Labor and Capital.
The working mechanics of this city, in several of our large branches of manufacture, have, for several weeks past, been contriving and employing means to increase the rates of wages in the several callings—some with more, and some with less of success. The ordinary instrumentalities of trades' unions, combinations, bills of prices, committees and the like, have been resorted to, and in some instances strikes, with proscription of those that continue to work on at the old rates.
Under such circumstances, it is natural that the employers should also combine to make the resistance equal to the pressure; and then the question is, not which party is in the right, but which is able to hold out the longest, in a condition that, to both, is distressing and injurious.

It is not probable that these movements, on the part of the working men, ever occur without the existence of some actual suffering. People of those classes, as a whole, usually continue content while they are able to live as they have been accustomed, and pay the expenses of the week with its earnings. That they have not been able to do so during the past winter, and are not now, is probable; and yet it is easy to understand that such a state of things may exist without any fault or oppression on the part of their employers. We may sympathize with the operative who finds himself poorer than of old, worse fed, worse clothed, and reduced to a meaner lodging, and yet imagine several reasons why this may all be, and no blame at all be chargeable to the master. Indeed, the latter may be suffering, though in another way, more than the former: his capital wasting away under the effect of unpropitious seasons, or locked up in unsold wares; and he even descending rapidly to poverty, while, for the sake of his credit, he feels it necessary to keep up appearances, and continue his manufacture, upon the strength of a hope for better times. Many manufacturers—and some good and noble men that we know of in this city—never forget the bond which unites in one whole the interests of the employer and the employee; and it is no uncommon event that many hundreds of the latter are kept at work and paid wages, when it would be greatly for the interest of the former to close his shops, suspend his operations, and await a market for the goods he has on hand.

It is a mean and bigoted view of human nature which assumes that the master is always a tyrant, and the workman always the victim of oppression; and it is equally so to assume that the workman is an irrational creature, influenced only by a desire to get as much as possible out of the wants of the master. There is a broader and better view—and a truer one also—which looks upon both as parts of the same great system for the production of a common end, for a mutual good; each necessary to, and each sympathizing with the other. And this—where there are no extraneous causes of excitement—is, we believe, in general, the feeling upon both sides. The laborer desires that his employer shall prosper, and loves to think that he is attached to a wealthy and rising concern; and the employer contemplates with pleasure the fact that his workmen have been with him year after year, and that out of the profits of his trade he has been able to make them contented and happy. This is, we are convinced, the true philosophy of the case; and it is only when it is forgotten by one side or the other, or both, that difficulties like the present occur.

When men suffer they are apt to be unreasonable. Discovering what appears to be the immediate cause of their difficulty, they forbear to go farther, and against that, right or wrong, direct their enmity. The workmen of this city suffer. The immediate cause of complaint is, that they do not get money enough from their employers to supply their wants; and, therefore, they charge the employer with oppression. The active trouble, which usually commences in the lowest ranks—with the poorest workmen—is fomented by persons fond of mischief or excitement, busy-bodies, individuals fond of hearing themselves talk.
When excited, men are credulous, and give heed to reports and rumors which, in their cooler moments, they would discredit. Meetings are called, heat is generated, rash resolutions passed, and rash actions determined upon; and a body of respectable and comfortable working mechanics find themselves, they scarcely know how, transformed into a herd of slaves, sternly resolved upon freedom, and panting to be revenged upon their stony-hearted taskmasters. Then comes a trial of powers of endurance—master against men, men against master. The day of a strike is the millennium of the good-for-nothing. The little savings of the skillful and the thrifty are drawn out to sustain the lazy and the inefficient.

To the unemployed, poverty comes on apace; and let the end arrive as it may, it brings with it feelings of bitterness that are not soon forgotten.

