

New Macey Book Cabinet Radiates Taste and Beauty In My Home

In furniture art, as in painting, literature and music, there were great masters.

Painting had its Michael Angelo—furniture its Chippendale. Literature had its Shakespeare—furniture its Fra Junipero. Music had its Mozart—furniture its Sheraton.

Chippendale, who lived in the 17th century, designed furniture of such beauty and exquisite taste that the whole world has copied it for three centuries.

Fra Junipero, a great nature, bold and rugged, originated the clean-cut arts-and-crafts furniture. He loved honest strength and made his furniture show its solid joints and honest workmanship.

Sheraton, on the contrary, had a nature full of symmetry, balance, harmony. He could not tell us about it on canvas or on paper. He could tell us of his fine, sensitive personality only by shaping it in mahogany.

Therefore, when you have Sheraton, Chippendale or Arts-and-Crafts furniture in your home, you have furniture that is constantly telling you of taste and beauty. It is almost the same as associating with the great masters themselves.

That's why we say: "To set before your children a Macey Book Cabinet of old master design is to set before them an example of good taste that they will feel its refining influence throughout all the days of their lives."

Macey Book Cabinets are sectional, but they are the only sectional bookcases that can be added to upwards or sideways and still look not like sectional bookcases but like heirloom furniture.

If you really wish to put into your home a piece of furniture that will always radiate beauty and refining influence, examine a Macey Old Master Book Cabinet today.

DENMARK.

The Danish crops turned out rather better than was expected. The barley crop is the poorest. But the oats and the wheat are good. The rye crop varies with the different kinds of soil.

"Brother Ansgar," a Dane who fled from a monastery in Scotland, held a meeting in Copenhagen, at which he spoke strong words against monastic life. Some Catholics attended the meeting, and a war of words followed. "Brother Ansgar" talk. A Catholic, the poet Jorgensen, snally asked his comrades to leave the meeting.

Things are very apt to disappear from the Drachmann museum at Skagen. No object was lighter than the poet's penholder. But the managers were equal to the occasion. As soon as a penholder was gone they put a new one in its place, and now there are about 500 persons who can boast that they are in possession of Holger Drachmann's penholder!

The Danes are having trouble with their paper money. The 50 and the 100 kroner bills are so much alike that the one is apt to be mistaken for the other. Bankers are supposed to be more careful than other people in handling money. But even at a bank a 50 kroner bill was accepted for one of 100 kroner. And the 100 kroner bills are so stiff that softer ones are demanded by the business people.

Some boys made a rich antiquarian find in a garden at Terslev. There was a necklace three feet long, a thick gold wire, a neck chain four feet long, many bracelets, two silver bowls, parts of ornaments, a dagger with a silver chain, and about 500 silver coins of different kinds. The coins are said to date from the time of Sven Forked-Beard. Representatives from the National Museum were sent to the place at once.

SWEDEN.

Three Danish theaters are going to present dramas by August Strindberg during the coming season.

The total exports of lingons (small red berries) are said to be only one-twentieth of the exports for 1910.

The price of butter is soaring so high that the common people begin to look around for artificial butter.

The prices of tickets to the Olympic games in Stockholm next summer will range from 50 cents to five dollars.

The steamer Viking returned with Hogbom's expedition from Spitzbergen. The cargo consisted of 100 tons of coal and 100 tons of plaster of Paris.

The Swedish shipowners have raised the wages of their men $1.35 a month largely because the wages of the seamen of the neighboring nations have been raised.

The Varends wood works at Hulvik, Smaland, were destroyed by fire. Valuable stocks on hand were also reduced to ashes. The insurance on the property was $25,000.

The wife of a confectioner at Boras is subject to epileptic fits. Her husband tried to get a divorce on this ground, but the national board of health refused to grant his petition.

No applications have been received for the positions of instructors in Swedish, German and English at the co-educational school in Haparanda, and of instructors in chemistry and biology at the Hudikvalv high school.

No less than 400 different parties bought lingons (small red berries) in northern Sweden, and although the crop was light the price was so high that experts in handling the picking machine could make as much as $10 a day.

The first military flying machine to carry passengers in Sweden was a Blériot machine at the Ljungbyhed military grounds. Lieutenant Dahlbeck made fourteen successful trips in one day, and on four of these he carried two passengers.

The production of gold and silver is going down from year to year. Ten years ago Sweden produced almost 200 pounds of gold, but last year the production was less than four pounds. The production of silver for the year 1910 was about 60 pounds.

The Southern Swedish Power company has issued new bonds for $800,000, to be redeemed between the years 1916 and 1935, and convertible in 1921. Security was furnished by the cities of Malmö, Lund, Landskrona, Helsingborg and Halmstad.

