THE HOME CIRCLE COLUMN THE OLD HOME

The old home stands serene and staunch as in the days of yore, But gone are all the voices, and the welcome at the door.

No footprints mark the paths within its garden desolate, Today 'tis memory takes my hand and leads me thru the gate.

Till in my fancy blooms again the garden row on row, The larkspur and the marigold—sweet flowers of long ago—

The roses grow beside the wall as in forgotten June, The iris and the lavender distill their rich perfumes,

The while I picture other days, and shadowy forms appear, Dream faces smile 'mid candle light, and sweet old songs I hear.

The bride upon her wedding day comes softly down the stair, An old man dreams of youth within his fireside chair.

The picture changes and a boy with manhood in his eyes, Goes forth to seek his fortune—oh the years that make us wise!

Dear house, long since is stillness left—today you seem to wait To welcome home the boy again, grown now to man's estate—

I pick a rose beside the door in tender reverie, Thankful for all the past holds dear in precious memory.

—Esther Trowbridge Catlin.

There is no more unfortunate thing than loveless marriage. The sacred relationship is only hallowed by affection, and without love it is worse than mockery—truly the irony of fate. But let the unloving and the unloved be very sure that a worse fate does not await them before taking radical steps to change their condition. There are few wives who will not respond to attentions prompted by a self-sacrificing spirit, and it is an easy matter to repay devotion in kind. Few husbands but are susceptible to sweet and gentle influences, when the guiding spirit is the one whom they promised to "love, honor and protect," the mother of their children.

ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN

Don't mistake notoriety for fame.

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

Torestore that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equaled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.

If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

Don't let others spend the money you earn.

Don't do work unworthy of you if you can avoid it.

Don't say "I am a gentleman;" it is never necessary.

Be loyal to death to those who have befriended you.

When you assist the needy, don't do it ostentatiously.

Silence is the best weapon to use against a vulgar and spiteful tongue.

In ninety-nine cases in a hundred the man you wish dead outlives you.

Don't introduce a lady's name where you wouldn't introduce the lady.

Don't count much on friendships formed in cafes. They never turn out well.

Remember impertinence isn't wit, any more than insolence is brilliancy.

If young men will not believe in themselves, no man or woman can believe in them.

Don't indulge in the luxury of strong opinions in the presence of your elders and betters.

If you haven't the moral courage to laugh at sneerers, then you are another of nature's mistakes.

Don't talk about what you are going to do, then, if you fail to accomplish it, nobody will know.

If you learn that people say spiteful, wicked things about you, and untruthful things that are silent.

It isn't a very nice thing for a young man, or anyone for that matter, to smile, in a superior way at ignorance.

Do not be afraid to go near your enemy. The nearer you get to a kicking horse, the less damage is done to your person.

Courtesies are indications of refinement and costing nothing, they help to make the wheels of life move more smoothly.

It is not an elaborate attempt at politeness that true gentility consists in; it is the simple homes expression of the genuine feelings of welfare of others. Our company politeness is generally superficial, because we are little or nothing to those we try to be polite to; but if we are interested in those at home and are anxious to make their lives pleasant, we will endeavor to give expression to that interest, and in doing that we will be doing really polite thing, for such things can not be expressed in an impolite way. The cultivation of this expression will be the best possible education in true politeness.

When awake, very small children should never be left alone.

Teach your daughter how to wear a calico dress and do it like a queen.

When a woman sets her teeth you man generally make up your mind there is trouble hatching.

When a woman can wash flannels so that they will not shrink, she knows enough to get married.

A woman can say more with a few tears than a man can express in a book.

Men are often found at places of amusement spending time in loafing, when they might find profitable employment at home, and be making themselves useful, if not ornamental at the same time, they would stand higher in the estimation of their wives and everyone else.

BRAIN FAG AND WAR

"Modern man is a top heavy being whose brain is disproportionately superior to his other organs," says the New York Medical Journal, and then goes to prove that the war in Europe is the result of brain fag. The Journal believes that the stress and hard mental work of this age tended inevitably to the reassertion of the primitive impulses. Something had to snap, and when it did the result was the war.

Other nations accuse Americans of living too fast. But they do not see that we combine pleasure with work to such a degree that, if we don't let down on the play, we are apt to remain normal human beings. For instance, the tired business man takes a couple of hours from the office and goes to the ball grounds, where he yells like a Comanche Indian, howls like a steam siren, cusses the visiting team and throws pop-bottles at the umpire. The women relieve the tension of modern life by dancing, or motoring, or strenuous physical exercise of the golf course or tennis courts. The use of tobacco is man's first aid toward relief. It is said that the sudden stoppage of drugs would result inevitably in a nation-wide irascibility that would result in a possible social upheaval. American men work hard and live fast. It is better they should find relief in harmless amusements and stimulants than to go on until something snaps and the result is a war.

SCHOOL PUPIL'S SAVINGS

The constant drive for "thrif," is having effect not only among the older people, but among school children, as seen by the report of sixty-one savings banks formed in as many Chicago public schools last year. The report shows that 13,638 children saved $27,115.94, and of this amount $11,200.90 has been transferred to regular banks. Six pupils of the seventh and eighth grades conducted the banks. Any sum from five cents up may be deposited, and as soon as a pupil's account amounts to $5.00 it is transferred to a regular bank and an account with the pupil is opened. It is reasonable to suppose that rural schools will adopt the teaching of thrif as a subsidiary course. The money could be deposited in the local banks in savings departments to pay three or three and one-half per cent interest. When the account amounts to $25, it could be withdrawn and a $100 bond paying four and a half or five per cent could be bought. Many reputable bond houses will sell a hundred dollar bond on the installment plan, paying the amount of interest on the amount deposited until the face value of the bond is paid in full.

THE HOME TOWN BARD

If Homer sang of ancient Troy, shouldn't I sing of my home town? Why shouldn't I praise my home town? If other bards of stately Aome have sung in unforgetten verse, why shouldn't I boost my home town in poetry that might be worse? Troy was all right; her walls were good, and save for Grecian craft and guile that made a hobby horse of wood, might have held out a little while. Rome, straggling over seven hills (to climb which must have been some task) didn't begin to have the mills that our town has, if you should ask. Both Troy and Rome have had their day (the latter place was set afire by their pump and glory zone the way of hapless Ninevah and Tyre. Our town is young, but growing fast; its opportunities excel, and though we have no storied past, the future will our story tell. Though, too, no Coliseum grand have we, nor Circus Maximus, our Opera House and home town band are plenty good enough for us. Athens had her Acropolis; it couldn't have been more imposing than our new County Court House is, as I might emphasize in closing. The center of a farming belt, the very richest in the state, 'tis here prosperity is felt; our market is a goldengate; and lest you think that I distort the facts in flowing verse—Just wait—Here is the last census report; you'll find it don't exaggerate.