NEW BOOKS.
THE WESTERN FRUIT BOOK: OF AMERICAN FRUIT-GROWERS' GUIDE, FOR THE UNITED STATES AND TERRITORIES. BY F. H. ELLIOTT. New York:
A. Moore. Cincinnati: Riekey, Mallory & Co.
The approval of this book by the fruit-growers is manifest by the fact that this is the fourth edition that has been published. In the preface the author sets forth that the present is more full and complete than previous editions. It may, therefore, now be looked upon as a full compend of the history, modes of propagation, and culture of fruit-trees and shrubs, with descriptions of nearly all the varieties of fruits cultivated in this country, with notes of their adaptation to localities and soils, with a list of those that are worthy of cultivation. To the fruit-grower, especially in the West, such a work can not be otherwise than valuable.

THE PRINCIPLES OF NATURAL AND POLITIC ECONOMY. BY J. B. BURMAN. Columbus: J. H.
Riley & Co. Cincinnati: Robert Clark & Co.
Among the old writers upon the Law of Nature and of Nations, the author of this treatise is entitled to a high, and perhaps the highest place. His philosophy of law and government, more consistent than that of any other author of the class to which he belongs, approaches more nearly to the best philosophy of our own day. Eminent religious, he was still a strong advocate of entire freedom of reason in religious matters; while his work is distinguished for a clearness of style and a perspicuity of reasoning not common in the works of legal or philosophical literature. The publishers have done well in bringing to notice this sterling work, which is thus placed within the reach of those whose tastes lead them to investigate in the field of natural law.

HOME INTERESTS.
Leavitt & Bevis' Hosiery Store, Northwest corner VINE and FIFTH STREETS.—When the result of the next census is published, we shall then be in better condition than we are at present to estimate how many pairs of stockings, great, middling and small, will be required, monthly or annually, for the wants of the entire community for ensuing years. And we are compelled to say the same of gloves, as well as other articles in the Personal Furnishing line. Therefore, in the absence of such important statistical information, there is no alternative left us but to "guess." Well, we suppose, as the wear and tear of those articles are pretty considerable in the Queen City and environs, the stocks on hand, at all times, can not be less than some three millions pairs of stockings, and about two millions five hundred thousand pairs of gloves, of all kinds and sizes. Of the other articles to which we refer, under the humanitarian term of "Personal Furnishing," we can not so much as form a conception—the calculation is too great for our arithmetical skill.

But if we have fallen into an error in any of the above estimates, we know we are in good hands—as our friends whose names adorn the top of this "article" (though not quite so much as their personal attendance benefits the trade which they so aptly conduct)—we say our friends, Leavitt & Bevis, are the very men who can set us right. And we hope when next they advertise their immense stock of goods, they will gratify us in this one request—to let us know how many pairs of feet—not that, but how many pairs of stockings are required annually for the two hundred thousand pairs of feet which pater, walk, march or stamp along the streets and lanes of this, our proud and prosperous city.

When we are told what the extent of the Hosiery and Glove trade of the city is, then, possibly, we shall be tempted to try the difficult problem of how many stores, how many square feet of store-room, how many counters, how many shelves, drawers and boxes, and how many "nice young men" are really indispensable for the successful carrying on of this elegant and necessary business.

In the mean time, we must be content with what we do know—a portion of which is, that Leavitt & Bevis' Cincinnati Hosiery establishment is in a first-rate house, of four lofty stories, each floor being thirty feet in width and seventy-five feet deep. The store is fitted up with considerable neatness, and a special eye to the convenience of customers. The elegant counters are furnished with silver-mounted show-cases, in which are exhibited specimens of various kinds of Hosiery and other Goods, while the comfort of purchasers is consulted by a liberal supply of soft and easy seats.

Yesterday, as we walked along the splendid aisle, enjoying the view on either side, we could not but admire the almost perfection of arrangement, while the variety and excellence of the goods, and the urbane and courteous attention of the enterprising proprietors and their numerous clerks deserve, at least, a passing compliment.

Here we saw, in the Shirt Department, those well-known makes—Winchester, Pembroke and Golden Hill, besides Marseilles, Plain Silk, French Chints, Woolen and other Shirts.
Here we saw piles of Undershirts and Drawers, the former thirty-two inches by forty-four inches, and the latter twenty-eight inches by forty-four inches.

