Needham of California—Favrot, Who Killed a Man—Ambassador Riddle's Diplomacy—Governor Mead and the Jews—Miss Julia Richman—Senator Penrose as a Mighty Hunter

THOUGH a Republican Representative James Carson Needham of Modesto, Cal., has been very emphatic in his disapproval of the president's Japanese policy. He is congressman from the Sixth California district and is serving his fourth term. He thinks the treatment of the Japanese problem in the recent presidential message calculated to fan the flames of race antagonism on the Pacific coast.

Congressman Needham is forty-two years old and in the matter of birth has the advantage of brother statesmen who were born in log cabins. He was born in an emigrant wagon at Carson, Nev., while his parents were on the way to the Golden State. When Needham first ran for congress he was opposed by a California organization called Native Sons of the Golden West. In arguing against the opposition of the society the candidate said: "I admit I wasn't born in California, but it wasn't my fault. I wanted to be born in California and would have been if one of the mules drawing my father's emigrant wagon hadn't taken sick at Carson City and held the family up in that place for a week or two."

The election of Samuel P. Rotan as district attorney in Philadelphia was one of the surprises of the contest in November. He was the candidate of the regular Republicans and was opposed by D. Clarence Gibbons, the candidate of the City party, which included many of the most prominent reformers. Although Mayor Weaver was for a time a supporter of this party, he changed his position just before election and branded the movement as hypocritical, saying it was backed by a newspaper combine having for its object the substitution of a new machine for the one which had been discarded. The election of Rotan was held by Mayor Weaver's friends to be a vindication of the course taken by the city's executive. Mr. Rotan had not held office heretofore. He has led a very active career as a member of the Philadelphia bar.

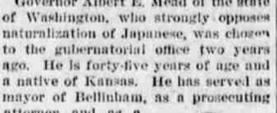

George K. Favrot, who has been elected to the Sixtieth congress from a Louisiana district, won notoriety a short time ago by shooting and killing Dr. H. H. Aldrich on the street in Baton Rouge. The tragedy occurred in consequence of remarks Aldrich was charged with having made about the wife of the congressman elect. Favrot's only justification of his act was his allegation that the physician had slandered Mrs. Favrot, and his defense on his trial will be based on the "unwritten law." His counsel will be Judge Thomas J. Kernan, who at the last annual meeting of the American Bar association argued in favor of recognition of this principle. There is much interest in legal circles over the outcome of the forthcoming trial.

John W. Riddle, who is to succeed George von L. Meyer as ambassador to Russia, has special qualifications for this place. Mr. Meyer, who is about to enter Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet as postmaster general, was preceded at St. Petersburg by Robert S. McCormick, afterward made ambassador to France. At the time of the presentation to the Russian foreign office of the great petition of the Jews in the United States regarding the Kishineff outrage Mr. McCormick was absent from St. Petersburg and Mr. Riddle, then secretary of the American embassy, was acting charge d'affaires. It fell to him to get the petition before the Russian government in an official manner, a delicate task, which he discharged successfully. This petition was first presented to the president of the United States with the request that he transmit it to the czar's government. The state department had inquiries made at St. Petersburg to ascertain how the petition would be received and learned that the minister of foreign affairs would not take official cognizance of such a document. Thereupon Mr. Riddle asked for an appointment to present a message from the president of the United States. This was granted, and at the interview Mr. Riddle began to read the petition and got halfway through before the minister of foreign affairs, Count Lansdorff, comprehended what was going on. It was then too late to stop him, and the whole thing was read. On the count notifying him that he would not receive the petition Mr. Riddle so informed his own government. Appreciation of his services was shortly afterward shown by his appointment as consul general to Egypt and later as minister to Rumania, a post he has occupied since. He was born in Philadelphia in 1844 and graduated at Harvard and at the Columbia Law school, studying international law afterward at Paris. He received a certificate of proficiency in the Russian language from the College de France.

Governor Albert E. Mead of the state of Washington, who strongly opposes naturalization of Japanese, was chosen to the gubernatorial office two years ago. He is forty-five years of age and a native of Kansas. He has served as mayor of Bellinham, as a prosecuting attorney and as a member of the legislature. Speaking of the Japanese question, the governor says: "Naturalization of the Japanese would tend to degrade the American workman. The sacred right of American citizenship, acquired as it was by the blood of our forefathers, should not be lightly handed over to another race, and especially foreigners of the Asiatic coast. We are very near to the countries of the orient, whose teeming millions could be poured in upon our shores should we throw down the bars to them. The two races will not assimilate. China is laughing in her sleeve. Should Japan succeed in obtaining citizenship rights China would come to the front at once with a similar demand.

