SATURDAY, APRIL 9

The Neapolitan Exiles in London.

At noon on Monday, the 21st ult., a grand and enthusiastic reception was given to the Neapolitan refugees, who arrived by the Great Western Railway from Bristol. The crowd was immense, and the enthusiasm very great. As the train came under the arches of the terminus, a loud outburst of feeling arose, the echoes of which vibrated again; and the stepping out of the carriages of those brave men was the signal for renewed applause.

Those that arrived were Vito Purcaro, aged 34, a lawyer; Luigi Praino, 42, lawyer; Vincenzo Cuzucero, 32, doctor; Salvatore Fanciullo, 50; Achille Argentino, 42, gentleman; Francesco Procenano, 40, military; Domenico Tani, 34, gentleman; Ovidio Serino, 43, Bishop; Angelo Pellegrino, 53, lawyer; Raffaele Marro, 32, gentleman; Giuseppe Pace, 32, gentleman; Filippo Agresti, 63, military; Pietro Masella, 56, lawyer; Carlo de Angelis, 42, lawyer; Luigi Parenti, 39, gentleman.

Mr. Kope, Signor Filopanti, Mr. Murphy, Q. Mr. Nivoley, and other gentlemen, headed a procession the Great Western Hotel, where refreshment was provided for them. The crowd was immense, and the band outside played a number of martial pieces.

Mr. Hodge, who has taken a very active part in the reception generally, read an address to give his assistance, which was responded to by Signor Domenico Danis, in the Italian language. He said they accepted this demonstration in the name of Italian liberty. They had always looked upon England as a great and free nation; and if, in her future destinies, it should ever be in the power of the foreigner to give her assistance, which was responded to by Signor Domenico Danis, in the Italian language. He said they accepted this demonstration in the name of Italian liberty.

Signor Filopanti then pronounced a most eloquent "Welcome to London," to his fellow-countrymen, which was no sooner concluded than the Italians in the crowd rushed forward and embraced and kissed their exiled countrymen in the most affectionate manner. It seemed impossible for them to restrain their joy; and when the cars were drawn up to convey the exiles away the latter were lifted almost bodily from the steps to the vehicles. The harness of the horses was dressed with laurels, and the oxides were preceded by an Italian band of music, playing national airs. Banners and Union Jacks were carried in advance. On one of the banners were the words, "Exiles! Welcome to free England;" on another, "The unity and independence of Italy." The procession moved through the streets at a slow pace, and at various stations there were repeated manifestations of popular sympathy.

A fund is being raised in England for the exiles, the general meetings of which are generally attended by the Earls of Shaftesbury, Carlisle, Granville and Ripon, Viscount Palmerston, Lord John Russell, the Right Hon. Earl of Devon, Sir J. Lubbock, Sir D. Dundas; the Deans of Westminster and St. Paul's; the Hon. A. Kinnaird, M. P., Mr. Wentworth Beaumont, M. P., etc.

It was moved by Viscount Palmerston, and seconded by Lord John Russell and Mr. W. Ewart, in the most courteous and respectful manner, was declined. Next day, the 22nd of February, they renewed their importunities, and gave him formal notice of a regular suit and action for damages, on account of their illegal detention, to be instituted by every individual of the sixty-six Neapolitans before the courts of the State of New York. This argument was wholly unavailing, and was better of it. No violence was attempted or threatened; however justifiable, in case of extreme necessity, such conduct might have been, none of the elder prisoners, and certainly not Signor Luigi Settembrini, would have sanctioned the course in safety, to receive the congratulations of all Ireland, England and Scotland, as an earnest of their happy restoration to their native land.

TYLER, OF DETROIT.—Our readers will remember that this man was arraigned on a charge of murder, for having killed Captain Jones, in a Canadian port. The verdict was manslaughter, and the sentence, by Judge Wilkins, just this—one month's imprisonment in the jail, and to pay one dollar fine. Henceforth, in connection with this Tyler trial, that neither the people of Detroit or Michigan, nor any of our city or State authorities, had any thing to do with the matter. The Judge, Marshal, District Attorney and jury, were all United States officials, who, we hardly need repeat, are in interest, officially, at least, no part of our people—have no sympathy with them, do not recognize our laws, except when they don't interfere with the policy or views of the General Administration, and have no very strong sympathies for any thing except the Union and the necessity of saving it, albeit they are all very respectable citizens otherwise. This sentence is an outrage, we admit, but it should not attach to the people of Detroit or Michigan. Let our cotemporaries put the censure where it belongs.