The stocks of Ladies' Hosiery, Misses' Hose, Boys' Socks and Men's Hose and Hair Hose, are very large, including Long Mixed, Merino and Sooth Lamb's Wool Hose; Cotton Hose, English, French, Boston ribbed, seely lined, etc., also, white, black, flesh, China, pearl, and other kinds of Ladies', Misses' and Infants' Hosiery. There is also abundance of country-knit, Ladies' theatrical and fancy plaid and striped Hose.

Turning from the Hosiery, our attention was attracted to the Gloves. Here were Silk Gloves cut like kid, and lined with silk floss; also, cloth, kid, cashmere, knit, Lisle thread, Berlin, Opera, short and long lace and other kinds of Gloves. The Gannetts are equally varied, and are of silk, cloth and leather. As for Mittens, they are almost innumerable.

Ladies' Handkerchiefs are of cambric, linen cambric, linen clear lawn, cambric embroidered, and other kinds.
Gentlemen's Handkerchiefs are of white linen, fancy silk, Bandana, Spitalfield, and other styles.
Cravats, Ties and Stocks are in profusion.
We name a few: Black Italian Silk, black figured Silk, and fancy-striped, plaid and other Cravats; and Long Black Silk, Satin-cord, figured and fancy Moire Antique, De Joinville and other Scarfs; Beaufort, Albert, Tubular, Ribbon and other Ties; black and fancy Silk and Satin Stocks, etc.

We shall not trouble our readers with a more extended list, though we feel satisfied that very many of them will thank us for drawing their attention to the stock of Messrs. Leavitt & Bevis. But, before we close, we would mention the Theatrical and Equestrian Goods for gentlemen, which include Flesh and Pink-colored, White and Unbleached Cotton Tights and Shirts; also Blue, Scarlet, Black and Crimson Worsted Tights; Fancy Worsted Trunks; Cotton Opera Hose, white, unbleached and black; Silk Opera Hose, brown, blue, scarlet, etc.

But enough; we have no intention of publishing a catalogue, but to indicate the sort of goods in stock and on sale at the north-west corner of Vine and Fifth streets.

Winder, on Western Row, opposite Court street, is still in a flourishing condition, taking Pictures beautiful and cheap.
To get a good Melanotype, Stillman is the gentleman to apply to. He insures a correct Picture always.

Magnificent Pictures are taken at the Broadway Gallery of Art for the nominal sum of twenty-five cents. "Wonderful." Wonderful!—The Alabastrine Pictures taken by Harlan & Wilson, on Fourth street, Go and see them.

An old Garment can be made to look as well as new, by leaving it at Booker's, on Sixth street, near Vine. Try it.
Snowdon & Otte have now on hand a very large stock of Certain Goods of all kinds, Oil-cloths and every thing that comes under the head of House Furnishing Goods.

The Bread Manufactured by the Union Steam Baking Company is of a very superior quality. So say those who have used it. To those who have not yet given it a trial, we would say do so at once.

LUNG AND THROAT
INSTITUTE,
No. 30 WEST FOURTH STREET.
The following letter is from one of our well known merchants. Whatever he indorses must be of sterling value. It is well worth reading: CINCINNATI, February 13, 1859.
About a month ago I called at Dr. Ayer's "Throat and Lung Institute," 30 West Fourth street, for treatment of my Throat and Chronic Inflammation of the Throat. The tonsils and uvula (or palate) were so much enlarged that they seemed to cut me out of course to breathe, and that was to cut them off. I had been told by other physicians, who had also candidly told me they could not cure me. Dr. Ayer made a careful examination and pronounced excision unnecessary, and prescribed Medicated Inhalation and topical applications, with general treatment, and the result is a perfect cure. The inflammation has been allayed, and the tonsils and uvula are equal to their natural size and position. I now have no sore-ness or difficulty whatever of the throat, and FEEL WELL AS NOW PERFECTLY WELL.
I cordially commend Dr. Ayer as a skillful and competent physician in his specialty, and worthy of all confidence. His mode of treatment is rational, pleasant, and certainly in my case successful, and I have every reason to believe his Doctor is equally successful in all other cases while I have been under treatment at no Institute.
