CINCINNATI, TUESDAY, JUNE 28.

CORRESPONDENCE, containing important news, solicited from any quarter of the world.

Kossuth and Mazzini.

In all revolutionary movements which have proved unsuccessful, whether social, religious, or political, the causes of failure, as it seems to us, can be philosophically discussed and demonstrated. It is a mighty work to change the character of any people. Political leaders, generally, however, appear to think that, if the form or system of government be changed, the first, if not the great fundamental step has been taken to secure liberty, and happiness! Every man of moderate experience and ordinary sagacity, knows, nevertheless, that liberty—meaning freedom from outward control and restraint—is, in many cases, the source of great dangers, and fruitful in disasters to those not prepared to enjoy liberty. The nature of man is such that he requires LAW of some sort for his guidance, as an individual, as an integral part of a social and civil body or state. If men do not get these laws from the statute book of the great Lawyer of Heaven and Earth, by which to regulate their evil impulses, and discipline their wild thoughts, and then bear to them such true allegiance as to carry them out practically in all their relations of life—what then? Why, it is very clear that human laws must be enacted and enforced by stringent penalties, to form and preserve society in all its varied phases. Now, the more mankind are governed by these internal laws, the more they are "a law unto themselves," the less need there is for any other sort of laws; and so being at liberty, these external, legal restraints become not only unnecessary, but positively injurious to society and to the world. It is very clear then, that the first step in the preparation of a people for the enjoyment of political liberty, is to enlighten their minds as to what is true, morally and civilly, and then by a humble and sincere obedience in their life to the truth, to ignore, and virtually repeal all despotic, arbitrary and conventional laws and regulations.

As doctrine is the harmonious coherence and unity of a variety of simple truths—it is the practical form or system thereof, be it a religious creed, a political constitution, or a civil code. In this sense, then, a form is important, to any government, but it is an empty box until filled with the spirit and truths that are to animate and give it practical life and direction.

If this be a true philosophy, then it is not, certainly, a wise procedure to get the form or system first, before there is anything to give it an appropriate life and practical purpose and end. First make the people truly free, and then a change in the form of government, to give the best adaptation to the national thought and heart will be easy. All effort to found Republics or free States, must ever be abortive, without the inevitable condition precedent to which we have very briefly adverted.

Both Kossuth and Mazzini are types of two classes of reformers, though not very distinct or well defined representative men. MAZZINI, we take to be a wild rhapsodist, an impracticable abstractionist, so full of self-conceit as to leave no room for anything true and good; having really no more to do with the revolutionary storm, than the rain drop which gives a prismatic ray to the heat and light of the great luminary.

KOSSUTH admits himself, in his late speeches before English audiences, that he is very much changed. Calm reflection vivified by a sincere love for national, useful liberty, has given him glimpses of a new political philosophy. A wise and ever-ruling Providence selects the instruments of divine justice, and not Kossuth! who he has learned, and to some extent, a blind instrument in shaping the destinies of nations. He appears to be cognizant of part of that great truth, that evil is the most powerful and effective agent for the destruction of the evil and the false, while truth, directed by goodness, is the appropriate instrument to fill the waste and reconstruct a new edifice, be it social, political, or ecclesiastical. To Napoleon III, the work of overthrowing the despotism of Austria, may be allotted, and to guide and uphold for a time; and then to others in the future, the more glorious work to germinate the seeds and develop the fruit. The finite cannot comprehend the infinite.

THE "HEDGE AND HIGHWAY" OF EUROPEAN CROWNED HEADS.—Louis Napoleon has a migratory pulpit, from which he is preaching not poor politics—but popular sovereignty—in Milan, in Lombardy. He outdoes Douglas in appealing to the people to manifest their own legitimate wishes—and rather shames his uncle N. B., and his American cousin, J. B., by his example of non-intervention—except for internal order. Czar Alexander, of Russia, has commenced demagoguing it a little in a stump speech circular, endorsing L. N., and goes in for popular sovereignty in Italy. Austria may fight on, he says, and get whipped, but significantly intimates that if Germany interferes, he will bring the full force of Russia to aid France, and he will see that the righteous quarrel of Napoleon with Joseph is fairly fought out. He assures Germany, particularly its few restless States, that France has no design to injure the interests or dignity of the great power of which Prussia is the head and natural protector. We have had no demonstrations lately on Fifth-street Market-space, that has been sensational or up to the full demands of the masses. We would engage that any party having the names of L. N., and the Russian Alexander, on their bills as speakers, at a mass meeting, in favor of Italian Liberty, would make a decided hit and draw a crowded house.

