FOR REPRESENTATIVE

HON. R. T. MOREHEAD

STATE SENATOR

DR. JOHN S. WALLACE

President Woodrow Wilson says: "The best thing to do with anything that is crooked is to lift it up so that the people can see that it is crooked."

Have you investigated the legislative candidate for the senate? Perhaps a thorough or even partial knowledge of his great accomplishments during his two terms might strengthen your purpose to vote for him.

Our challenge to John D. Taylor has not, so far, been accepted. We reiterate and repeat it. There is no better way under Heaven and among men to settle the question for the information of the public as to which is worthy of belief.

The magnificent bejeweled, be-ribboned and priceless two handed sword presented to John D. Taylor by his fellow representatives for his great achievements and which he so proudly displayed on the inner wall of his office for a long time, is not waived triumphantly as a trophy before the voters and its acquirement explained. Why?

John D. Taylor, candidate for the state senate, introduced a bill in the house while he was representative from this county, which provided that every one, man or woman, before he or she should be allowed to take a drink, should first procure a license to do so, and any bartender or other person selling or supplying a drink to any one not having the license tag in full view, should be subject to severe penalties. Just what would happen to the drinker—oh well—

Jno. D. Taylor and his official organ have decided the suit brot against the senior editor of the Courier, prior to the trial. It is their way, apologies and explanations after losing out. Is there a man woman or child, candidate for state senator, editor of his official organ or any other interested or disinterested party who believes that the opposition of the Courier is to be accounted for on that score? Is it not the only reason so far alleged by the candidate or his official organ? The Courier believes that it is its duty to let its readers know if the character of an aspirant for office is such that knowing it they would not support him, and in the public interest, it will continue to do so. No private or personal matters will be aired thru its columns, but what ever appears to be for the public good will be given space, and our readers may always rely upon it that whatever we say has positive foundation in fact and can be supported by the records or evidence equally as good.

Called Down the Cherubs

The people on the chautauqua program and the manager of the chautauqua have had occasion very frequently to "call down" the local cherubs for disorderly behavior. The conduct of the boys and girls, especially the boy has been annoying to the speakers and audience alike. Some people were a little miffed that the speakers found it necessary to call down the children who, if given a little more handling at home, might conduct themselves a little more creditably in public.

Saturday night about half after ten o'clock the fire whistle blew calling out the department to subdue a blaze in the home of Forest Lee. The fire was soon under control and the loss small. The streets were full of people and soon a big crowd had gathered, but it melted away when the fire was out.

"Farmer" Jones failed to fill his appointment here Saturday night, being unable to get here from Paris where he was billed to speak in the afternoon. J. H. Whitecotton was present and spoke a few words of explanation.

A little before one o'clock, Monday morning fire was discovered in the grocery store of Mason and Horton by Dave McAdams who was passing and gave the alarm. Prompt action on the part of T. A. LaGrass who lives above the store saved the stock and perhaps the whole block. Damage to stock by water and smoke considerable, but hard to estimate until invoice is made. The fire started where the matches are kept and may have the work of rats or mice. The counter and shelving were damaged somewhat, but the loss in this direction will be small. Loss covered by insurance.

Mrs. Hannah Moore left Sunday afternoon in company of her physician for Rochester, Minn., to consult Mayo Brothers about her condition. The hopes and prayers of the whole town go with her that she may be restored to health.

Rev. Shadwick announced Sunday night that music will be made a special feature at Methodist church during the heated term and invited men to worship without their coats, if they so desired—two good suggestions.

Tom Tudor left Monday for Cocomo, Ind., to visit a sister and will be gone some time.

Chas. Shire Jr. and wife left on the midnight train Monday to be present at the operation on Mrs. Hannah Moore for cancer, a telegram having been received that an operation would be undertaken.

The well at the ice plant has completed and work on the building will be pushed to a rapid completion.

The writer is indebted to J. W. Ingram for a delightful car ride to Mendon and return Tuesday afternoon. Joe never does anything by halves, as those who go out with him can testify. On the way home he ran out from under his cap, but did not stop to pick it up—thanks, Joe. Do it again.

During the storm Wednesday night, many limbs of trees were broken off about town, and corn in some fields laid flat.

Mrs. Joe Gunn visited relative in and near Keytesville the latter part of the week remaining over Sunday.

Mrs. Chas. Wesner of Novinger, Mo. with her girl is here on a visit.

Why Not Draw Trade?

Don't forget that advertising is the life of business. Other firms that get your trade do it by the drawing power of advertising. Why not retain your trade the same way, and get more by reaching out for it? You may have a bright light but hiding it under a bushel helps no one to arrive at your place of business.

John Seitz Dead

John Seitz of Triplett died at some place in Minnesota Sunday last and the remains were brought to Triplett Tuesday for burial.
