

No End of Good Reasons

UNLESS you buy carelessly, these are a few of the features that will lead you to the I H C line when you buy a hay press. I H C presses are provided with self-feeders, eliminating dangerous foot-feeding and increasing capacity by even operation; the bale chamber is of just the right height to permit convenient tying of the bales; the bale tension and roller tucker make for uniform, compact and attractive bales; the toggle joint plunger is the most powerful and simple compressing device ever used on a hay press—though producing great pressure, it requires least power to operate.

I H C Hay Presses

cannot be surpassed in convenience, durability, simplicity, and economy of operation. They will put your loose hay into neat, compact bundles, occupying but one-fifth the former space, increasing your available barn room, and making it possible to sell your hay in distant localities at the highest market prices.

You will find three sizes, 14 x 18, 16 x 18, and 17 x 22-inch bale chamber, in the I H C hay press line, baling, at a most conservative estimate, from six to sixteen tons per day. If your choice is a horse power press, you will be interested by its special features, the pull power principle, compound leverage, and the low step-over. If you desire a motor press, study the durable power jack. Remember, too, that this is an all year round machine, for the engine may be detached and used as a regular portable power plant to run saw, pump, cream separator, churn, feed grinder, electric light plant, repair shop, etc.

Lighting Schoolrooms

Public school children's eyes are often seriously damaged by poorly lighted schoolrooms. This fact should be remembered in building school houses. Modern school architects and hygienists have worked out some definite plans to conserve eyesight, which should not be forgotten. For instance, in Northern countries, where sunlight is less prevalent than in Southern countries, rooms should have one-fourth as much window glass as there is floor space. In southern countries where the atmosphere is clear, one-sixth window glass space is sufficient. The bottom of the windows should be four feet above the floor. Windows should be as numerous as is consistent with safe construction. They should be as far back in the room as possible, and to the left of the pupils. The windows should be contained between iron or steel mullions and their edges should be rounded, to permit the ingress of light and its useful distribution, and to prevent shadows falling on the desks. As the best light comes from above, the windows should extend to the ceilings. If hills or tall buildings are close to the school, prismatic or ribbed glass should be used in the upper portions of the windows, but not in the lower portions of the windows, as too much glare is produced.

Sliding or slat blinds should not be used. They are expensive and inefficient. Use double shades, so large that chinks and light cannot enter. They should be fastened in the center of the window and should roll up or down, so that light can be admitted from either above or below. The curtains should be light green in color. Blackboards absorb much light, and should be covered by light curtains on dark days and when not in use. Teachers should be very observant of light conditions and see to it that no pupil is studying where there is not sufficient supply.

Another National Highway

A number of prominent men in the country have started an enterprise the name of which is Lincoln Memorial Highway and the road will extend from New York to San Francisco running through Pa., Ohio, Ind., Iowa, Nebr., Utah, Nevada and Calif.

The road will be built by private subscription and is estimated to cost $10,000,000.00, $5,000,000.00 of which is said to be already subscribed and the road will be of hard surface and wherever necessary, of concrete.

The projectors are some of the most prominent people in the country, among whom is C. W. Nash, pres. of the Buick Motor Company. The project will be approved by all American citizens perhaps whether it be directly beneficial to many or not, and no one can reasonably object for this route will not interfere in any way whatever with the National Highway running from Washington to San Francisco and over a more southern course. In fact, the National route from ocean to ocean is built already in excellent shape as far west as Columbus, Ohio, and will be eventually completed and be a National Highway at the National expense, whereas the Lincoln Memorial Highway will cost the government and the states nothing, and which seems to have been originated as much for a permanent memorial to the martyred president as a road over which all sorts of vehicles could travel from ocean to ocean.

The association which has the project in hand has sent out big posters with a map of the route to all automobile dealers and newspaper men and requesting the moral support of each but so far have asked for nothing else. It may be that contributions to it would be gladly received but out side of those along the route or those who wish to do honor to Lincoln there would be no particular reason for contributing, especially since in this section of the country we have expense on account of roads where the money could be placed to a much greater advantage.

Since the accidental poisoning of one or two by bi-chloride of mercury a few weeks ago, there appears to have been an epidemic of suicide with that deadly poison, caused by the impression that it is a swift and painless death. That impression is very erroneous. There are few ways death can be produced that are more painful or producing greater agony or by which the agony would be longer drawn out. It is worse than swallowing an umbrella and spreading it out or blind-folding a rattle snake and sticking him down your throat. It is worse than saturating yourself with gasoline and setting it on fire. In fact, you could scarcely devise a way more painful as a route to the other world than by swallowing sufficient quantity of corrosive sublimate.

Blackbirds Worth $400

The Federal government says every common ordinary blackbird is worth $400. At least it will cost that much for everyone killed if the federal authorities find out who killed it. The state laws usually do not protect blackbirds but the federal law places a minimum fine for the killing of any insectivorous or partially insectivorous bird. The blackbird is one of this class. Better be careful how you scare them out of the trees when they are making so much noise. Better talk softly to them as $400 is a good deal of money for such a small bunch of black feathers and poor meat.

That Cold Weather

It is getting cooler but it is no reason why one should proceed to freeze up or hibernate. The fellow whose blood flows freely, cleanly and actively will not feel like hibernating. He will feel just as much like getting in the open in the winter as summer and perhaps more so. If you want to get the benefit of winter you will have to cut out the "hibernating" idea. Winter is a season of red blood and joyous good health to those who wish to intimately cultivate her acquaintance. It takes resolution and stamina to cultivate cool weather but exercise, nourishment and the pulsing of blood that goes with exercise and deep breathing will change many a man and woman's opinion of the cold season. It is worth trying.

To Hell With 'Em

The Musket Ridge correspondent for the Dalton, Ga., Citizen writes: "Musket Ridge has voted on saloons. A prominent citizen expressed himself to me this way, 'If we are going to stand for our women folks to wear shadow and slit skirts and tight, form-fitting dresses and vulgar hobble skirts, and our younger women learning to dance the boll weevil wiggles, Texas Tommy, Tango, the bunny hug, the bear dance, the calf canter, the kangaroo kick, the buzzard love, and so on down the line, the men folks had just as well have their saloons, and the whole push go to hell together.'"

Information

The Sumner Star writes: A little poem has been going the rounds of the newspapers about "what the telephone girl knows." How about the information concealed under the village postmaster's hat? Sumner Star.

Yes, and what about the information that is concealed under the editor's hat?

The Dameron garage has at last installed the filling station for automobiles, the gasoline being pumped from a big tank into the receptacles. The tank was laid down here a month or two ago but the owners did not have time to install it until the rainy season last week stopped the automobile procession through the country for a while.
