lis is still in Uncle Sam's National Army and is stationed at Camp Humphries, Virginia.

J. M. Erhardt, our popular rural route carrier, reports that he had one of the worst trips in all his experience last Friday, too much wind and dust all of which made it very disagreeable driving.

Mr. Erhardt serves a route thirty miles long three times a week and so far this winter has not missed a single trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Dyer received word early Sunday morning that the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Morrison had died during the night. They left for Neche at once and remained until after the funeral. The bereaved parents have the sympathy of the entire community in their loss. Mrs. Morrison is well known at this place, being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dyer.

Olan Johnson of Great Falls, Montana, was a visitor at the Wm. Page home. Olan arrived Friday and remained over for a little visit enroute to Minneapolis where he expects to take in the Auto show. Just for the sake of having a little company on the way he persuaded Willie Page to accompany him on the trip and of course promised to take the very best care of him. He reports that times are not as good in Montana as they were in former years, due to the dry season and the crop failure last year, but every one is able to live and have plenty to eat. Mr. Johnson is still engaged in the auto business and doing quite well.

Jas. Sharp of Carlisle township was in town last Friday and on the way home had a runaway that almost proved serious to him. When he had gone out about two miles from town the team started to run and Jim pulled sharply up on the lines when one of them broke. They ran for quite a ways and then headed for the ditch which is quite deep at that point and Mr. Sharp was thrown from the jumper and knocked senseless. After coming to he walked to Mr. Fischers and was taken home. Saturday he had so far recovered from the accident as to be able to come to town and aside from a few scratches had fully recovered. Too many long oats was said to be the cause of it all.

The writer in quest of news stopped in at the drug store one morning this week and visited for a while with the genial manager and of course swapped a few choice stories with him, and right here let us say that Sam is an adapt in this line. The Warner drug store is sure one of the cleanest and most up to date stores of its kind in the county. Just recently they have installed a very elaborate soda fountain and also a new Delco light plant and in fact everything right up to the minute. Before leaving we sampled some of the celebrated malted milk, mixed by Sam but stirred up with a little contraption on the end of the fountain, which is said to revolve at the rate of 50,000 revolutions per minute without spilling a single drop and it was sure fine, even if it did lack the old time stick. This company is enjoying a well deserved patronage and their business is growing every day. New and up to date business methods are bound to win.

Again we are called upon to chronicle the passing of another of the pioneers in the person of Donald Beaton, at the ripe age of 77 years 10 months and fifteen days. Mr. Beaton was of Highland Scotch ancestry, Canadian born, in the township of Vaughn, province of Ontario. Like many highlanders he was fond of music, a good violinist, and well knew how to blow the bag pipes. In the year 1873 he was united in marriage to Hannah Sidy, who survives him.

Mrs. Beaton proved herself a true helpmeet indeed, toiling cheerfully, verily giving herself for others. The cheerful quiet, the beautiful serenity of her home life has to the writer been a real benediction. The patient waiting upon her husband for these many years. The loving care given to his father, grandpa Beaton, who for years before his decease made his home with them, and as his remains were borne from the home with tears streaming down her cheeks said to me, We will miss grandpa, we will miss grandpa. Such a wife, mother and daughter-in-law is a treasure whose value is above rubies.

In the year 1885 the Beatons came to the vicinity of Park River and some thirty years ago came to the township of Carlisle, where they resided until two years ago. Mr. Beaton for many years suffered from an injury received in his young manhood some ten or twelve years ago at the Winnipeg hospital he had a portion of one leg amputated.

For a time he was a member of the ditch commission. For years he was on the Carlisle township board. Five years ago while spending the New Year at Wm. Collins he had a slight stroke of paralysis and since which time he has several strokes. The last attack was some three weeks ago and the final ending came at midnight February 12, 1919 at the home in Hamilton when the spirit took its flight. The funeral was held under the management of the Masonic order, of which the deceased was a member.

The services were held in the M. E. Church, Rev. G. C. Lee pastor offering prayer, and read the scripture lesson. Rev. J. Young of the Presbyterian church preaching the sermon.

Mr. Beaton is survived by his wife, one brother, one sister and five children, namely; Mrs. Wm. Collins, Glasston N. D., Mrs. J. H. Kinsman, Brownrigg Sask., Mrs. Jessie Young, Three Hills, Alta., H. F. Beaton, Lashburn, Sask., W. J. Beaton, Cavalier, brother, John Beaton, Hamilton, sister, Mrs. W. J. Albertson, Oakville, Ont.

They are passing away the old pioneers.

Who came to this land in their earlier years,

In the strength of their manhood and faith in their God,

They handled the plow and broke up the sod,

They followed the oxen, with hearts light and gay,

They set out to work at the break o' the day,

They scattered the seed and garnered the grain,

And thanked the Great Giver for the sunshine and rain.

T. R. CHAMBERS.

Will our many friends and neighbors and the members of the Masonic order, please accept our heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the many kindnesses rendered during the sickness, death and funeral of loved one.

MRS. DONALD BEATON AND FAMILY, JOHN BEATON, brother.

"MUST BE NO SAGGING" ROOSEVELT'S LAST PLEA

Applies in Most Direct Manner to Popular Support of Nation's Financing Projects.

That Theodore Roosevelt's last plea to America, "There must be no sagging back" has the most direct application to popular support of government financing projects, including sale of War Savings Stamps was the statement made today by A. R. Rogers, chairman of the central committee, War Loan organization for the Ninth Federal Reserve District.

"Roosevelt with his keen Americanism saw the possibility of a sag coming with the actual fighting at an end and was a most earnest worker to keep the hearts and thoughts of the people placed right during the period of rebuilding the same as in the war period," Mr. Rogers said.

"Every argument that applied to the habit of thrift during the war applies to it today. The personal benefit of saving is as great as ever, the profit from interest on the investment is still as good as it was. The security of any loan made to the government was unquestionable and today, with fighting at an end and even the possibility that Germany might triumph gone, it is perfect.

"When Roosevelt said 'there must be no sagging' he meant that the habits of right action developed by the war must be continued. If he had been asked he would have said that for the American earners to keep, for their future benefit and the benefit of their families, a part of their earnings, was just as important as any of the big national policies. He would have said that to the earner and saver himself savings are immensely important.

"To stop saving and buying War Savings Stamps today would be as bad for the man at home as it would be for the soldier holding the Rhine to go on duty from now on without a rifle. Cashing the stamps now which a person has bought before, is simply a retreat, as if the army that fought its way to victory should run back to the Marne and beckon to the enemy to pour into France once more."