The Swedish government will have to pay almost $3,000 in damages to persons who were to furnish horses and provisions for the maneuvers which were to take place in Ostergotland, but which had to be abandoned on account of the prevalence of infantile paralysis in that section of the country.

A most extraordinary freak of a calf was born at Klippan, Skane. It had no upper jaws, and for nostrils it had only one hole. The left eye was located in the middle of the cheek. The front legs terminated at the knees, and the hind legs at the lower joint.

Two Mormon missionaries who had been preaching in Jamtland were ordered by the government to leave the country within 48 hours or run the risk of being expelled. This step is taken to mean that the government is at last going to check the Mormon propaganda in Sweden.

The Helsingborg and Malmöholm Railway company has issued new bonds for $500,000, which are to draw 5 per cent interest.

A stock company has been organized in Stockholm for operating steaming vessels. A part of the scheme is to take young Swedes on long voyages in order that they may become practical seamen.

Three new cases of infantile paralysis occurred in one day in Svarta parish, Jonkoping lan. The public schools of the city of Sunavall have been closed on account of the same disease. On account of a new case at the Malmstätt drill grounds, a whole company was shut off from the outer world. Tents were pitched for the men in Lagerlunda forest, where they board all by themselves. Six new cases were reported in Stockholm in two days, and the whole number for that city is 90. It is pointed out that this is a small number out of a total population of 350,000. The cause of the spreading of the disease is still a puzzle to the medical profession.

Somebody in Stockholm claims to have discovered the real root of the infantile paralysis pest. He says that there is too little phosphoric acid in the vegetables eaten by those who are attacked, and this lack of phosphoric acid is in turn due to the excessively hot and dry weather. In support of his theory he points out that the people living near the sea have not suffered so much as the people in the rural districts; the former eat more fish than the latter, and fish contains much more phosphoric acid than vegetable foods; therefore, the amount of phosphoric acid consumed determines the prevalence of or the immunity from infantile paralysis. The medical profession is slow to accept this theory, however.

NORWAY.

A fisherman at Merten caught a six-foot swordfish in his nets. The sword was two feet long.

Normandsforbundet, a world-wide Norwegian association, has recently received many new members in Africa.

The Norwegian-American Steamship company has asked for bids for the construction of a steamer of 11,000 tons. It is to be 301 feet long, and must develop a minimum speed of 15 knots.

About 700 graduates from the agricultural college (and its predecessor, the Aas agricultural college) are now engaged as farmers, forest wardens, gardeners, dairymen, etc., in different parts of the country.

Thorger Andresen, of Larvik, has been permitted to hunt whales along the coast of Mozambique, and a stock company has been organized with a capital of $200,000 for the purpose of taking advantage of this chance. The company will make a start with two new whaling steamers.

Alfred, Me. Oct. 3.—The will of the late Mrs. Ole Bull Vaughn, daughter of the late Norwegian violinist, Ole Bull, was filed yesterday with Judge Hobbs of the York county probate court. The bulk of the estate, which is believed to be worth half a million dollars, is bequeathed to Sylva Bull Vaughn, a minor, and adopted daughter of Mrs. Vaughn. Dorothy Shapleigh and David Miller, two children who had been under Mrs. Vaughn's care, received $25,000 each. To the "Ole Bull Fund committee" of Bergen, Norway, is left a fund yielding an annual income of $20,000 for preserving, maintaining and making improvements upon Lyseon, Norway, the home of Ole Bull.

Captain Sagen, who had trouble with his soldiers at Forstadme, has again placed himself before the eyes of the public. He wrote a letter to the king, and just after he had sent it he read it to his company. He petitioned the king to dismiss the company on account of the impending courtmartial. Not only the soldiers, but the entire population of Gudbrandsdalen look upon the action of the government as an insult. The people of that part of Norway are a proud set, still remembering that they licked a Scotch army 300 years ago. The soldiers would also like to go home to tend the fall work on their farms. The petition was written in dialect Norwegian, and part of it reads as follows: "I ask you, Mr. King, to save the Twelfth company from the disgrace of being treated as captives of war in their own country and being guarded by their own comrades holding guns with loaded cartridges." After the reading of the letter every soldier in the company gave his word of honor that he would remain on the grounds as long as the courtmartial was in session. The Twelfth company and a guard company are the only soldiers at Forstadme that were not dismissed as usual.

Bishop Erichsen, of Bergen, has refused to ordain a theological candidate until he shall give an affirmative answer to the question whether he believes in the virgin birth of Christ. This is a new case of its kind in Norway, and if the matter is carried to extremes it may cause much unpleasant fuss.

The grain crop was both large and fine in Hallingdal, but the potatoes were simply miserable—that is, where there were any potatoes at all. Game is plentiful this season, and there are more hunters in the valley than ever before.
