Secretary Vining of the Banner Fair believes in printer's ink, and applies it. Business men in Celina with fly-specked goods and a woe-begone look on their mugs might profit by his example.

"The country owes a debt of gratitude to the insurgents in congress who made the fight against the domination of special interests, and who placed the common good high above party regularity."—James R. Garfield (Insurgent Republican).

But as it was the democratic votes in both house and senate that counted for anything, it seems that country owes much more to the democratic party. If the insurgents are honest and mean business they will come over into the Democratic camp and abandon the pretense that they are still Republicans.

In a scathing editorial some days ago the Cleveland Leader Republican organ and mouth piece of Senator Burton and Governor Herrick, said this: "Senator Dick is a stand-patter of stand-patters—a weak solution of all elements of reactionary thought and action. He went through the tariff session of congress as a valet of Aldrich and his kind."

Why does the Leader single out Dick for such arraignment and remain silent as to Burton and the President?

Burton went through the tariff session of congress just as much a valet for Aldrich as Dick was. Burton voted 118 times as Aldrich's valet in revising the tariff upward, almost equal Dick's record of 126 votes as Aldrich's valet in the same service.

Then President Taft, himself as a valet for Aldrich and his kind, signed that tariff bill and has since repeatedly declared it to be "the best tariff bill ever passed by the Republican party."

What the Leader says of Dick is true enough, but it is also true of Burton, Taft and Republican congressman from Ohio who did valet service for Cannon in the house as faithfully as Dick and Burton did for Aldrich in the senate.

Fair play for Dick revolts against his being made the goat for political sins of which President Taft, Burton and Republican congressman from Ohio are equally guilty. It is not because Dick's evil doing alone that the Republican party is in sore distress today. Attempts like that of the leader to make a goat of Dick serve to direct attention to the equal responsibility of the rest. And that is why there is political unrest not only in Ohio but through the nation.

The liquor interests, of which the Cincinnati Enquirer is the leading voice of the State, is highly elated over the turning down of county option by the Democrats of Nebraska, which Mr. Bryan favored and advocated in his characteristic way. But it should be remembered that Mr. Bryan has a way of winning in spite of defeat. Our Republican friends will bear us out in this when they take a survey of the legislation of the nation that Mr. Bryan has earnestly contested for and their party has been putting on the statute books. The liquor interests will wake up this fall to find that Bryan wins again. His turning down by a convention of liquor-controlled delegates is only a lull in the storm that is approaching.

"I believe," said Robert Cumming, in an address in a Presbyterian church at Peoria, "that all men are created equal. But I assume that every one in this audience has the intelligence to know that I do not mean, and the signers of the Declaration of Independence did not mean, that all men were created six feet tall with black hair and brown eyes, but that they are created equal in their rights before the law." This true doctrine, so simply stated and clearly defined by Mr. Cumming, cannot be too often repeated. It is denied everywhere and by many persons; yet, paradoxical as this may seem at first, the doctrine is never really denied. Those who deny it do so with reference to others, not to themselves. No one ever denies that he himself, in his rights before the law, should be equal at least to everybody else.—The Public.

When a good looking woman from the country climbs into a buggy, the stockings she shows do not fit as trim those shown in muddy weather by the town woman. The reason is that the country woman has rolls of bills stuck in her hose that she has received from her chickens, eggs and produce. You don't see any such wads under the town woman's hose.

They fit close and trim, for she has a few dimes a coppers, a lot of goods, samples, a powder rag, all in a thing she calls a purse, which is about the size of a mans suit case, that she carries under her arm for a bluff.—Rochester Sentinel.

Texas Democrats at their primaries last Saturday made it known they were in favor of State-wide prohibition of the liquor traffic. We take our hat off to the greatest Democratic State in the Union.

This dispatch from Oyster Bay, dated July 20, ought to be read and pondered over by every thoughtful citizen of Ohio:

OYSTER BAY, July 20.—Colonel Roosevelt announced to-day that he had been misunderstood yesterday when he was understood as favoring the adoption by Republican conventions generally of progressive platforms. "What I intended to say yesterday," said Roosevelt to-day, "was, I cannot support any candidate for any nomination. I am of the hope that a progressive platform will be adopted in Ohio. I desire to make it perfectly clear that I mean Ohio only in what I said. Progressive platforms in other States have a different significance."