COUNTERTREIF MONEY.—A telegraphic dispatch from New Orleans, by the banking-house of Wirt, Adams & Co., should put our citizens on their guard relative to taking tons of the Citizens' Bank of New Orleans. "Don't take METS of Citizens' Bank—city is flooded with counterfeits, which deceive the best eyes."

In the rough clothes of a common ship-boy, joined the crew of the clipper, a mixed crew of Yankees, Irishmen and negroes. He had one narrow escape from discovery when the Captain of the Ettore Fieramosca, who had previously seen him dressed in an English uniform, came on board the David Stewart, and stood close to him, but without recognizing him. If he had been detected when on board the Neapolitan frigate, he would assuredly have been claimed as a subject of King Bomba, and carried off to pine away and rot in some one of the notorious and horrible caverns where, loaded with irons, and starved with the privation of food and daylight, the unhappy crew of that almost incredible cruelty are doomed to endure a living death. But at last the clipper, with her noble freight of patient and suffering witnesses to the cause of right and truth, towed by the Neapolitan steamer, stood out to sea. It would be an error to suppose that, in what was subsequently done to change the destination of the vessel, Settembrini and his comrades had no other object than to spare themselves the fatigue and loss of time of a voyage to and fro across the Atlantic. It is true that those who might survive on the arrival of the David Stewart at New York would have been exempt from personal restraint after confinement, and exposed to sickness in the destination of the vessel, Settembrini and his comrades had no other object than to spare themselves the fatigue and loss of time of a voyage to and fro across the Atlantic. It is true that those who might survive on the arrival of the David Stewart at New York would have been exempt from personal restraint after confinement, and exposed to sickness in the destination of the vessel, Settembrini and his comrades had no other object than to spare themselves the fatigue and loss of time of a voyage to and fro across the Atlantic.

Eighteen estates in Cuba have recently suffered severely from a fire which raged through them all for several days in succession. Mr. Rary, the horse-tamer, is to receive $3,000 for imparting to fifty men in the British cavalry his system of horse-taming. A cigar-maker on Market street, Louisville, cut his throat on Thursday. He was not dead on Friday morning. No cause has been assigned for the deed.

The steamer Baltimore has been partially raised. She was near Annapolis on Tuesday, and it was expected she would reach Baltimore to-day. Yesterday was the day appointed for the execution of the four criminals in Baltimore, when, it is believed, they underwent the extreme penalty of the law. In the recent canvass in Niagara, Orleans and Genesee counties, New York, for Senator, there was no less than one hundred and ten candidates voted for.

Lawrence O'Toole, of Louisville, Ky., who was seriously stabbed by John Gray, on Monday night, in a row, is slowly sinking. There is scarcely a hope of his recovery. Mr. Charlton Morgan, of Lexington, has received the appointment of Consul at Nice. The Statesman speaks in the highest terms of the appointment. Says the Ohio State Journal: The Artesian well has reached a depth of 1,956 feet. Going down is slow business with the great bore, but as its rival, the Legislature, has left town, perhaps the well will get a new start.

Mr. T. B. Jones, the sculptor, has returned to Columbus, with the mold of Gov. Chase's bust, and has located in Walnut's building, corner of High and Town streets, where the casting will be done. The bodies of two men were found in Blue River, on Tuesday, one at the point where the Cincinnati Railroad crosses, in the town of Shelbyville, and the other about a mile and a half below.

Since the arrest of Argentine, the Virginian forger, in Boston, he has been identified as partner with some time since, uttered forged checks to the value of $3,200, in Charleston, South Carolina. In 1858, for the first time, English exports to British India exceeded those of the United States, the value to the former country being about eighty-four millions of dollars, while the United States reached only seventy millions.

