

SHERIFF KNOCKED TO THE GROUND

by a Desperate Prisoner, Mayville, Who Nearly Escaped in the Alleys—Lee Regains His Self-Possession, and in a Thrilling Race Catches Up with the Prisoner, Who Is Returned to Jail and Tied Up by the Hands.

Mayville, the fellow who passed a stolen check for $47 on W. Rheigart, made a desperate attempt to get away from Sheriff Lee late this afternoon, just as of town's furniture store. Caught the sheriff unawares and knocked him to the ground with a blow between the eyes with his strong fist. He then ran down the alley north and over a pile of stones back of even & Hanson's store, against a firm's delivery team. The sheriff caught up with him and cried, "Hold up your hands!" Mayville quickly complied with a demand. Many a sheriff could not have given such a prisoner a chance for his life. Mayville later thanked the sheriff that he had spared his life. Ungkin and H. Rayercraft, two Mr. Rowan's employees, ran the sheriff's assistance and a man was returned to the jail, was stretched up by his hands several hours, and will long remember how he did not get away from Mr. Lee.

That Mr. Lee was dealt a terrific blow was evidenced by the stream of blood that flowed freely from the gash. Mr. Lee visited a surgeon and the wound was dressed.

Mayville was sentenced to ten days in the county jail on the charge of vagrancy and today his term had expired. He was taken from the jail by a deputy and given over into the custody of the sheriff, when he was rearrested on another charge, that of grand larceny. He was taken to Judge Goss' chambers, where his bonds were placed at $2,500, and the prisoner induced Mr. Lee to accompany him to Greenleaf & Leighton's office, where he hoped to make arrangements for his bond. Not securing the bond, he was being taken back to jail when he attempted to get away.

Mr. Lee has been very lenient with the prisoners as a rule, but hereafter will allow no prisoner to walk on the streets without being securely handcuffed.

Great Results Sometimes Spring from Small Beginnings.

"The longer I live," observed the cashier of a bank down town, "the more I realize the importance of little things. Here is a case in point," he continued, referring to a letter he just had received. "A few weeks ago I had two callers in my office, one an excitable, elderly man, a big depositor, and the other the president of a manufacturing concern and the writer of this letter. This manufacturer left, and soon afterward the excitable man discovered that some one had taken his hat. He stormed about the place until one of the clerks suggested that perhaps the manufacturer had taken it by mistake. The excitable man demanded his address and started out to hunt him down and give him a piece of his mind."

"The other day I read a letter from the manufacturing concern and was astonished to see among the names of its officers that of my excitable caller as vice president. My curiosity was aroused and I made some inquiries. Now I learn that the excitable man was so pleasantly received when he called for his hat that his anger cooled at once. Then he got to talking about the manufacturer's business and the money he was making. A few days later he invested heavily in the concern and was elected its vice president. And all because of that little mistake about a hat."—New York Press.

TWENTY YEARS IN KOREA.

Wife of American Minister Allen Has Had Long Stay There.

Mrs. Horace N. Allen, wife of the American minister to Korea, has lived for nearly twenty years in that section of the orient, which is now so prominently before the world. Mrs. Allen was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university at Delaware, O. (Mr. Allen's home), with her husband, and shortly after went to the far east with him when he first became interested in the orient as medical missionary for the Presbyterian church in China. This was in 1884, five years before the legation was established. She was related to the late President Hayes, Mr. Allen being a descendant of Ethan Allen of Ticonderoga fame. They had two sons, one of whom was born in Korea, the other in China.

Where Our Presidents Are Buried.

The strangest thing, perhaps, in the history of Washington is that not one of the dead presidents of the republic is buried there. The majority of them sleep in town or city cemeteries near the homes from which they came to the White House. The fact that none of the tombs of the presidents is in Washington is explicable when it is considered that none of them have made their homes in Washington after going out of office.

Another strange fact is that only two cemeteries hold the bodies of more than one of the presidents. John Adams and John Quincy Adams both lie in the Congressional burying ground in Quincy, Mass., and Tyler and Monroe lie in Hollywood cemetery, in Richmond. Five of the presidents were buried in Virginia, four each in Ohio and New York, three in Tennessee, two in Massachusetts, and one each in New Hampshire, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Indiana and Illinois.

A Corn Cutter Who Got Rich.

Not so very long ago there lived in London, Eng., a cutter of corns. Everybody knew him—old Wolf, the Jew. He did not aspire to the title of chiropodist—simply a cutter of corns. More than a thousand clients paid him three guineas a year. One of them was an archbishop who, while he submitted a painful corn to the razor, plied his persuasive tongue upon the cutter. Here was a Jew to be converted. "Sir, if you will go on talking, I shall cut you," was the only response of Shylock. "If I make you bleed, you'll die," was another grim way he had of silencing clients. In his dingy old room, patronized by all the lions of the Stock Exchange, and everybody who was anybody with a corn, he piled up a fortune of over six figures, and was still coming money up to the date of his death at the age of 84.

The Greater Love.

