THANK YOU

The officers and directors of the Minot Curling Association wish to thank the business and professional men of Minot for their contributions to this Bonspiel. We feel especially grateful to the press of the city for their courtesy and generosity and also want to express our gratitude to the out-of-town contributors Mr. Louis W. Hill and Soo Line Ry. for their very fine trophies.

The encouragement and co-operation we have received from every one we have approached is just another instance of how Minot knows how to put together for every undertaking that is good for Minot.

In addition to the prize donations already listed, the following Minot donors made possible the bonspiel with liberal co-operation, for which the thanks of the association is extended: A. E. Boynton, Scandinavian-American bank, A. H. Kurth, Walker Floral Co., Ford Taxi Service, Union National bank, Minot Cab Co., U. S. Cafe, Wavery Confectionery and Tea Room, Union Insurance Agency, Grand Hotel, Minot Insurance Agency, Northern Transfer Co., J. B. Reed Transfer, E. L. Helling, Wavery hotel, Grand cafe, Minot Daily News, Ward County Independent, Stone-Ordean-Wells Co., Minot Grocery Co., Gamble-Robinson Co., Northern Produce Co., International Oil Co., and J. W. Samuelson.

Miss Martha Hanson of the Y. W. C. A. left Saturday for Ossian, Iowa, to spend six months with her father, A. E. Sanstead of Berthold, was in the city Monday to see his wife, who has been at St. Joseph's hospital, where she is recovering from an operation for appendicitis which was performed Christmas day. She will be able to return home in about a week.

Klauser C. Olson of Minot is one of the 33 students in the creamery operator's short course at University Farm, St. Paul, Minn., which began January 2 and will end February 11. Special emphasis is laid on efficiency of operation and creamery accounting. While the course is given primarily for beginners, according to Prof. J. R. Keithley who is in charge, many of the students have had wide experience in creamery work. A cheese plant operator's short course, which begins February 13 and ends March 11, will follow the present course.

Olaf Lokengard, former county commissioner, was in from his farm south of the city Saturday. He will sow no wheat this year. He has some rye seeded and will put the rest of his ground into corn, oats, barley and potatoes. The price of rye is cheap, but this makes an excellent feed. People may be a little hard up, he says, but the farmers have plenty to eat and are more independent than the men in town who have to depend on a day's wages for their bread. He remembers when Minnesota farmers were terribly hard up, but they kept worrying along, held onto their farms and finally struck the proper way to farm and got out of debt. He predicts the North Dakota farmers will do as well.

David Mair, manager of the Gamble-Robinson Co. is transacting business in Minneapolis. Mr. Mair is representing the Association of Commerce in checking up on the Minnesota Potato Exchange to ascertain why the growers of this section have not received returns on many cars shipped to this concern.

A Missouri farmer recently received a dollar from an unknown man who kept his identity unknown, but confessed that it was to pay for corn which he had stolen some years ago. The fellow's conscience seems to be working all right, and so is his judgment. He might have paid this bill when corn was $1.75 per bushel. At this point, however, his judgment seems to have stepped in and admonished him to wait until the price was lower.

Talk Number One

This store is not a so-called cut price store. We base our claim that you can save by patronizing this store upon the fact that our goods are sold upon the narrowest margin of profit possible. We conduct our store upon the most conservative basis known to merchandising.

Our goods, which are all of standard brands are displayed neatly, with plain markings—you help yourself—no troublesome clerks to annoy, and, as you pass the cashier, pay her for your purchases.

By the elimination of superfluous clerk hire and delivery charges we cut out two of the heaviest items of expense connected with the grocery business.

And last, but not least, you are not obliged to pay for goods which someone purchased and failed to pay for, as necessarily follows where credit is given or goods charged.

In simple, plain language, you get your goods at a slight margin above wholesale prices.

Our extensive advertising in the East is still progressing and we are getting communications from all over the United States, and property owners are listing some splendid farms with us, and we feel quite enthusiastic over next year's prospects.

We are not offering anything for sale at this time, although if you wish to buy we certainly could give you some surprises in farm bargains, but what we want to do is to list lands, and we will take you into our confidence just a little and tell you we are going to sell a great many farms this year. We've got the system and we are going to have whole lot of assistance from the best Agencies in the Middle West and we have decided to sell these farms at the lowest possible expense to you, and we intend to give every purchaser the best price obtainable. We are going to do business on a small margin, but we'll do the volume and that will make us plenty of money and we will have the satisfaction of having satisfied customers and of doing something for the community by bringing in good farmers.

List your lands with the Frank Youngman Land Company, 13 First Street S. W., Minot, North Dakota.
