FRESH TOPICS.

It is reported that young Louis Napoleon is to marry a member of the royal family of Sweden.

The first building in the country erected exclusively for the order of the Sovereigns of Industry has just been dedicated at Springfield, Mass.

SPANISH AMERICAN. Mrs. B. Astor gives vent to her wrath at the decision of the highest tribunal in the land denying her the right of suffrage in the following bit of withering sarcasm: "You will recollect that I was in Missouri last summer at the bedside of a suffering brother. Well, I couldn't go five miles out of town without meeting a flock of grasshoppers that would make a better bunch of judges than the present Supreme Court of the United States."

PRESIDENT-MAKING is a business that occupies a large share of the editorial mind of the country just now. There does not seem to be any lack of timber either. The Illinois State-Zeitung nominates Minister Washburne; the Cincinnati Commercial indicates a preference for Judge Alton Taft, and the Cincinnati Times thinks Gen. Hayes would be the proper man to head the Republican ticket.

Several Indiana papers are red-hot for Gov. Morton, and in Illinois quite a number of Republican journals are equally earnest in advocating the claims of John A. Logan. In the East a multitude of prospective candidates are named among Republicans as well as Democrats—Tilden, of course, being the most prominent of the latter party. After all, it is mere conjectures to who will be the winning horse; but then, you know, the average editorial mind would go astray if it were not directed to its preference in this respect.

They had a lively little pistol tussle down at Sparta, in the mountains of East Tennessee, the other day. The account of the affair proceeds to state that Constable Hudson arrested a boisterous drunken man named Padgett, who resisted and drew a knife on Hudson, who in turn drew a pistol and shot Padgett dead. Sevier Evans, a friend of Padgett, coming to his defense, was also shot in the abdomen by Hudson and killed. D. C. Lowry, another friend of Padgett, next attacked Hudson and was placed hors d' combat. It is further stated that the fight was "so desperate" that the men killed had so many relatives in town that the Constable had to flee; from which the inference is drawn that it is dangerous to kill a man in Tennessee who has relatives. The account closes with the cheerful statement that "a man killed in the vicinity of Sparta in a personal encounter on an average once every two or three years."

A REMARKABLE instance of the veracity of a prophecy of the prophet of a death had just been given in Cincinnati. Eight years ago Miss Josie Booth, a well-known actress, who was then playing at McVicker's Theatre, in Chicago, told Mrs. Emma Tryon, an intimate and confidential friend, that when she (Josie) died it would be in her friend's arms, and that the last glass of water she would ever take would be from her hands. Shortly after this the two separated and saw each other no more until two or three weeks ago, when they met in Cincinnati, where Miss Booth was playing. She was living with Mrs. Tryon, was taken sick in her house, and, true to her prophecy, died in her friend's arms. She was attacked suddenly one morning with heart disease, and died in a tone of piercing anguish, "Oh, for God's sake, take me in your arms!" Mrs. T. had scarcely raised her dying friend to her breast when she again exclaimed, "For God's sake, give me a drink of cold, cold water." Holding the dying woman in her arms, she placed the glass of water to her lips, which was swallowed almost at one gulp. In two minutes more she was a corpse. Who can explain away this prediction with a scientific theory?

A FRACTIONAL section of a new "Constitution of Errors" was enacted in Chicago the other day. Two well-known citizens came out of a store, of which one was the proprietor, intending to go some blocks distant on a business errand in which they were mutually interested. In front of "his store stood a horse and buggy, and each of the gentlemen was cautiously seized with the idea that it belonged to the other. Thus believing, No. 1 said, in a casual manner, that he would drive No. 2 down town—meaning, of course, that he would drive his (No. 2's) team for him. No. 2, fully believing that the team was No. 1's, and being loth and the pair got into the buggy and drove to No. 1's office, where they disembarked and went in. The business transacted, No. 2 came down stairs and returned to his store without a thought of taking what he supposed was No. 1's team. The latter had hardly resumed his occupation when there came into his office, in much heat and a boiling profane, that he had heard of these horse-thieves, but he didn't suppose that he was one of them, and, fuming that it was a mean trick to take a man's team in that way, and if there was any more in the land it should be used, with much more to the same effect. Of course No. 1 wanted to explain, but it was a long time before the real owner of the property would listen to any explanation, so firmly was he convinced that it was

The District Attorney of Brooklyn has entered a nolle prosequi in all the suits growing out of the Beecher-Nilton scandal, and there is little probability that the grand jury will ever be prominently before the public again. The biggest blow which the whiskey ring has received was struck, the other day, at St. Louis, in the conviction of Col. John A. Virginia City, Nev., has been visited by a large portion of the most important part of the city. The fire began at daylight on the morning of Oct. 26, in a private dwelling on C street, and in a very short time had spread to the Consolidated Virginia mine, the Metropolitan Hotel, and several other prominent structures in its course, and soon the whole business portion of C street, from the Odd Fellows' building north was a mass of flames.

The Consolidated Virginia mine, the depot, the newspaper, and in a few minutes the building works of the Consolidated Virginia, together with the large C street mill and the stamp department of the California mine were destroyed.

The Ophir mine works, which had just been completed, were the finest on the Comstock lode, and were totally destroyed. Both the Ophir and the Consolidated Virginia shafts were built under, so that the fire was kept out of the mine. The fire continued to rage during the entire morning, all efforts to stop its course proving futile. There was a good supply of water, and the fire engines seemed to have no effect on the drying engine.

The Agricultural Department crop returns for October show that the wheat crop of the present year is a short one, and that there is a decided deterioration in quality. The average yield per acre is about 80 per cent. of the year's production. If this indicates the total depreciation, it amounts to nearly 62,000,000 bushels, and gives the crop at 246,000,000 bushels. In quality the crop averages 14 per cent. below a sound condition. The condition of the corn crop is exceptionally light. The product reported this year falls short of 1874 about 4 per cent. The oats product is 5 per cent. greater than last year. The potato crop promises to be extraordinary, both in yield and quality. Tobacco is 2 per cent. above the aver-