This is a confession of hypocrisy which makes it plain why Roosevelt intends to speak in Indiana for Beveridge and in Massachusetts for Lodge.

GOXEY, OLD BOY,

Still Able to Turn a Trick or Two As of Old in G. O. P. State Conventions.

Man Who Praised Cincinnati Boss in Broad Day Light Is Kindly Handed

Hamilton County's Machine Vote and the Nomination for Governor.

That George B. Cox, the Republican boss of Cincinnati, did not forget a dramatic scene in the Republican State convention of 1894, when he was energized by the man who was nominated by the Republicans of the State for Governor last Wednesday as "one of the great division commanders and the peer of Foraker, Hanna and other prominent leaders of that day," was made very apparent to the people of State on the ballot that nominated Warren G. Harding of Marion County.

Cox's boast that he would nominate Brown of Dayton on the second ballot didn't materialize, but he put it over Burton and the administration crowd so neatly that he no doubt now feels his second choice was what he most desired.

The platform is a stand-pat one, and Harding is a conservative of the first water. The usual sop is thrown out to labor.

The ticket nominated is as follows: Governor—Warren G. Harding, Lieutenant Governor—Francis W. Treadway (renominate). Secretary of State—Granville W. Mooney. State Treasurer—Rudy W. Archer. Attorney General—Ulysses G. Den-

The Delphos Courant says "a ripple of excitement was occasioned in town Tuesday morning when Isaac Good, who lives on the Noah Miller farm in Marion township, about a mile east of Delphos, came into town and reported that he had seen in the Pohlman woods, a strange looking wild animal, that had all the appearance of being a hyena." It must be remembered, however, that Delphos has about forty kinds of booze factories and they can see animals of almost infinite variety without going outside the corporation limits.

Ohio Democratic State Platform

The platform adopted by the Democratic convention is as follows:
The Democratic party of Ohio in convention assembled, reaffirms its faith and devotion to those essential principles of Democracy which have ever held the party together in victory and defeat; its faith and confidence after a long series of reverses in national elections are sufficient attestation to the sincerity of its belief.

Guided by these principles the Democratic party founded national unity and prosperity, and established local self-government for the states and municipalities. They are alike applicable to the government of the nation and the state.

The coming campaign in Ohio for the election of state officers should and must be fought on the basis of the platform of the Democratic party. It is therefore proper that we declare first and foremost our position upon these questions of state government in which the people are most interested.

Instead of protecting and defending grafters, as was the way of Republican party, we will continue to have them prosecuted and sued for the return to the state of the many thousand dollars secured by fraud and villainy.

Every agency at his command is being employed to bring to account officers who were recreant to the trusts reposed in them by the people.

The governor is handicapped in the task of purifying and improving the public service by the opposition of a hostile legislature and Republican state officials. He will continue the work so well begun, but we call on the citizens to uphold him by electing his associates on the ticket and a legislature that will help, instead of hinder, in eliminating graft, introducing business methods and graft the the effectiveness while reducing the cost of state institutions and departments.

Plans in Platform.
We favor a maximum aggregate tax rate of 10 mills, without any right to increase it, except by a vote of the people.

We favor the fair and just regulation of all public utilities as well as railroads, with the right of home rule as to franchises, carefully guarded against the state.

We favor the ratification of the federal income tax amendment of the federal constitution, which was ratified by the present Republican legislature.

We demand the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people.

To that end we pledge a Democratic legislature to take the necessary action looking to a convention of the states to adopt the constitutional amendment required.

Ending the campaign for compliance with the people's demand, so long denied by a Republican senate, we promise the enactment by a Democratic legislature of a law for the purpose of preventing its passage, it, providing for the nomination of senators by popular vote at the regular elections in senatorial years.

We favor:
A uniform school book law.
The principle of the initiative and referendum.

The extension of the teaching of agriculture.

The promotion of a nonpartisan judiciary by the placing of the names of all judicial candidates on a separate ballot with the party of election.

The enactment of legislation limiting the hours of labor of employed women.

