INDIANA COMPANY

Purchases Three Local Stone Quarries.

A MILLION DOLLAR DEAL

Closed Tuesday in the Local Business World.

Norris and Christian, Central Ohio Lime and Stone and John Owens Companies to Change Hands

The Ohio and Western Lime company, of Huntington, Ind., through its representatives has made all arrangements for the purchase of three of the big lime and stone companies of Marion county, the Norris and Christian company, the Central Ohio Lime and Stone Company and the John D. Owens and Son quarries.

While the sale has practically been made, the final details will not be worked out before the latter part of the week. The John Evans Lime and stone company, another of Marion's big industries has refused to sell and will remain independent.

The deal, which has been under way for several weeks, was made public Tuesday by President George B. Christian Sr., of the Norris and Christian company, of this city.

Although Mr. Christian would give no figures when interviewed, he stated that the terms of the purchase were very satisfactory to the stockholders of the purchased companies. It is the purpose of the new company to greatly enlarge the local plants and operate them on a larger scale. The new company is not a trust, because the actual money has been paid for the properties and there has been no agreement made in regard to the future plans, say the officers of the Marion concerns.

It is entirely probable that the stockholders of the local companies will hold stock in the new concern. Mr. Christian stated to the Mirror that neither himself nor Mr. John D. Owens will be at the head of the new company, but there is a possibility of them being chosen directors.

A very important office of the purchasing company will be located in this city and several of the company's officers will be located here. The general sales agents of the company will make this city their headquarters.

Mr. Christian, who when the deal is finally consummated, will retire from the active management of the quarries, has been at the head of the Norris and Christian company since its organization twenty-five years ago. For nearly one quarter of a century he has been one of the foremost figures in the lime and stone business of the country.

The John D. Owens quarries have been in operation for the past forty-five years and during a large part of that time, Mr. Owens has been in actual control of the quarries. He succeeded his father John Owens, who died recently.

It is believed that with the powerful capital and backing of the new company and its broadened field of industry of this city will grow to be one of the greatest in the United States.

A New Use for Electricity.

Science has already demonstrated the fact that Electricity is the force which keeps the heart pulsating, the stomach digesting, the kidneys operating, the body moving, the brain scheming, and there is hardly a day but what science proves to the world some new use for Electricity. The drug stores are now selling a device called Electropods, which is claimed to make a battery out of the body. They consist of a positive and negative magnet; the positive is worn in the heel of one shoe, and the negative in the other, and it is claimed that the nerves are the connecting wires between the two magnets, and by wearing them the entire nervous system is fed a mild flow of Electricity the entire day, which is claimed to cure rheumatism in any form. The current is generated in the shoe with the positive magnet and must pass through the entire system to reach the negative in the other shoe. By doing this it creates a good circulation of the blood, and makes cold feet warm.

It is further claimed by wearing these magnets, the entire system is purified, removing all bad odors from the feet and arm pits. This seems reasonable, providing there is any Electricity generated, as it is one of the greatest purifying agents yet known.

The manufacturers of Electropods have so much faith in their ability to almost perform miracles, that they have instructed all druggists to sign a contract with each sale made agreeing to refund the money if they fail to cure. The proposition is so simple and fair that our afflicted should test them.

ENJOYABLE SOCIAL AND WATCH PARTY

Given by Pythian Sisters on Monday Night.

Degree of Pochontas and Kosciusko Lodge Hold Well Attended Sessions.

Railroad Notes

Lloyd Thomas has returned to his duties at the Erie interlocking plant after an absence of a week on account of sickness.

R. S. Quigley, superintendent of the Hocking Valley, with headquarters at Columbus, was looking after business at the local station for a short time Monday morning.

Local freight trains were annulled as usual today on all of the railroads running through Marion. So far as is possible, the employees were given a vacation and all those compelled to work were given an extra hour at noon to enjoy their unimpeded family dinner.

Members of the Deutscher Bund held a regular meeting last night, but transacted nothing other than routine business. Next Monday evening the society will elect officers and clean up the past year's business. This meeting will be followed with a buffet lunch.

A year has elapsed since the Pennsylvania railroad began the rigid enforcement of the anti-pass order. The order was originated by President Cassatt, whose body now lies in state. However, President Cassatt has left an order that will live for many years and maybe a life time. Today, with the beginning of the New Year, every railroad in the state of Ohio will enforce the reform movement of President Cassatt and the anti-pass rule will at last be made general despite the fact that it has been stubbornly fought against by nearly every small road in the country.

Beginning today, even the newspapers will receive no passes or exchange privilege for advertising. In a way the papers will profit as the owners will receive the cash for the advertising. But as to the employees, it will be a detriment. It is found, however, that the railroad companies that have enforced the anti-pass rule in the past year have not been so free about advertising as they were in former years when they could get all they wished merely for the exchange of courtesies.

