: "Mamma, I think the man who takes our ashes is the best man I ever saw. I think he is even better than papa. His mother expressed surprise and asked him why he thought the ashman better than his father. "Well," said the boy, "he came with a poor mule the other day and after he had filled the wagon he told the mule to get up. The mule was tired and would not go. Then that good man sat down on the grass and told the poor mule all about Jesus and the bad places."

Frank Watson, an insane man, attempted to cut his throat with a dull pocket-knife at the home of Herschel Deskin, east of Moberly, Thursday night. He is laboring under the delusion that a mob wants to get him and burn him. He was confined in the county jail, and the officers were very particular to remove everything with which he might end his life. The next morning, however, Watson's lifeless body was discovered hanging from one of the cells. Although quite weak from his wounds he managed to hang himself and did not have a rope either. He first threw his coat over the top of the cell and then tied his shirt to the coat and hung himself by that means. The top of the cell is not very high, and in order to accomplish his end he had to keep his feet off the floor by bending his knees. At anytime while he was choking he could have put his feet to the floor and relieved the situation, but he was bent on dying and displayed great nerve by the way in which he died.

A. J. Potter, who was on his way from Kansas City to Sumner last Saturday night, fell on the icy pavement at Brunswick and so badly wrenched one of his ankles that he was forced to continue the journey here on crutches. While in Brunswick Mr. Potter received the sad intelligence of the death of his infant child, whom he had left in apparent good health at home that morning. The mother brought the remains to Sumner Tuesday and burial was made at Lakeside cemetery. It seems that misfortune never comes singly. The bereaved parents have our sympathy.—Sumner Star.

During the recent financial flurry, a Germany farmer went to the bank for some money. He was told that the bank was not using cashier's checks. He could not understand this, and insisted on money. The officers took him in hand, one at a time, with little effect. Finally the president tried his hand, and after a long and minute explanation some intelligence on the situation seemed to be dawning on the farmer's mind. Finally the president said: "You understand now fully how it is, Hans, don't you?" "Yah," said Hans, "I think I do. Id's like dis, aind it? Ven my baby vakes oop at night vant some milk, I gif him a ticket."

A Touching Story.

A touching story is told by an arctic explorer about the motherly love of a bear for her cubs. He states that while his ship was frozen in the ice, they noticed three bears making their way toward the vessel, attracted, no doubt, by the smell of blubber which some of the crew was burning. The intruders proved to be a she bear and her two cubs. The three ran to the fire and drew out of the flesh and ate it ravenously. Then the crew threw great lumps of food to them, but the mother bear left her babies off at a distance and she got the food, taking it to them and keeping the smallest portion for herself. As she was fetching away the last bit the men fired and shot all three of the bears, killing the cubs and mortally wounding the mother. It would have drawn the tears of pity from any eye to have marked the loving concern of this poor animal for her dead babies. Badly wounded, she crawled to where they lay, carrying lumps of flesh to them. When she saw that they refused to eat, she touched them each in turn trying to rouse them, and when this failed she set up a piteous cry. Then she crawled away, looking back in the hope that they might follow. But when even this failed to attract their attention, she returned to pet them again. Finding at last that they were cold and lifeless, she raised her head toward the ship and growled a curse upon her destroyers and then fell dead between her cubs.

Coughs of Children

Especially night coughs. Nature needs a little help to quiet the irritation, control the inflammation, check the progress of the disease. Our advice is—give the children Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Ask your doctor if this is his advice also. He knows best. Do as he says.

If you think constipation is of trifling consequence, just ask your doctor. He will disabuse you of that notion in short order. "Correct it, at once!" he will say. Then ask him about Ayer's Pills. A mild liver pill, all vegetable.

Banker Friesz in a Wreck.

We learn from the Triplett Tribune that the fore truck of the combination coach of No. 6 on the Brunswick & Chillicothe division of the Wabash railway jumped the track at Bedford Wednesday evening of last week and delayed the train several hours. The train was going at a lively clip when it happened. A. L. Friesz of Triplett was in the coach returning from Chillicothe. He says he was talking "ohickens" with the conductor when the conversation was interrupted by a vigorous bumping and thumping. He grabbed hold of a seat and waited for the expectant train to run over his train and crash out his life. The emergency brake was applied and when the train stopped he jumped off, and landed at the foot of a 15 foot embankment. After examining all his vital spots and finding that he would live, he clambered aboard again. No one was hurt.

The Future Business Man.

Don't laugh at the boy who magnifies his place. You may see him coming from the post-office with a big bundle of his employer's letters, which he displays with as much pride as though they were his own. He feels important, and looks it, but he is proud of his place. He likes to have the world know that he is at work for a busy concern. The boy who says "we" identifies himself with the concern, its interests are his. He sticks up for its credit and reputation. He takes pleasure in his work and hopes to say "we are" in earnest. The boy will reap what he sows if he keeps his grit and sticks to his job. You may take off your hat to him as one of the future solid men of the town. Let his employer do the right thing by him; check him kindly if he shows signs of being too big for his place, counsel him as to his habits and associates and occasionally show him a pleasant prospect of advancement. A little pride does an honest boy a heap of good. Good luck to the boy who says "we."

A stick of dynamite five inches long was found in the coal that was being taken aboard the battleship, Ohio, at Port of Spain, Trinidad, a short time ago. This is said to be the second time that dynamite has been found in coal being loaded on one of our battleships.

A young couple recently purchased a baby carriage at a local store, and having the child with them, placed it in the carriage and started home. On their way they passed a number of people who looked at the carriage blandly and who appeared greatly amused. The action of their friends was a matter of great annoyance to the young people, and was wholly inexplicable until they reached home. As the little one was being taken from the carriage, their eyes fell on a printed card on the front of the vehicle which read: "NONE BETTER; OUR OWN MAKE."

1841 Compared with 1908.

Ashland Bugle: In 1841 housekeepers could buy chickens at 50c a dozen and eggs at 3c a dozen. Facts is, that less than 15 years ago, eggs sold in Ashland as low as 3c a dozen. You could in 1841 get all the fat cattle and hogs you wanted at 2 1-2 cents a pound, net. These prices seem ruinously low to a farmer of this day.

But in those days corn was cheap, wild mast abundant, and ranges free. The cost of fattening cattle and hogs was not worth considering. Now it is 50-cent corn that fattens the $4 hog and the $5 steer. Land which went begging at a few dollars an acre is now worth $50 to $100 an acre.

Yet the farmer of the forties was just as well off as the farmer of to-day. He was not bothered with microbes and bacteria, with sensational and "yellow" newspapers, nor with the schemes of cranky reformers and hair-brained agitators. Who is to decide on the comparative merits of the forties and 1908?

Students As Fire Fighters.

The residence on the state farm of Missouri agricultural college at the state university at Columbia, Mo., burned Monday morning and is a total loss. The family of Dr. H. J. Waters, who occupies the house, was at breakfast when the smoke began to issue from the basement. The fire started from a defective furnace.

Dr. Waters, who has been ill of la grippe for the last week, had to be carried from the house on a cot and is suffering considerably from the nervous shock.

The town fire department, as well as university hose cart were in service, but neither was able to throw a stream of water twenty feet. University students fought the fires as best they could, but the frame building was soon a furnace of flames. They tore the shutters from the windows and saved a few things from the kitchen.

Dean Waters lost his entire library, valued at several thousand dollars. It is said to have been the best collection of books on scientific agriculture in the West.

The building was the property of the state. Twelve thousand dollars will be necessary to replace it.
