

GERMANS SUBMITTING TO NEW OCCUPATION OF RHINE AREAS BY ALLIED ARMY NOW MARCHING

Famous Cities Become A Scene For Marching Soldiers

NO FIGHTING YET League of Nations Will Be Appealed To By Germans

LONDON, March 8.—Negotiations over the German indemnity were broken off this week and allied troops were marching into German territory in the famous Ruhr district. Düsseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort are the three big cities already occupied. The entire Rhine district is also expected to be taken over by the allied forces. German burgomasters were making no opposition and thus far no trouble of any description has been encountered. Refusal of representatives of the German government to accede to a policy laid down by allied statesmen headed by Lloyd George of Great Britain, led to the order of expedition to enforce collection of export duties to meet requirements of the allied governments according to original treaty agreements.

The Germans declared flatly they could not meet the payments demanded. The main point of argument by the Germans was that they could not make payments in the time stipulated by their opponents at the round table session which had been going on for weeks.

LOCALS DROP FINAL GAME

Egeland Cops District Basketball Honors From Lake

Devils Lake's star aggregation of basketball men, went down to defeat in the final game of the district tournament here Friday and Saturday, losing out to Egeland, 21 to 10. Wading thru the preliminary games without a hitch, the strain of the two day session proved too much for the locals when they bumped into Egeland, comparatively fresh with only two games played in the two day session. Egeland, it is generally believed, will have an excellent chance to cop the state championship.

GARLAND-HAGGEN WEDDING WAS AN EVENT YESTERDAY

Popular Girl Becomes A Bride Of John Garland

Miss Marie Haggen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Haggen of Fourth street, and John Garland of Steele were united in marriage at a very pretty wedding in the home of the bride's parents, Tuesday afternoon, Rev. P. H. Case of the Presbyterian church officiating.

A corner of the sitting room was decorated with a beautiful wedding bell hung from the ceiling, under which the bridal couple stood. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Fern, and the groom, by Ralph McKeown. Little Olive Elaine Johnson acted as flower girl, carrying a large bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. W. F. Faulk of Cray played the wedding march. Miss Harriet Duell sang "O Promise Me." Lorene and Albert Gray, cousins of the bride, sang "Wedding Bells."

The bride was gowned in white of pussywillow taffeta with veil and orange blossoms. Her traveling suit was of blue duvetyne with a hat to match.

At five o'clock a wedding dinner was served. Table decorations were carnations and ferns. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wallace, Rev. and Mrs. P. H. MOVIE CENSOR BILL IS DEAD

BISMARCK, N. D.—The state senate killed the movie censorship bill and adopted the clincher motion thus definitely disposing of the measure.

Senators Ingerson and Eitstaele, Nonpartisans, voted with the independents although the league had made a party issue of the measure.

After The Ball Was Over

BISMARCK, N. D. — And he picked up his bed and walked.

Thus did Marse Jim Waters, twin (star) witness for the house kangaroo committee miraculously recover today from the horrible malady which has confined him to his room ever since he was subpoenaed by the senate audit committee.

Late yesterday while the senate was still in session, the last bulletin issued by Marse Jim's private physician was: "The patient is not resting well. Visitors absolutely not allowed. The danger of a relapse is too intimate."

But, behold with the last rap of the gavel that sent the seventeenth legislative assembly into history the miracle of the healing of Jim Waters took place.

Jim sat around the hotel lobby close to his friend and companion, Job Wells Brinton, broadly smiling at the many congratulations he received on his speedy recovery.

"Jewish prudence is the most essential qualification of an efficient page," declared Moses Rosenweig, chief page of the house of representatives today in explaining the sudden disappearance of inkwells from the desks of the house members last night.

While the house was in recess during supper hour last night "Mose" gathered up all the inkwells.

"I saw one fellow get beamed in here with an inkwell once," said Mose, "and my strong sense of Jewish prudence bade me act last night while there was yet time."