However, in former years the railroads did more or less advertising, which was not exactly considered profitable because a cash outlay was not required. The city newspapers, however, will not suffer so much with the new rule as will the country papers, as many of the latter will receive but little paid advertising, whereas before they received about all the mileage they could handily dispose of.

Miss Edith Bailey, daughter of George Bailey, died at her home on North Main street, Tuesday morning at eight o'clock after an illness of a year with consumption. The deceased was seventeen years of age. No arrangements have been made for the funeral services.

The Modern Woodmen will meet Thursday night and install the newly elected corps of officers. After the installation ceremonies a banquet and social will be held.

One of the enjoyable social affairs of the week was that held by the members of Canby Temple of Pythian Sisters No. 152. An unusually large crowd assembled to see the old year out and the evening was spent with cards, dancing and literary and musical numbers. A number of clever recitations were delivered. A number of visitors were present from various parts of the state and following the enjoyable program, nice refreshments were served.

Mizpah Encampment, I. O. O. F. will meet tonight and confer the Golden Rule degree on a class of candidates.

Kosciusko Lodge I. O. O. F. met last night and attended to routine business. Arrangements were made to install the recently elected officers January 21. After the business meeting the members enjoyed a watch night smoker.

Knights of Pythias, No. 116, of Caledonia, held a watch meeting in the hall Monday night. The attendance was exceedingly large. A sumptuous banquet was served in the early evening and the closing hours of '06 were spent at music and cards.

Green Camp Rebecca Lodge No. 597 Seoto Valley held a banquet and social in its hall Monday night. Preceding the banquet the degree team gave an exhibiting drill and a class of six candidates was initiated.

Among Magazines

What has been said naturally leads to the suggestion that consistency requires those of us who are right-minded fishermen to reasonably limit ourselves as to the number of fish we should take on favorable days. On no account should edible fish be caught in such quantities as to be wasted. By restraining ourselves in this matter, we discourage in our own nature the growth of greed, we prevent wicked waste, we make it easier for us to bear the fall between decent good luck and bad luck, or no luck, and we make ourselves at all points better men and better fishermen.

We ought not to forget these things as we enter upon the pleasures of our summer's fishing. But in any event let us take with us when we get out, good tackle, good bait, and plenty of patience. If the wind is in the South or West, so much the better, but let's go, wherever the wind may be. If we catch fish, we shall add zest to our recreation. If we catch none, we shall still have the outing and recreation—more healthful and more enjoyable than can be gained in any other way.—From Grover Cleveland's new book, "Fishing and Shooting Sketches."

attainment of his majority, and since then it has been handed down from father to the oldest son. It was he who brought it to America and carried it throughout his incumbency as treasurer of the Virginia colony in 1638. He also carried it with him when, with his fellow Protestant colonists, he engaged in a minor conflict with the Catholics of Maryland, which resulted in the latter being driven out of their domain, although later on, after the Catholics received reinforcements, they recaptured their lost trading post. This engagement is recorded in history as Claiborne's rebellion, although the name is spelled Cleyborne.

At the death of William Claiborne it was presented to his son, Lieutenant Colonel William Claiborne, and who in turn presented it to his son, William Claiborne, Jr., of Romanecke, who died in 1705. It then passed into the hands of the eldest son, also named William Claiborne, who carried it until 1746, at whose death it passed into the hands of Phillip Whitehead Claiborne, the husband of Elizabeth Dandridge, a great granddaughter of Thomas II.

In 1771 it became the property of William Dandridge Claiborne, who in 1791 was married to Miss Euphemia Taylor of Yorkville, Va., the daughter of an old and aristocratic Virginia family. From his hands it passed into those of Dr. George Claiborne, at that time a practicing physician of Richmond, Va. It was he who had the original face removed, replacing it with the one that bears his name.

With this exception the timepiece has never been in the hands of a jeweler to receive other than a cleaning and readjustment.

Its next owner was Thomas Nelson Claiborne, who was born at Liberty Hall, the old Claiborne manor, near Richmond, a son of the Richmond physician and father of its present owner.

The watch was worn by William Claiborne in his duel with Andrew Jackson, which resulted in Claiborne being slightly wounded by the famous Tennesseean.

At a Dinner Party

The host and hostess were allowed to come down to dessert. Having had what his mother considered a sufficiency of fruit, he was told he must not have any more, when, to the surprise of every one of the guests, he exclaimed: "If you don't give me some more, I'll tell!"

