LOVE FOR GOOD LIVE STOCK

Boys' and Girls' Clubs Teach Members
That Cattle Raising is Most Profitable.

The two most valuable assets for the amateur stockman to possess in order to become a successful live stock breeder are: First, an interest and incentive for raising good stock, and second, practical experience supplemented with a thorough technical knowledge of selecting, feeding, judging, and breeding, according to J. T. Tingle, of the Colorado Agricultural College, who says: "Most of our greatest like stock breeders of today entered their profession on account of their love for good stock and their practical experience enabled them to make a success of the business."

"Both theoretical training and practical experience are necessary for the best success. Especially is this true at present—a time when feed, labor, and stock are high. There has never been a time when the live stock industry demanded a more thorough knowledge of proper feeding, breeding, handling, and selecting than at present."

"The objects sought through the boys' and girls' clubs include the above essentials for success, and in addition they endeavor to teach the members that the work is enjoyable, profitable, instructive and offers an incentive for securing an agricultural education. Boys as well as men are looking for practical training and there is no better way for them to secure it than through the clubs."

"Every farmer and stockman should be more than anxious for his son to get into some kind of live stock club. He should not only advise his boy to enter a club but should encourage and urge others to join by offering prizes and stock at reasonable prices in order to promote the work and further the 'better livestock' movement. Pure bred breeders can well afford to sell club members stock at reduced prices in order to build up an interest. In these young stockmen for raising registered stock. Increased interest means greater demand for purebreds and the better the demand the better will be the future sales."

FEED FOR MILK PRODUCTION

Many Old Cows Will Increase Capacity
If Fed on Properly Balanced Ration.

There are a large number of old cows that will increase their capacity for milk-giving if fed on a properly balanced ration and with a large amount of succulent food the year round. This is what develops the capacity of the cow. A great many cows are never fed with the idea of getting out of them the greatest amount of milk possible each year, with due regard to the health of the cows. If, however, the old cows were fed with this idea in mind, they would continue to give a large mess of rich milk.

SUMMER MONTHS ARE TRYING

Cows Giving Milk Should Have Plenty of Feed, Pasture With Water and Good Shade.

Take good care of the cows. The summer months are always trying on cows giving milk. They will need plenty of feed, pasture with water and shade. Unless special care is taken of them they are likely to fail and not be in condition to produce in winter when prices of dairy products are high. Give the cows all the protection possible from flies.

DAIRY NOTES

Keep the dairy cow out of all drafts of stable windows.

The milk cow on the general farm ought to be a money-maker.

A satisfied cow is probably a satisfactory cow.

A summer silo for the dairyman will pay even better than a winter silo.

The average dairy cow makes dairy-ing unprofitable; it's the better-than-average cow that pays.

A good cow is worth more than most people believe. A dairy cow that yields an abundance of milk is indeed a valuable animal.

Sinclair Would Have Uncle Sam Deposit $10,000,000 in Bank of N. D.

It will be recalled by many of the farmers and residents of this vicinity that last summer Congressman J. H. Sinclair introduced a bill in Congress providing for an appropriation of five million dollars to be loaned to the farmers in the drought stricken areas for the purchase of seed and feed. Inasmuch as war emergency measures took precedence over everything else in the special session, it was not possible to obtain consideration for this Act.

There is no doubt but that the need for relief from the conditions, brought about by the drought of the past few seasons is most urgent, and with the intention of securing Federal aid for the farmers, Congressman Sinclair has introduced a measure which will authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to deposit with the Bank of North Dakota the sum of ten million dollars, on certificates of deposit bearing interest at four per cent per annum. This sum will in turn be loaned by the Bank of North Dakota through the local banks of the State to the farmers. The Federal Government has at all times a large amount of money on deposit in National and State Deposit Banks, and it is hoped that ten million dollars can be diverted to the Bank of North Dakota without interfering with the needs of other sections of the country. The argument has been made that losses have resulted on the loans made heretofore direct to the farmers by the government. To meet this criticism the bill was designed. The money advanced to the Bank of North Dakota will have as security behind it the value of the entire state, amounting to nearly three billion dollars. There will, therefore, be no risk taken by the government as repayment is assured. However, there is a very real obstacle to be overcome to obtain the passage of this legislation. The government is this year facing the largest deficit in its history, and the leaders in Congress feel that the strictest economy must be exercised along all lines so that the obligations already contracted may be met. Since this bill involves a loan by the government to the Bank of North Dakota, an appropriation must be made for that purpose. Under the existing policy, it will be difficult to obtain the approval of the Committee on Appropriations, without which the bill cannot pass the House. It will aid Congressman Sinclair in the effort he is making to secure the endorsement of the Committee if those interested will send in letters and petitions urging early and favorable action upon this measure (H. B. 11852). All communications should be addressed to Hon. J. H. Sinclair, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. While it may not be possible for Mr. Sinclair to acknowledge them personally, the writers may be assured that their cooperation is appreciated and that their actions should have an important effect in obtaining the desired results.