"We cannot extend our citizenship rights to one Asiatic country without doing the same to the other. I have great admiration for the president, but I believe he is wrong in this matter. The Japanese are poorly fitted to become American citizens."

Miss Julia Richman, district superintendent of public schools in New York, is not only an efficient supervisor of education, but is noted also as a settlement worker. The new settlement house opened on East Broadway, New York, not long ago under her management was started especially for the purpose of enlisting the interest of those engaged in teaching in work for the uplifting of the tenement dwellers. Speaking of her ideas on the subject, Miss Richman said: "It is the purpose of this settlement to bring the teachers of the district together as much as to benefit the community. Besides this, I am anxious to have the parents and school children with whom I come in contact recognize me as one interested in all that concerns them rather than as a terrible person carrying in my hand a good stout club called 'justice.' I want them to know me as a woman rather than as an official.

"I fancy, however, that my presence here will have a good effect on the obstreperous children that cause trouble with janitors, for I have already succeeded in subduing the spirit of one small truant of twelve. The janitor of the house has threatened to turn out the whole family if this boy is not controlled. I have paroled him and threatened not to let him live in the same block with me unless he behaves. He thinks I really have the power and has done wonders already."

Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, who introduced in the senate the resolution calling on the president and secretary of war for information regarding the discharge of the negro troops of the Second battalion, Twenty-fifth infantry, succeeded J. Donald Cameron and took his seat in 1897. He is a Nurend of established prowess. The senator's favorite field is the far northwest, in British Columbia and the Northwest Territories and Alaska. The first time he crossed the line into the dominion of King Edward he moved a parallel or two east of the boundary, then in dispute, but since settled, and built his camp at an elevation of 8,000 feet above sea level. There he lived for weeks, making frequent excursions out into the fastnesses of big game. Great bears abounded, but the senator found more delight in hunting mountain goats, the most difficult four footed animals in all the world to bring down with a rifle. He did not return with an empty bag. Several of the big horned goats fell before his merriment aim. The senator brought his trophies back to Pennsylvania to make good his reputation as a hunter.

Mrs. Oscar S. Straus, her husband having been made secretary of commerce and labor. She is a woman of culture and is devoted to charitable work. As president of the Clarissa House For Working Girls, in New York, founded by Baron de Hirsch, she has done much to make life rosier for many young women. Mrs. Straus has two married daughters. She is the first Jewish lady to enter the cabinet circle.

IRVING S. DUDLEY, AMBASSADOR TO BRAZIL.

Irving Bedell Dudley, minister to Peru since 1897, has been raised to the dignity of ambassador and assigned to the republic of Brazil by President Roosevelt. Mr. Dudley became minister to Peru at the age of thirty-six. He is an Ohioan by birth, was educated at Washington and is a Californian by adoption. Prior to entering the diplomatic service he practiced law at San Diego, Cal., where he was a city judge and was prominent in state politics.

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY
 By Henry Carey

Of all the girls that are so smart,
 There's none like pretty Sally.
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

Of all the days that's in the week
 I dearly love but one day,
 And that's the day that comes between a Saturday and Monday.

For then I'm dressed all in my best
 As soon as text is named,
 I leave the church in sermon time
 And slip away to Sally.

She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

Her father he makes cabbage-pets
 And through the streets does cry
 "My master carries me to church,
 And often am I blamed
 Because I leave him in the lurch
 As soon as text is named,
 I leave the church in sermon time
 And slip away to Sally.

She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

When Christmas comes about again,
 Oh, then I shall have money!
 I'll hand it up and box it all;
 I'll give it to my money.

I would it were ten thousand pound;
 I'd give it all to Sally.
 She is the darling of my heart,
 And she lives in our alley.

REVENGE
 By Charles Henry Webb

REVENGE is a naked sword.
 It has neither hilt nor guard.
 Wouldst thou wield this brand of the Lord?
 Is thy grasp, then, firm and hard?

But the closer thy clutch of the blade,
 The deadlier blow thou wouldst deal,
 Deeper wound in thy hand is made—
 It is thy blood reddens the steel.

And when thou hast dealt the blow,
 When the blade from thy hand has flown,
 Instead of the heart of the foe,
 Thou'rt met find it sheathed in thine own!

MRS. OSCAR S. STRAUS.

