STATE FAIR IN ADVERTISING
A GREAT MEDIUM FOR GIVING PUBLICITY ALL OVER THE COUNTRY.

Personal Attendance and by Sending Exhibits the Way to Build Up a Big Exposition.

A state fair has come to be recognized as one of the best advertising mediums for the agricultural and industrial interests which a state can possess.

But in order that the state may receive the proper amount of benefit which comes from this source, it is necessary that every one interested in its development should lend their active aid and assistance. This can be done in two ways, one, by the personal attendance, another, by sending exhibits to some department.

The most difficult thing, for the managers of a state fair in a young and partially developed state, is to be able to persuade, enough people connected with any industry, of the fact that they are producing something worthy of being placed in exhibition. There has never been a fair yet held, but some visitor in looking over a certain line of exhibits, will say, "why I have something which beats any of those at home," and the statement often times is true, but rather unfortunately, the choice article is "at home" when it ought to be a part of the exhibit. This condition can only be remedied, by every community looking around over its products, and picking out certain ones, which in the judgment of some of its citizens, are worthy of being placed on exhibition, as representing the interests of that community.

There is no state in the union which has a greater variety of natural and farm products, than has North Dakota, could the people be persuaded to send a sufficient number of specimens to the fair, we would have an exhibit, second to none in the country and North Dakota would quickly become the best advertised state in the union. Therefore, the management is anxious to impress upon the mind of each citizen that they in their capacity as managers are only servants of the general public and that unless every individual citizen will cooperate with them in sending in every exhibit which they can secure, the fair will not be the success which it ought to be, and the state will not receive the advantage to which it is entitled from its being held. For that reason they wish to emphasize the importance to each individual of sending in everything they can for the purpose of swelling the volume of the exhibits.

After having sent the exhibits, the next thing is to come and see how they look. If you have sent along an exhibit, you will know that there will be at least one thing at the fair worthy of being seen. Then come along, and see it, and see how it compares with the other things of the same class, which are displayed. In addition to coming yourself, endeavor to get all of your friends to do likewise. Remember that every entrance fee paid goes just that far toward the giving of larger and more deserving prizes for exhibits, and for amusement to entertain the public. In other words, an entrance fee is simply a contribution to a revolving fund. You pay your money at the gate, to the management, the management pays it out for exhibits, and amusements, the more money paid in, the larger prizes can be awarded, and the better amusements procured. The larger the prizes can be awarded, the better the exhibits, the better the attendance. Simply an endless chain beginning first with an admission fee.

The citizens of the state of North Dakota are true and loyal to their institutions, for that reason the management of the State Fair make a personal appeal to them for their support and assistance. A large amount of money will be spent for your instruction and entertainment, and we extend our most cordial invitation to you to come and partake of the good things which are provided, resting assured, that your coming will not only assist in making this fair better, but will provide means from which come better things in the future.

An attendance is only a little thing for one person, but if each one will try and contribute that little thing, the accumulation of them will make the North Dakota State Fair the biggest and best in the union. So do your part and let others will be more likely to do theirs. Remember it is "up to you" whether the Fair of 1912 is going to be a success or a failure.

RACES BETWEEN TWO BIRD MEN

BIPLANE AND MONOPLANE WILL BE AT FARGO STATE FAIR.

Jimmy Ward and George Mesach demonstrate in the Air What Can Be Done in War.

Ever see an aviation race or meet? If you haven't and want to see the most thrilling thing that ever took place in the state of North Dakota, be at the state fair during the week of July 22, in the city of Fargo.

At a huge expense Jimmy Ward, the famous birdman, who carried the letter for General Grant, driving his fifty horse power Curtiss biplane, Shooting Star, and George Mesach, the great French aviator of international reputation, who carried a letter for Postmaster General Hitchcock, have been secured and will drive his Borel-Mathis monoplane in a wild ride to show the superiority over the other machine if he can do so. This will be a thriller so far as races go.

These two great birdmen are licensed and have all of the tricks of the business. They will give a demonstration here while hundreds of feet in the air of the use to which the airships will be placed in time of war.

They expect to show how possible it is to drop from the clouds great bombs that would almost annihilate an army. They will fill their gas tanks and go 2,000 or 3,000 feet in the air, and then glide down to earth again as gently as a bird. They will do all the jigs of death, and give such a demonstration as was never seen in the northwest before.

These two men have the reputation of being the most daring of all the birdmen, and as they are looking for engagements in the northwest they will do their best to please here.

There will be a race between the two. One of the machines is known as the biplane and the other as a monoplane, so that it will give the people an opportunity of seeing the two types of machine in action.

According to the contract with the companies that are supplying the machines the people will have an opportunity of getting close to the airships while they are on the ground, so as to get the very best possible idea of all their working parts, and there will be a constant attendant at their tents to explain all about them to whoever may desire to know.

This is something that is well worth coming miles to see and after the first day the two birdmen will ascend two or three times each day.

FARM MACHINERY EXHIBIT.

Every 'new Wrinkle for the Farmer Will Be on Display.

The farmers of North Dakota are the greatest users of farm machinery in their operations in this country and every manufacturer of tools and implements to be used by the farmer is anxious to exhibit his product at the state fair. From the number of inquiries already received at the state fair, it is a sure thing that the machinery exhibit this year will be the largest and best ever shown in the state. In fact it seems now as if the Machinery hall will be totally inadequate to accommodate the smaller machines offered for inspection to say nothing of the plows, harrows, separators, tractors, trucks and the thousand and one implements made necessary by diversified farming.

Every farmer should attend the fair in order to see himself on what machinery will best aid him in getting the largest returns from the soil he tills. Every year new machines are brought out and the visitor to the state fair this year will find many wonderful inventions in the farm machinery line awaiting his inspection.

CARNIVAL CO. FOR STATE FAIR

THE CELEBRATED BARKOOT AGREGATION OF 25 CARS COMING TO FARGO.

HERE WEEK OF JULY 22

It Embraces Scores of Marvelous Attractions United Together for Furnishing Amusements to People.

When the management of the North Dakota state fair, which takes place in Fargo this year, was looking about to find the biggest and best carnival company for an appearance at the fair, it searched no further when it was found that the great Barkoot shows had an open date for the week of July 22, the week of the fair and this company has been secured, because of its many and varied attractions.

It takes twenty-five cars to haul the big show from city to city and Fargo is one of the smallest cities that the attraction will appear in this season. It is a conglomeration of circus, side-show, streets of Cairo, museum and hippodrome all in one, and carries two full brass bands and two other musical organizations. Then, too, it has a well organized minstrel show that gives performances afternoons and evenings on the fair grounds.

Man, woman and child is interested in the animal life and particularly wild animals. The Barkoot company has a well equipped menagerie, which contains some of the finest trained animals that were ever seen in any show that has ever appeared in Fargo. They have elephants, gigantic beasts, that do almost everything but talk. There are the blood thirsty lions, which by human kindness have been made to perform tricks and which are gentle as kittens, but there is one old male lion that never can be tamed and it is kept by the company to show the lesson of what an obstinate will may do even in a beast. There is the laughing hyena, known in central Africa, as the grave digger from its love of dead bodies; there is the den of black African panthers and leopards, in the same cage performing their act, and there is something that is a new cage of monkeys, which will be exhibited by the company for the first time this season. These monkeys were received recently from South America and Asia, and the management is endeavoring to show in this cage the different types of monkey life and its close resemblance to the human species. During the time in the animal tent there will be a well informed lecture, which will give a description of the different animals, their habits and how they are taken for exhibition purposes.

It is the desire of the Barkoot people to make this part of the state fair one that will appeal to every class.