The bee that alps her sweets from flowers fair, flying on careless wing now here, now there, With azure skies above, green sward below, And soft south-wind to bear her to and fro, Might seem the soul of self-devoted ease. Her life a draught of nectar without less. Not so! Her prime is full of strenuous deed. That shames our own in generous mood. Of work for others' good. Long summer days She builds her golden house, with guerdons strews. Her queen, uprears her young, and stores her food. Then sudden shuns her wealth, her home, her brood, And seeks new haven on an unknown sea, leaving her life-work to posterity. —Henry Hoyt Moore.

WHY LEAVES CHANGE COLOR.

Chemical Elements Produce the Hue We All Know.

A leaf is composed of a great number of cells, the walls of which are brown. In the spring and summer these cells are all filled with fluid, colored with minute grains of red, yellow and other pigments, which, mixed together, appear green. In the autumn, through the cold, oxidation and other changes take place in the leaf cells, destroying more or less rapidly certain of the color elements. As soon as one of these elements is gone the leaf no longer appears a normal green, but assumes the shade of the remainder of the color elements mixed together. When only the red element is left the leaf is red; when the yellow alone remains the leaf is yellow; and when all the coloring matter has gone the leaf is brown. Frost is not the sole cause of the changes of color, but it is an important cause. The more gradual the changes of temperature from summer heat to winter cold, the greater will be the variety and brilliancy in the colorings of the autumn leaves.—Woman's Home Companion.

World's Population.

According to an exhaustive statistical work by a German, the population of the world to-day is 1,803,300,000.

Foreigners in France.

According to a French contemporary, France gives hospitality to 1,230,211 foreigners, of whom 1,200,000 are Europeans, while there are only 520,000 French people abroad, and 218,000 of that number in Europe. There are 468,300 Belgians in France, while the Italians on French soil number 287,643, against 12,000 French in Italy. There are exactly 60,000 more Germans in France than French in Germany. There are further 77,000 Spaniards, 54,000 Swiss and 68,000 Russians in France.

Novel Funeral Instructions.

Curious instructions as to the manner of her burying were left behind by an old lady at Stockport, England. Her funeral, she directed, should be attended by six of the best-horsed coaches Stockport could provide, and another direction was that, after the interment, the funeral party should repair to the best Tory hostelry in Oldham there to be served with the best repast the house could afford, which was to be supplied by a Tory landlord and served by Tory waiters.

"Tollit" for Horses.

A beauty hospital for horses has been established in Europe. Here horses have their coats electrically massaged, their hoofs manicured, and their teeth filled and whitened; and are they learn to stand properly and move in all the fashionable gait. Probably the most interesting and novel operation to witness is the electrical massaging of a horse's coat. This has the same effect on the coat as a horse as on the scalp of a man; it makes the hair thick and fine and glossy, and, where the skin has been rubbed bare, it brings on a new growth.

Uncle Sam's Rolling Stock.

Uncle Sam's passenger rolling stock will make a solid train 500 miles long.

Welshman Before Johnson.

Dr. Johnson, even excepting his predecessor, Bailey, was not the father of lexicographers. In the latest volume issued by the historical manuscripts commission on manuscripts in the Welsh language, it is stated that the idea of illustrating the meaning and correct use of words by actual quotations from the literature of a living language seems to have been first put in practice by Griffith Jones, the herald bard of Wales, who died in 1544.

Catching Fish With Mirrors.

In France a novel method of catching fish is being tested by anglers. A tiny mirror is attached to the line near the baited hook. The assumption is that a fish, when it sees itself in the mirror, will conclude that some other fish is trying to carry off the bait, and will make haste to secure the tempting morsel for itself, the result being that it will speedily be caught on the relentless hook. From experiments which have been made there seems to be some foundation for this assumption. At any rate, some anglers say that they catch more fish when they use the little mirror than they ever caught before.

Novel Court Decision.

During the severe earthquake in Guatemala, April 19, 1902, a certain block of buildings was destroyed. It was insured against fire, but not, as was stipulated in the policy, against fire occasioned by an earthquake, and in this case the fire which destroyed the buildings and the shock were almost simultaneous. The owners of the property claimed that its destruction was caused by the overthrowing of a lamp immediately before the earthquake, and thus in the end the legal decision was made to hinge on the exact time when various cities on the line of movement were wrecked. Timing an earthquake by a court decision is a novel idea.

The way of the transgressor is frequently paved with gold bricks.

Ships Coal to Sweden.

Two or three years ago the Dominion Coal company of Sydney, Nova Scotia, shipped a cargo of coal to Sweden to be used as an experiment on government railways. The experiment proved such a big success that the company now ships some 25,000 or 30,000 tons annually for general consumption in Sweden. This year the company is to make a further experiment in the foreign market by sending some of its product to Mexico to be tested on the government railway there.

Kills Insects by Electricity.

Recently in a paper read before a technical society at Odessa, Mr. Lukaszewski described a way of killing the young of insects in fields by electricity. A dynamo is carried on a wagon (horse or automobile), and the current excites an induction coil, giving a high tension discharge. One pole of the coil is to the metal tires and the other to metal brushes passing over the ground. The discharge kills the grubs, etc., in the soil.