Local News.

CINCINNATI PIONEER ASSOCIATION.—The quarterly meeting was held in the Council Chamber on Saturday afternoon. Capt. Wm. Templeton, now of St. Louis, but formerly of Cincinnati, enrolled his name as a member. A copy of the Western Spy was exhibited, of date January 25, 1864, containing an account of a Masonic funeral of Israel Ludlow, one of the original proprietors of Cincinnati, at which Jacob Burnet, Ethan Stone, Patrick Dickey and Charles Kilgour, were pall-bearers. Hon. John Charles Symmes, on the part of Nova Cesarea Lodge, delivered a discourse at his grave, which was but a few steps from the spot where the office of the "Daily Press" is situated. A marble slab, on the exterior wall of the First Presbyterian Church, in the rear of our counting-room, is the only monumental record of this worthy Pioneer. His relief, Mrs. Charlotte Chambers Ludlow, afterwards married Rev. David Risk, and removed with him to Franklin, Missouri, where she died in 1829. A proposition lays over to ascertain the views of the Directors of Spring Grove Cemetery, in reference to the transfer of Gen. Gano's monument to the Pioneer Lot. Specimens of continental money, date 1796, were sent in by Mr. Stephen Gore Brown. From a few more contributions of this kind of money, with nearly a bushel of broken bills heretofore received of Mr. Longworth, a fund will be secured to erect Pioneer Monument designed by Jones.

Wm. Carey, of College Hill, a member, sent in a communication which gives in detail particulars of an incident, which we thus abbreviate for our columns: Party spirit ran high in Hamilton county when the first Constitutional Convention assembled. The Republicans carried the day here, over the Federalists, and celebrated their victory with great rejoicing, on receiving news of the admission of the State. Symmes, Flint, Ramsey, and others, got up a barbecue, and in procession marched under a triumphal arch erected over Main street, to commemorate the event, but at night the federalists turned the joke on them by removing the columns and arch from their place of deposit in George Gordon's log tavern, on Main street, near Front, and lashing the whole to the pilory and whipping-post, which, in those days, stood on Fifth street near Main. On the arch, thus dishonored, was a picture of a rising sun with the inscription—"The sun of Liberty has arisen never to set."

DAYTON AND CINCINNATI (SHORT LINE) R. R. Co.—In January, 1851, Erasmus Gest, Engineer, made a survey of a line for a railroad from Cincinnati to Dayton, reducing the distance by 7 1/2 miles, between its termini. From the flattering report that the route would be straight—be free from objectionable curves and grades, he unusually free from level road-crossings, entirely so in the vicinity of this city, wherein came across no streets, alleys, and could be run with higher speed and greater safety on this account, that its route was free from large bridges and exempt from the effect of flood, and its trains would not be detained from damage to bridges by fire or water; that the local travel would be extensive, from the rural and village residences to spring up along the line—for these reasons, we say, a furor prevailed at the time, in reference to the value of this enterprise, and the stock was rapidly taken. Ferrell & Dunham, contractors, commenced work on the tunnel in 1852, at the south approach, by three shafts ranging from 150 to 200 feet deep under Kemper or Walnut Hill, at head of Valley of Deer Creek. They completed about two-sevenths of the work, and gave up the contract a few years ago.

A revived interest is now awakened for the completion of this road. At a recent election of Directors the following named persons were chosen, viz: Charles Reemelin, John W. Coleman, — Hedger, George Hatch, John Kennett, Edgar Conkling, Dr. Wm. Price, George Robertson, Wm. Loder, Samuel Bereford, Miles Greenwood and Samuel Goodin.

CINCINNATI FIREMEN, TAKE NOTICE.—Last Thursday a foot-race came off at the State Fair Grounds, Indianapolis, on the quarter mile course. The first prize, the Champion Belt, offered to the swiftest freeman, was won by S. Byrkit. Time, 55 seconds. The second prize, a Silver Cup, offered to outside competitors, was won by D. Reppel, in 53 seconds. There were four competitors for the first and ten for the second purse. The slowest time made, one minute seven seconds.

