POULTRY EXHIBITS

The first year of the poultry contest at the Fair is undoubtedly a success in number of entries, quality of birds shown and variety of exhibits, according to John Stoudt who has superintended this department of the fair this year.
Rhode Island Reds were first in number of entries with White Leghorns next and Anconas third. These specimens were brought from many points in Ward County and as far as Kief, N. D.
O. A. Barton, the specialist from the Agricultural College at Fargo says that the poultry exhibits deserve much credit from the standpoint of quality.
The visitors are impressed with the variety of exhibits while the judge, O. A. Barton, was more than glad to secure some of the prize winners for showing at other points in the state.