A New York correspondent of the Savannah Republican is informed that "Mr. Sickles, in motion for his liberation, will commence an action for libel against the proprietors of the Evening Post, they having, since the homicide, kept up a bitter and unceasing series of attacks upon his private character." The Vienna correspondent of the London Times says: "Under all circumstances, as regards Italy, the danger is passing off for the present. It is a great point that the Emperor will have, some time since, uttered forged checks to the value of $3,200, in Charleston, South Carolina. In 1858, for the first time, English exports to British India exceeded those of the United States, the value to the former country being about eighty-four millions of dollars, while the United States reached only seventy millions.

Reports having been made that the Turkish Government was preparing formidable armaments, the Turkish Minister in Paris has given an assurance that the Divan had merely ordered two camps of observation of 5,000 men each, one at Sophia and the other at Shumla, in Bulgaria. The proposition to construct a road from Shelbyville to Hobbs' station, on the Louisville and Frankfort Road, has been lately revived. This road was commenced six or eight years ago, and one-half of the grading done; but cash and courage failed, and the enterprise stopped.

On Wednesday the body of a man was discovered hanging to a fence stake, near Green Lawn Cemetery, Columbus, Ohio. The man, whose death was most shocking, had opened all the veins of his arms and wrists, and then suspended himself by the neck from the top of the fence stake. On Saturday last, a woman of Italian extraction, residing in Chicago, gave birth to twins, and soon after became deranged, and, horrified to relate, before the children were lifted from her grasp, she mangled one of them with her teeth, causing its immediate death. The poor woman is dying.

The fugitive slave, whose arrest has caused so much disturbance in Philadelphia, has been identified as the property of Mr. Simpson, of London County, Va. The excitement in the Quaker City, especially in the vicinity of Fifth and Chestnut streets, was so great on Monday and Tuesday that more riots were apprehended. One day last week, the wife of a man living near Georgetown, Del., left her husband and took up with a younger man. The next day the husband called upon his rival, when the two men sat down on a log and calmly adjusted the difference, the husband accepting seven dollars and a dog for his claim and right to his former wife. What a philosopher!

The body of a man, supposed to have been five months in the water, was found at the foot of Mulberry street, St. Louis, on Wednesday. There were on his right forearm the letters "A. McF." in India ink, with representations of two stars and a heart, and the figures "1827." Several severe contusions were found about the right side of the head. Foul play is suspected. A Berlin correspondent intimates the probability of an early abdication on the part of King of Prussia. It is supposed that a political amnesty, prepared for publication on the christening of the infant Prince, will be published on the accession of Wilhelm I., the future title of the Prince Regent. The Prince and Princess Frederick William will be styled Crown Prince and Princess.

An aerial machine has been constructed by a gentleman of Erie, Pennsylvania, named Lynn, and he proposes, as a convenient, central point, to make an ascension and trip from Columbus, bus if the proper arrangements can be made. Thirty-six thousand cubic feet of hydrogen gas manufactured by the vitriolic process, will be used, making an assenive power of about two thousand pounds. The operator does not propose to cross the Atlantic nor make a voyage to the moon, but is merely about to test the application of motive-power to the propulsion of bodies in the air.—O. S. Journal.

JOSEPH MCKINNEY.—The following is from the Dayton Gazette of yesterday: This ubiquitous character has, Micawber like, "turned up" again, under circumstances that warrant the belief that he will be returned to jail. A dispatch was received from Rising Sun, Ind., asking if he should be arrested, to which answer was immediately returned ordering his apprehension; and another dispatch was received stating that he was arrested and in jail. Officer Van Doren started after him yesterday afternoon, and it is probable he will arrive with his prisoner some time to-day.

FIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.—In Pike Township, Knox County, a few days since, a distressing accident occurred, caused by falling timbers of a barn, which a party of men were raising, on the farm of Richard Soles. Daniel Soles, a brother of Richard, had his pelvis bone broken and the passage of the bladder torn so badly that he died on Friday. Joshua Babbs, a son of Charles Babbs, had his skull fractured; his recovery is considered doubtful.—Soles, a son of Richard, was severely injured in the head, but it is believed that he will recover. John Eckenrode and George Phillips had both legs broken above the ankle, but both will recover. Hiram Porch, the carpenter who had charge of the job, had two ribs broken, but was not otherwise injured. Adam Shipley was somewhat injured internally, but had no bones broken.—Columbus Journal.