Krazy Karl Kositzky, former state auditor, is quite indisposed today as the result of his fistic experience in the corridors of the capitol last night. "By God, I've got blood in my eye," muttered the former state auditor just before he walked to his doom.

A few minutes later the blood was on the floor.

Nobody knows exactly what happened that Karl got separated from his gang of bruisers which he brought to the capitol for the purpose of cleaning up on a few League legislators.

Karl today is wearing a very much discolored lamp and the topography of his map in the region of where his nose used to be is painfully flat. None of Karl's opponents bear any scars of battle and the presumption is that Karl got licked.

Sane Mindedness

The I. V. A. recall doesn't seem a certainty—not yet. The peanut politicians running the shebang forgot the members of the gang thruout North Dakota might have a little to say. They don't seem to want to kick up another $175,000 or may be $200,000 in their taxes next year for the staging of another of the "Independent" forces, not even if "Two-Bit" Nelson and Iverson do need the job. Real taxes are enough,—admitted this year,—and then add the assessment. "Two-Bit" proposes to stop down their throats. Even the gang in Devils Lake don't like it. Sane minded business men are waking up. It is authentically reported that one or two of the ringleaders of the "Independent" forces here have been open minded in declaring against it. Every business man ought to be opposed to it. But—if it comes there'll be two in the fight, the majority of the people, and the ring now dominated by the railroads, the gamblers, the big bankers and other outside interests with their local satellites that aren't quit the gang, afraid to face the music and admit that for once they were going to use their own brains.

Frazier Puts Lofthus Back In

BISMARCK, N. D.—Administration approval of the manner in which the state banking department has been conducted under the direction of O. E. Lofthus, state examiner, was given last week when Governor Frazier reappointed Mr. Lofthus, and the senate league majority confirmed the appointment in an executive session.

Several days ago it was asserted in some quarters in Bismarck that Mr. Lofthus would be retired from office because of the revelations in connection with the administration of his department.

Harding Is New President

Succeeds Wilson as New Director of Nation's Destinies

WASHINGTON.—Warren G. Harding of Ohio, and Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts were inaugurated, President and Vice-President of the United States Friday.

Mr. Harding took the oath at 1:18 p.m. and Mr. Coolidge at 12:21 p.m. The jam in front of the stands extended for more than a block to the east and for almost the same distance to the north and south of the stand erected on the Capitol steps.

Mr. Harding departed from the prepared manuscript to make reference to the group of wounded soldiers just below the inaugural stand. He assured them "that this republic will never be ungrateful for the services you have rendered."

Study of Grain Dealers Methods Produces Ideas

By Hardy P. Mystrom.

A short time ago the World reported as "found" a North Dakota editor who believes the law of supply and demand responsible for the prices of farm products. Now we have an editor of a farm paper with a nation-wide circulation who evidently holds the same opinion. He at least says so. The following is an editorial clipped bodily from the March issue of "Successful Farming":

ECONOMIC LAWS GOVERN

As sure as physical laws govern the movements of the planets and the forces of nature, the economic laws govern prices. We may legislate locally by state laws that affect intrastate trade, or we may legislate nationally on interstate and international trade, but we cannot thus change economic laws of trade.

The best we can do is to study economic laws and adjust business to them, just as farmers long ago recognized that they could not change the seasons, but must make farming fit in with the seasons as they are. No farmer lives so unto himself that any legislative law will make him secure against the economic laws that determine his markets. The Russians thought they could legislate themselves into ease and prosperity. They sought a fool's paradise. They got better now.

A decade ago we might have believed that. Now we can not. This year American farmers are receiving a dollar less per bushel for their wheat than they did last year, while the Liverpool price, that Europe pays, is some 60 cents higher than twelve months ago. No economic law that we thought of can be held responsible for this. It is simply another daylight robbery to be charged against the sin-stained grain gamblers and so-called boards of trade.

In an article following his editorial in "Successful Farming" editor evidently has a change of heart, for he contradicts himself thusly:

"The committees (of Fifteen and Seventeen) are trying to find out just who or what is responsible for the ruinous price fluctuations which make farming so hazardous and which occur without apparent justification by the law of supply and demand. Having located the 'African in the woodpile' they will proceed to devise methods for eliminating him, or at least curbing his influence on prices."

