Sam Eagleson, bonanza farmer who resides south of Milton, exhibited a number of potatoes the other day that were truly remarkable, both as to size and perfect shape. The lot consisted of ten potatoes which filled a large pail heaping full and weighing just 23 pounds. One spud weighed nearly three and one half pounds and measured eleven inches in length. The seed was secured two years ago from Andrew Weir of London, Ontario, Canada, a former Miltonite, and is of an exceptionally fine variety, which grows and develops splendidly in this country.—Milton Globe.

Any one at all skeptical about raising corn in North Dakota or in the immediate vicinity of Edmore will be convinced that they can if they will take time to look over the exhibit at the Security bank. There they will find on exhibition a half dozen varieties of corn raised by as many different farmers, and each one fully matured. One exhibit of Northwestern Dent is very good, but all show great possibilities in the line of corn raising if the farmers will only plant it and give it the proper care while growing.

Village Marshal Ed. Iago of Lawton, accompanied by one of the elevator men from that burg, were here Saturday afternoon in search of one of a pair of grain thieves. It seems that Aird, the elevator man, has a farm in the Lawton neighborhood, and that on this farm he has a quantity of barley to which thieves have been helping themselves. The party they were after was found by Marshal Oakley, placed under arrest and taken back to Lawton. The other party was caught at Stover, where he was marketing a third load of the grain. It is probable they will get a heavy fine as this practice is getting to be too frequent.

The excitement attendant upon the arrest of Siebert Palm and F. Petersdorf last Sunday, charged with stealing grain and selling it, and the subsequent breaking out of the village bastille by Palm Monday morning and his re-capture in a barn in Newbre township and his lodgement in jail at the county seat, is now over. We always supposed it took an Irishman to raise prize winners when it came to potatoes, but we feel certain that a Norwegian has one of the best of him this time. The writer took occasion the other day to walk out where Norman Nelson was digging his winter supply of spuds and the rows of murrpits that he had dug and thrown out there looked like piles of stove wood.
