ABROAD.

The political phase of the Egyptian war was discussed in the French Chambers and in the English Parliament on the 18th inst. The close co-operation of the two Powers seemed likely to result. The French cabinet adopted a resolution based on three conditions, viz.: Turkey's reply to the identical note of the Powers inviting the Powers to send troops to Egypt; decision of the Conference; and the action of the Parliament. Subject to these conditions the two Governments were entirely agreed in regard to the terms upon which their forces should be sent to Egypt.

In the House of Commons Sir Charles Dilke, Under Foreign Secretary, said that the identical note addressed by the Powers to the Porte was still unanswered. He said that the British Government is preparing to move. Disposition and indignation were most keen at the great blunder of allowing the favorable moment for the success of Arabi Bey to slip by, while his troops were detained inactively by orders from home.

A CABLE telegram from the City of Mexico says: "We have had a very severe shock in Mexico, lasting for several days. People were on their knees in the streets. Not much damage was done, but the buildings could not stand much more rocking. The shock was felt nearly all over the country." The British Government is preparing to move. Disposition and indignation were most keen at the great blunder of allowing the favorable moment for the success of Arabi Bey to slip by, while his troops were detained inactively by orders from home.

EGYPT.

A second proclamation of Arabi says: "The Khedive has appointed his Ministers at Alexandria, in order that they may be instructed in English. The English cabinet, as judged by Raghib Pasha, authorized the formation of military preparations were vigorously exerted from him, and therefore it is not probable that war exists between us and the English."

Arabi Pasha, after the bombardment of Alexandria, spread the report that the English troops had been defeated. The conduct of the natives, consequently, was very insolent, and the position critical.

CAIRO, July 21.—It is reported that Arabi is preparing to move. He will not be moved until he has secured the support of the Egyptian people. The first of these conditions is the withdrawal of the British troops from Egypt.

ALFARAJI, July 21, 6 p. m.—The situation in regard to the water supply is becoming alarming. There has been a fall of the Mshmid Canal of two inches. Unless more troops arrive soon to enable General Allison to drive Arabi Pasha from the pumping stations the consequences will be terrible.