We regret to announce that Lewis Allen, our reporter, who a few days since was attacked by a band of murderers, is about to die. Physicians pronounce the case hopeless. Will the Mayor take the necessary steps for the discovery and arrest of those who committed this inhuman deed?

Quite an excitement was occasioned at the public landing, by a collision which took place yesterday afternoon, between the crew of steamer J. W. Chocomaan and of a barge loading near by. A disturbance of the peace took place and arrests were made by the police.

THE BALLOON AND FIRE WORKS EXHIBITION ON THE FOURTH OF JULY.—The balloon ascension by J. C. Bolman, and Pyrotechnic display by H. P. Diehl, on Monday next, Fourth of July, on the city lot, promises to be a rich treat. The raising of a number of miniature gas balloons, and a figure representing the "flying Dutchman," will be part of the programme. During the afternoon tropical ascensions, to the altitude of several hundred feet, will be made in Mr. Belman's mammoth balloon, "Leviathan," a very interesting novelty in this "neck of the woods." The fire works exhibition, by Mr. Diehl, will exceed anything of the kind ever seen here, and will unquestionably be largely attended. Messrs. Belman and Diehl have been fortunate in securing the services of Menter's famous Cornet Band for both exhibitions. Workmen commenced yesterday erecting the seats for the exhibitions, and raising the poles for Messrs. Belman and Diehl's immense canvas.

MEETING OF THE SCHOOL BOARD.—School Board met last evening. 1. Resignation of teachers. 2. Miss Carter wanted to be teacher. 3. J. I. Allen, Superintendent, made monthly report:

Total enrollment.....17,720
Dist. Schools, average attendance.....9,840
Intermediate.....688
4. Several bills ordered to be paid.
5. Herman Lackman, Trustee 17th Dist., resigned.

6. Davis and Schooley had a battle—in words. Mr. Schooley a very pious man.
7. Mr. S. goes in for an extra meeting. An extra meeting next Friday.

8. Mr. Harding, Committee on School Examination, reports favorable. Number of scholars examined, 1,650. Report accepted.
9. N. Peabody Poor re-elected Librarian; John Poor and J. Repens, Assistants.
10. After transacting some unimportant business the Board adjourned.

WILLIAM GOODLING, charged with being concerned in the late attempt at burglary, at Bartlett's residence on Ninth street, is to have an examination to-morrow before the Police Court.

THE INDEPENDENT DETECTIVE POLICE.—This organization is now fairly under way, and proves to be a very useful one. A large body of regular police, but entirely neglected by the regular force, comes into their hands. Among these is looking up hidden evidence for lawyers. A number of valuable witnesses, in important cases, have been found by the independent detectives. This morning Captain Ruffin returned to a firm in this city a lot of silver ware, stolen some time ago. It had been found in the possession of a convicted criminal in Philadelphia. Information is daily received at the office from all parts of the country, with daguerotypes of fugitives, etc., all of which are carefully matured, and a sharp lookout kept for the flying rogues.

The above is from the Daily Times of last evening. The usefulness of the Independent Police is beyond all question, especially as a large number of the regular police are green officers and know but little of their business.

Y. M. M. L. ASS. OF CINCINNATI, O. THE BEST IN THE UNITED STATES.—Louisville is about moving in establishing a Mercantile Library Association. After a visit to all the institutions of the kind in the country, the Louisville Courier says:

In devising ways and means for the successful organization of a library and reading room, for the benefit and accommodation of merchants and citizens generally, it will, perhaps, be well to take a retrospective glance at the plan of organization and history of similar institutions in other cities.

For example, take the Young Men's Mercantile Library Association of Cincinnati, Ohio, THAN WHICH WE COULD NOT FIND AN INSTITUTION THAT HAS BEEN MORE EMINENTLY SUCCESSFUL, OR THAT WOULD BE A BRIGHTER OR MORE WORTHY MODEL FROM WHICH TO PATTERN.

LAW REPORT.

COMMON PLEAS.

DECREES FOR DIVORCE.—Sedam vs. Sedam. The petitioner, Mrs. M. Sedam, applied for alimony out of the estate of her husband, but did not ask a divorce; the respondent answered, and filed a counter petition asking for a divorce on the ground of gross neglect of duty. After the evidence closed, Judge Carter proceeded to decide the case. As a Judge he was opposed to granting alimony where a divorce was not granted, as it was, in reality, granting a divorce in name of deceit; and although it would look as if the statute would recognize a divorce of the kind, it was subversive of all morals to encourage it. In cases where a divorce was granted, he would be disposed to allow only a mere subsistence, such as would make his wife feel that she had the protection of a husband, and thus induce the parties to come together as speedily as possible.