RHEUMATISM WORSE FROM YEAR TO YEAR

The cause of Rheumatism is an excess of uric acid in the blood, brought on by indigestion, chronic constipation, weak kidneys and a general sluggish condition of the entire system. The refuse and waste matter of the body is not carried out as nature intends, but is left to ferment and sour and generate uric acid, which is absorbed into the blood. The first evidence of Rheumatism is usually little wandering pains in the muscles and joints, or a tender, sensitive place on the flesh. These are often so slight that nothing is thought of them and they pass away; but with each recurrence the trouble becomes more severe, and from slight wandering pains and excited nerves, Rheumatism grows to be a painful and almost constant trouble. The longer the poison remains in the blood the firmer hold the trouble gets on the system. Each day the acid deposit is increasing and the disease grows worse from year to year. After awhile the joints become coated with a corrosive substance which seriously interferes with their working and movements and sometimes they become permanently stiff and useless. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism by going down into the blood and attacking the disease at its head. It neutralizes the poisons and acids and dissolves the salts and irritating deposits, making the blood stream pure, fresh and healthy. S. S. S. is made entirely of roots, herbs and barks, and is therefore a safe remedy. When the blood has been purified by S. S. S., the pains and aches pass away, and the cure is permanent. Curing Extravagance.
 "Some folks," remarked a well known autist, who had just returned from a tour through some of the southern states, "have peculiar ideas of extravagance. Down in Virginia a few weeks ago I stopped at a farmhouse to refill my water jug and got into conversation with an old negro who came out to render me what assistance he might. During the process of drawing the water from the well he became somewhat confidential. 'My wife,' said he, 'is pow'ful straggant. She's always askin' me fo' money. She wants 50 cents for this and a dollar for that, an' there's no end to it, sah.' 'Why, uncle, what does she do with so much money?' I asked sympathetically. 'She don't do anything wid it,' he answered. 'How is that, uncle?' I asked 'in surprise. 'Well, I tell yer, sah,' he replied in the most matter of fact way, 'I don't give it to her.'"—New York Times.

Always Busy.
 Gummer—That poor poet who occupies the old garret has a strenuous time. All day he writes poetry, and at night he chases the cats that give serenades on the roof.
 Guyer—H! I suppose in the day he pursues the muse and at night he pursues the news.—Chicago News.

Sharpens Appetite Improves Digestion

Besides a restorative influence on the whole system, Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills have an immediate and direct effect on the organs of digestion. They stimulate the nerves of taste and induce a good flow of saliva to aid digestion. They excite the glands of the stomach and produce a plentiful supply of the gastric digestive fluids. They sharpen the appetite and arouse hunger. Especially where appetite and the ability to digest food have diminished, as in nervous exhaustion, anxiety, the result of sickness, overwork or worry, Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are by all odds the most effective treatment that can possibly be obtained. They assure good digestion, regular, healthful action of the liver, kidneys and bowels and the building up and revitalizing of the whole system.

DANGER IN THINKING

Over-Exertion of the Brain to be Avoided Except in Emergency.
 The brain is the most faithful friend of man and would be man's best companion if he understood it better said a prominent specialist to a Star reporter. "I use the word brain to comprehend what we term the mind and the process of thinking, and not as a physical object or a medium which directs our actions." "On the stage the prize idiot in the cast, usually a young nobleman or a dale always raises a laugh when with a vacant stare and set features, he speaks his lines about the effort of thinking and the wearying effect such a mental process produces upon his physical being. He really speaks a greater truth than either he or the audience takes in, for thinking is an effort, he is taught in itself ever so frothy and ephemeral, and could we lessen the process of thought at will as the engineer applies the brakes to his train much of the trouble and disease in life would vanish like the meadow vapor before the rising sun. "It is plainly speaking, the inability of the individual to eliminate certain thoughts or a certain thought from his brain cells or to still it into inactivity which fills the insane asylums produce nervous wrecks in other individuals and causes trouble, confusion and chaos all around in every day life. "One should understand that thinking is largely a matter of habit; that the brain is one of the most willing organs in his body at his command, and, honest and faithful as it is to him, will respond to his calls upon it. He should therefore give it as much needed rest as possible by the process of sleep and dipping awakening hours by not calling upon it for thought except when necessary. The average person will put in a tremendous amount of unnecessary thought effort upon the simplest everyday matter of life. "Again, he will allow his objective mind to cling to one or several thoughts with persistent tenacity. In this event he wears out particular cells of his best friend, and where the habit is maintained he often becomes a nuisance to his friends and family by developing what is termed a 'crank' and at times he exacts these same cells in this manner and lands in the asylum. "Most people use their brains too
