A funny episode happened in Munich last week. One of their popular young men had purchased a new buggy and of course his girl had to have the first ride in it. That is where the funny part of it comes into the story. He drove to the young lady's home. She was already waiting for him and was dressed in the latest style with the new fashioned tight skirt. When she attempted to get into the buggy they found that more expansion was necessary in the dress or she could not make the grade. A chair was then secured but still the step to the chair was too high. After producing a small box to step up on the chair she managed to get into the buggy. The affair caused considerable amusement to some onlookers across the street.