A fresh supply was at once given him, and as soon as it was finished he repeated his threat, whereupon he was suddenly and swiftly removed from the room, but he had just time to converse the company by exclaiming: "My new trousers are made out of my old bedroom curtains!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

A WATCH 300 YEARS OLD.

Made in London and Handed Down From Father to Son.

WHY OUR FARMERS GO OVER INTO CANADA.

It was about 1900 when it became obvious to many of our American home-seekers that our great West was getting a trifle small, according to their notions. In that year about twenty thousand Americans went over into Canada. Two years later, the army had reached fifty thousand in numbers. Last year, more than that many went across the line within three months of the spring. At least seventy-five thousand will this year leave the United States to go into Northwest Canada, not to mention more than a hundred thousand more from Europe. The figures stagger, and indeed their ethical import might well cause a certain confusion to our own government; yet there is no use in attempting to blind ourselves to the meaning of it, even though it represents a certain hardship to the United States. One able objector to it Iowa complains in a widely circulated American periodical that this "wild land craze" is taking away from his commonwealth thousands of men and causing the local banks much hardship. He opines that folk presently will realize that Iowa land is better than wild land, and so will come back home, even as lost sheep return. What utter folly! The truth is that the population of Iowa is thirty thousand less than it was two years ago, most of this loss occasioned by the Great Trek. That is not because Iowa lands are no longer cheap, but because they are no longer cheap.

There is little sentiment in these matters. I remember a magazine article which described the thrills experienced by a Russian Jew immigrant when he saw the top of the Statue of Liberty in New York Bay, so knowing that he was at last approaching America, the land of the free. The article struck me as excellent tomynt. The immigrant may thrill a few thrills because he believes he is going to make more money here than where he came from, but his exaltation ends thereabout. It is frankly the same way with

NO WOMAN GREAT TO HER MAID.

If it is true that no man is a hero to his valet, it is doubly true that no woman is a heroine to her maid. If you have any doubt about this, consult Miss Jessie Millward, the well-known actress. Of all earthly blessings, Miss Millward treasures among the greatest her maid, Lottie whom she has had for about sixteen years. "Lottie is a perfect treasure," says Miss Millward, "but she seems to have been sent by a benign Providence to keep me meek and humble in spirit. The other day the people next door were making so much noise that I simply couldn't stand it and I am afraid that I expressed myself somewhat forcibly. 'Oh, dear, dear, dear! Lottie, let them think you are a lady even if you are an actress.' Last night I received proofs of new photographs which I have just had taken. Some of my friends were commenting upon them. 'First, I showed them to Lottie. She looked long and earnestly at them. 'Do you like them, Lottie?' I asked finally. 'Yes, indeed, mam,' she answered. 'If I didn't know you, I'd think you were acting.'"

"That was rather bad, but even that pales before what a friend of Lottie's did. She was the maid of one of my friends, and she came in with a message. While she waited for me to write an answer she looked about the room, at the mirror with its photographs, and so on. 'Are you an actress?' she asked at length. 'I sometimes think so,' I replied. 'Well,' she returned, 'I

JANUARY AMERICAN BOY.

The January American Boy is, in the language of the boys, "a hummer." Its most conspicuous features are its serials by Stratemyer, Shute, Tomlinson, Alger and Sprague and its four new departments, namely, "Chats with big Americans for Young Americans," "How to Become Strong," "Practical Furniture Making for Boys," and "Keep 'em on the World For Wide-Awake American Boys." There are six short stories about a dozen leading articles, any number of humorous sketches, and the usual departments relating to boy life, including photography, mechanics, electricity, stamps, coins and curios, puzzles, etc. In the biographical department, Henry Clay is given the place of honor this month. It has a striking two-color cover, a skating scene, and, in addition, seventy-five illustrations. Altogether, it is one of the best numbers of The American Boy ever issued. $1.00 a year. The Sargant Publishing Company, Detroit, Mich.

A LIFE OF MRS. EDDY.

McClure's new serial Christian Science, beginning in January, opens with a remarkably interesting account of Mrs. Eddy's childhood and youth. Mary Baker was descended from "good New England stock." Her mother was a gentle, capable, conscientious New England housewife. Her father, Mark Baker, was a striking character in his community. "Familiar him ignorant, dominating, passionate, fearless. He drove the sharpest bargains, paid his workers the smallest wages, and came into the category known in New England as 'hard-fisted.' But he never cheated a man, and he always graciously kept his word." Mary the youngest daughter, was a fragile and beautiful child. She was precocious, passionate in disposition and as she grew older developed a hysterical tendency. She heard strange voices, and was found extremely sensitive to hypnotic influence. The account of her first two marriages, her separation from her first, and the influences which at an early period shaped the course of her career, is immensely illuminating and goes far to explain this enigmatical figure in our public life.