National Affairs.
In national affairs we favor the application of business methods to the administration of the federal government in order to reduce its enormous and fast growing expenses, which involve a waste now admitted to be $200,000,000 per year.

We demand the revision of the present unjust and oppressive tariff, reducing rates so as to lower the prices imposed on consumer; the need of revenue for the economical conduct of the government must be the guiding principle instead of the demands of favored interests.

The burden of tariff taxation must be taken from articles of the cheaper grades where it is placed by the law of Payne, Aldrich, Smoot and Cannon, which reductions in tariff taxation to make it a means of raising revenue, instead of an instrument of extortion, can not be safely left to the party of broken promises, but should be entrusted to the Democratic party, whose motto is equal justice to all without either favors or injury to any.

We favor the immediate enactment of the dollar a day pension bill introduced and championed in both the Sixty-sixth and Sixty-seventh congress by that Democratic veteran, General Isaac R. Sherwood of Ohio, and we condemn the arbitrary action of the speaker of the house and the administration in refusing to allow this beneficial and patriotic measure to come to a vote in the house of representatives.

We believe in the conservation of our natural resources and we denounce the administration, and especially Secretary Ballinger, for denigrating the public service and true officers whose only aim was the preservation to the people of such resources.

How Honest Courage Forced Truth From a Liar.

at the foot of the bed, and, drawn by curiosity, he came round to the side. The next instant he was looking into the muzzle of the weapon, and beyond it he saw two steady, determined gray eyes.

The man sprang back with a hoarse cry and struck a table, which seemed to have arms and to hold him fast.

"Cousin Rufus," said the boy, "you know me, and you know my people. We are all alike, except you. We mean what we say, and we don't care what we do. That's the way we're born."

"Frank, Frank!" the man gabbled in a hoarse cry. "Don't! You frighten me! It might go off by accident."

"I want to know what the doctor says about me," continued Frank.

"What he really says, understand? And as sure as there's a heaven above us and another place below—for I'll shoot you if you lie to me, I'm down and done for, and I might as well do one good deed before I die."

"Good deed! Shoot me! That ain't what I'd call good. And your mother—"

"Don't mention her name. You've come here against her express wishes and done your miserable best to fill my head full of suicide. Don't name my mother. Answer my question."

Burrell's lips were blue with terror, and his face was gray.

"Upon my most sacred word of honor," he stammered, "the doctor says you're going to get well—just as well as ever you was in your life. And that's the truth."

"It is not," said Frank, and his tone froze the other's heart. "I'll give you one more chance. Am I to be lame?"

It now flashed across Rufus that the way of safety lay in the avoidance of contradiction. He had tried the other route, and it had failed.

"Well, a little—maybe a little—the least bit in the world."

"That wasn't what he said, and I know it. It's not a bit like him. Tell me the truth. I'm desperate. Neither your life nor mine cuts any figure with me now. Speak out! Am I crippled?"

Rufus was in agony. He knew not what to say. The facts were nothing to him; escape was all.

"Well, he said you might be. He said you might be. That's how I understood him."

"He told that to my mother?"

"Yes, I was listening outside the door. Maybe I didn't rightly hear. She sent Martha and me out."

"For fear you'd tell me. Yes, I understand." He lowered the revolver and then suddenly raised it again. "I'm to be a cripple? That was the word?"

The sudden alternation of relief and fear was too much for Rufus. He was beyond all considerations except his own personal safety.

"Yes, a cripple. That's what he said."

"And my mother?"

"She burst right out crying," answered Rufus, with desperate invention.

Again the boy lowered the revolver, and this time he removed his eyes from Rufus.

"Well," said he, "if that's the fact I guess I can stand it. Better fellows [Continued on eighth page.]

complainant be given consideration at Columbus."

There was an indignation meeting of County Auditors at the court-house yesterday over the wording of the letters sent out by the State Tax Commission. Several auditors of near by counties and their deputies were in town, and they discussed the letters at length. The principal complaint of the Auditors was that words "kindly," "please" and "request" are conspicuous by their absence. Instead the words "you are hereby ordered," "without delay," etc., are very prominent. One of the communications concludes, "You are directed to forthwith acknowledge the receipt of this and all other communications sent you by the Tax Commission without further notice."

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.