In this case, the cause of complaint originated many years ago, and the matter being as well known then to the wife as now, she would then have had the right to abandon his house, but having chosen to remain there for twenty years, she should have discharged all the duties of a wife. Instead of this, however, although she may have superintended the household affairs in a very prudent and proper manner, she was not willing to impose upon herself other personal obligations in relation to her husband—in a word, the parties did not live during that length of time as husband and wife. He (Judge Carter) should grant the petition of the husband for a divorce, and allow the wife a living, in the sum of $1,200 per annum (to be made a lien on certain property on the corner of Fifth and Western Row)—also $500 cash, to be paid within thirty days.

THE TRIAL OF CHARLES COOK.—At the setting of the Court, the parties subpoenaed by the special venire were called, and after the entire number had been called through, three additional jurors were obtained, making the entire number seven, five.

The three additional jurors are:—J. S. Dalrymple, Sycamore township; James Stroman, Symmes township; H. B. Ingles, do.

Another venire (the fifth) was then issued and the Court adjourned at half past three o'clock.

(Correspondence of the Daily Press.) VINTON'S HOTEL, Cambridge City, Ind., June 26, 1859.

EDITORS PRESS:—To-day has been a lively day in Wayne county. The Fourth of July is to be a grand gala day here. Every citizen seems imbued with a patriotic ardor truly commendable. Flage, music, oratory and military, is all the talk. Lafa Davelle, a young lawyer, is to be the orator of the day. Music by Muller's one hundred amateurs. They have sent for 2,000 flags, and all are in a high state of anticipation.

THE FIELD OF MAGENTA AFTER THE BATTLE.—The correspondent of the London News, writing under date of June 7th, says: Yesterday evening, not without great difficulty I succeeded in getting here, to inspect the field of the glorious battle fought on Saturday last. My pen is not adequate to describe the heart-rending scene which surrounds me. Trees thrown down by the dreadful effect of artillery; heaps of dead bodies, human limbs scattered about, carriages broken, farm houses burnt, crops trampled, vineyards devastated, houses plundered—such is the deplorable sight which has met my eyes since my arrival in this town. Town, however, Magenta is no more. The small inn whence I am now writing these lines, bears marks of the tremendous struggle, for it was thrice taken and retaken during the action. Not a piece of furniture is to be found, not even a chair to sit upon.

BELLADONA AND PRETTY WOMEN.—The Austrians are accused by the French, of a "mandating" of "pretty women" to be delivered up by the Piedmontese to the rapacity of their soldiers. The Austrian reply is, that they want at Verceilli, "Belladonna" for their sick soldiers, and they demanded it of the Syndic. He said he had not any, and could not find any; but they insisted that he must. The French, to say the Austrians, translated this Bella done (Italian for pretty women) into belladonna (pretty women), and so made them (the Austrians) be asking for women, when they only wanted medicine!

Tuesday afternoon, in the neighborhood of Albany, New York, a violent fall of hail took place. The storm extended over the space of about one mile in width, and continued half an hour. The hail-stones were as big as marbles, and congealed into large cakes of ice almost as soon as they fell. Windows were broken, and flowers, &c., cut to pieces.

A woman, whose name was not ascertained, while kneeling at mass in St. Mary's Church, Endicot street, Boston, Sunday morning, suddenly fell dead to the floor. Coroner Moore took charge of the body, and will investigate the case.

A few days ago there was an election in Douglas county, Ill., for the county seat, and the towns of Arcola and Tuscola were rivals. Neither town has ever before polled 200 votes, yet Arcola gave 1,261 votes and Tuscola 3,851.

It is announced that two letter carriers will, in future, be attached to each Concord steamer, whose business it will be to sort the letters and newspapers on the passage, so that they shall be ready for delivery.

E. Merriam, the weather-wise old gentleman of Brooklyn Heights, has started a monthly journal devoted exclusively to thunder and lightning.

Three Senators of the United States Congress are now in Paris.—Mr. Seward, of New York; Mr. Clingman, of North Carolina; and Mr. Sumner, of Massachusetts.
