Reed, a woman of domestic habits and was highly esteemed and respected by all who knew her. She leaves a husband and two daughters, Mrs. R. A. Horton and Mrs.

Tom Brockman who have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. Remains laid to rest in city cemetery after appropriate funeral ceremonies.

In spite of threatening weather, a great crowd assembled at the Christian church Sunday night to witness the Children's Day exercises and was well repaid for so doing. The little fellows did themselves proud and received much applause. The offering was prompt and generous.

The general consensus of opinion of all our people who attended is that Keytesville did herself proud at the unveiling ceremonies last Thursday. A record breaking crowd, a sumptuous feast, a blow of oratory, a social love feast, a window smashing salute, and a surtout ensemble, as the Frenchman would say, that surpassed all efforts in this county for the last thirty five years, makes the occasion an epoch in the annals of old Chariton. We lift our hat.

A wagon scale has been erected on Broadway in front of the Hayes Lumber yard. So far as we know this is the first scale ever put up in Broadway and we hope they won't become common on this great thorough fare.

To Revive Brooklyn

Al Jennings is to be given a chance to revive Brooklyn in a religious way. Sunday is said to have sides-tepped the town but Jennings believes he could put the message of regeneration across. The Summer Avenue Baptist church gave him the job. That Jennings will tackle it with the whole soul of a physically small but auburn-headed man, is no question. His coming back into the ranks of men by the exercises of tremendous will power and his still heavy fight to overcome public prejudice qualify him to take on the possibilities of a man overcoming his inherent evil by will power and the help of a high power than his will, in the face of tremendous odds.
