Judge Goss Was Defeated
Judge E. B. Goss has been defeated for the nomination for judge of the supreme court. The three nonpartisan candidates, Robinson, Grace and Birdzell, received the most votes, with Fisk, Burke and Spalding following. The six names will appear on the ballots at the November election. The many friends of Judge Goss sincerely regret his defeat for he is one of the hardest workers on the bench and he is a mighty able jurist. It is reported that he will open law offices in Minot after his term expires and if he does he will receive a warm welcome back to this city.

BRIEF STATE NEWS

Fred Erickson, missing the grade after crossing a bridge over Wild Rice river at Rutland was drowned. His team also was lost. Both approaches are submerged.

Brakeman Joe McNulty of the south line N. P. train crew was badly hurt when a heavy box which he was helping unload at Ft. Rice fell on him. He was taken to the N. P. hospital at Glendive, Mont.

Hiram Bagg, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bagg of Mooreton, was the victim of a drowning accident in Antelope creek, just north of the village of Mooreton Saturday evening last, about 8:30 o'clock, while attempting to rescue Lick Radovitsch, a Mooreton boy, who had called for help.

M. W. Swearingen and son missed their new car Saturday and on search Marshal Stewart found it in a ditch near Sherwood. Someone seeing the car without a number evidently tried to make a get-away with it but gave it up for some reason and abandoned the car before being discovered.

The firm of J. Schmidt and Sons of Donnybrook is now a thing of the past. H. J. Schmidt having purchased the interest of J. Schmidt and is sole owner of the store. As the store has been under his management continually in the past this change in ownership will not affect its policy. H. J. Schmidt has gained an enviable reputation for honesty and square dealing which guarantees the future prosperity of the concern.

An Indian burial mound, perhaps the best from a scientific standpoint yet discovered in the Devils Lake vicinity was recently unearthed at the Chas. Hollinger farm in Morris township. The mound stands right by the house where the family lived for many years but as it appears as a natural hill it never excited any curiosity. Recently in digging, skeletons were discovered and further investigation proved that it was a regular native cemetery. The bodies were evidently deposited between tiers of stone, several sometimes being placed in the same trough, a slab of artificial stone, resembling a lime mixture was placed above to seal the grave and five or six feet of dirt shoveled over that. The skulls, especially, are in a state of remarkable preservation. In one all of the teeth except one in the upper jaw in the front are intact.

The Kenmare police swooped down upon the depot Monday morning and took a dray load of drinkables, whiskey and beer, that had been consigned to names, the authenticity of which was questioned. In all they loaded 250 pints of booze, eleven casks and five cases of beer on the dray and the goods are now in the city hall, awaiting a day in court. County Justice Griffith, before whom the hearing will come, has set Saturday, July 15, as the day, and those to whom the goods are consigned may then appear and will be given an opportunity to prove that the goods are for personal use, and not in excessive quantities.

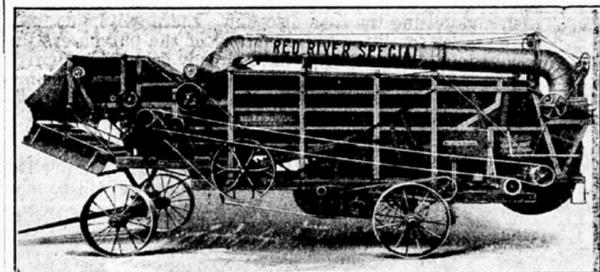

The sudden death by drowning of Jenkin Williams July 4th came as a shock to the people of Garrison. In company with several of the neighbor families they had gone to Garrison creek some little distance from the mouth to spend the Fourth. A picnic dinner had been enjoyed and shortly after two o'clock the men of the party went to the creek where Mr. Williams was the first to enter the water. After several minutes had elapsed and he failed to appear those on the shore became alarmed and in a short time had succeeded in locating the apparently lifeless form. Strenuous efforts on the part of the rescuers failed to bring any hope and it is the opinion of many that Mr. Williams' death had in all probability been caused by heart failure.

Sheriff Slaughter of Mountrail county was in Berthold last week and arrested Mrs. Fred Welsh of Ross on a charge of kidnapping her own son. Domestic troubles have interfered greatly with the happiness of the Welch household and the couple separated by mutual consent and agreeing to leave their 8-year-old son in the care of relatives until their differences could be adjusted. Mrs. Welsh secured possession of the boy and came to Berthold during the night, apparently intending to take a train in the morning, but her plans were frustrated by the train being about eight hours late. The child's absence was noted early in the evening and his disappearance reported to the sheriff's office at Stanley. Local police authorities were notified and the woman and boy located at the Walther hotel.

John Rowland, a Mountrail county farmer, charged with the murder last March of Henry Walcott, a neighboring farmer, is on trial in the district court before Judge Fisk at Williston. The trial was transferred from Mountrail to Williams county and was the first taken up when the July term of district court opened. All of the first day was consumed in drawing jurors and the first witness was not put on the stand until the next day. Rowland pleaded self-defense and is represented by Attorneys Miller and Cogon of Stanley, while States Attorney Wykoff of Mountrail county is assisted in the prosecution by Attorney J. J. Murphy of Williston. Mrs. Rowland, wife of the defendant in the present trial, is a co-defendant on the same charge, but has demanded a separate trial which will not be called until the conclusion of the present trial. According to the statement of the case by the prosecution, Walcott was hauling hay by the Rowland home when his team became frightened and started to run away. The state alleges that a feud existed between the men, and that as the team was passing the house Rowland appeared and fired several shots with a rifle, one of which resulted in the death of Walcott.
