John Hamre came across from Park River by auto Sunday and will spend some time here attending to collections. He has disposed of his drug store at Mott at a good figure, and in its place bought a nice ice cream and confectionery business in one of the towns on the new branch out of Mott. He will also add a stock of medicines to it as soon as he gets back.

Messrs. C. D. Lord and George W. Young of Park River are attempting something out of the ordinary in the method of selling lands. As a general rule lands have not been very active the past year and they are going to attempt to sell 20 Walsh county farms at auction.

Large bills are posted all over the country and no doubt many of these posters have been sent to the eastern states. The posters give a brief description of each farm that will be up for sale as well as the terms, etc. The sale will be held at Adams, today.

The owners place a minimum price on each tract of land, and if this method will bring buyers and result in a satisfactory number of sales, it will no doubt result in others attempting something along this line.

Friday evening, Oct. 22. They pleased their audience last year.

We are glad to learn that the plans for a high school band are working out favorably. There have been about twenty applicants, all ready and willing to buy instruments. This is a move in the right direction and we congratulate Prof. Urness, who will direct the band, having been so successful in his efforts to revive the study of music in connection with the school.