It is true that legislation can have no effect on economic laws. It is equally true that, before such laws can function properly, legislative measures must be passed to eliminate forever that "nigger in the woodpile," the grain gambler, and put an eternal stopper on his heartless banditry.

Farm Labor Demand Has Started Here

The annual spring demand for farm labor is beginning to be felt here, according to numerous requests heard from farmers from various counties. Many of the requests are for men to work on the farms. It is generally believed that the demand for farm labor will be very heavy this year.

Developing The Bolshevistic

"The Nonpartisan League is pure socialism. Its membership in North Dakota is made up largely of Russian immigrants. They vote for Eugene Debs for president. There is no state Socialist ticket. The Nonpartisan ticket is the socialist ticket."—statement attributed to F. P. Mann by the Topeka Capital a few weeks past.

We wonder if Mr. Mann may have recalled the phrasing of that little jewel recently, or his local boosters who fain would see him a nominee for governor perchance had glimpsed it and—were thinking about it, thinking about it so much that they are not boiling over with enthusiasm for the recall of Governor Frazier and the placing of Mann's name on a ballot. It ought to be such an appealing little slam at the farmers of Ramsey county and thruout the state that Fred P. would be insured of every I. V. A. vote—don't they like the labeling he gave the darling farmers and workers? Mr. Mann has not denied making the statement which scores of farmers and workers have taken exception too.

Answers To Correspondents

To the Society Editor: Has a preacher, because he is stewed with home brew, any more right to throw his arms around a lady and kiss her, than any other man. The reason I ask is that because the lady resented such familiarity and started to make a roar, the preacher asked his friends to intercede for him on the grounds that he was a preacher, a well known preacher at that. —Old Sinner.

Answer: It all depends upon what church employs the preacher, and whether the lady is a member of his parish, or not. Some preachers confine their promiscuous kissing to members of their own flock, while others confine it to members of the other fellows' flock. Then too, it depends somewhat upon the stage of drunkenness the preacher had reached: if he was too drunk to distinguish between members and non-members, or was accused to the extent of kissing his own wife thru mistake or otherwise, there may be extenuating circumstances. As a rule, a preacher who does not practice what he preaches has no more rights and privileges than a man who practices what he does not preach. There are angles to this question which are too deep for this department to deal with, and we suggest that it be referred to the Devils Lake Rotary club.

Carrie Berntson Lemke Buried In So. Dakota

T. Berntson has returned from Rapid City, South Dakota, where he went last week to attend the funeral of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Lemke, formerly Miss Carrie. Returning to Devils Lake with Mr. Berntson, was the two year old child of the Lemkes who now becomes part and parcel of its grandparents here. Mr. Lemke's mother accompanied Mr. Berntson and the baby as far as Devils Lake, she being en route to her home at Lanceford. Only declining years, it is said, prevented the other grandparents from insisting on taking charge of the little one. Mrs. Lemke died after a short illness and was buried where she had chosen to make her home.

1 Report Shows Other States Kick On Prices

HALF CROP HELD Much Wheat Is Still In Bins Of The Farmers

Washington, March 9. — Larger stocks of grain were on farms March 1 this year than on that date in any other year in history. Wheat was the only exception, the holdings in 1910, following the only billion bushel crop, having exceeded this year's holdings 37,000,000 bushels.

Almost half of the country's record corn crop of last year remained on farms March 1, more than a quarter of the wheat crop and almost half of the large crop of oats, according to the department of agriculture's estimates, announced today.

Low Price Is Cause

The large crops of last year and decreased grain prices are believed to be largely responsible for the heavier holdings of farmers. Holdings of corn were more than half a billion bushels larger than a year ago while wheat holdings were about 43,000,000 bushels more.

With a few exceptions the principal wheat producing states were holding larger stocks on farms than a year ago.
