Weather for Ohio—Partly cloudy, and not quite so cold tonight, with snow in northern portion. Thursday fair and warmer.

Admiral Schley is shooting away the busy Vice-Presidential bee.

The revelations of graft seem to have shocked San Francisco almost as much as the earthquake.

All eyes are now turned toward Carlin and many a republican has his ear to the ground.

The alienists should also examine the Thaw jury to see if all of its members continue to be sane.

If the Jamestown exposition is ready for the opening, in that respect it will be unlike any other that was ever held.

The great trouble with those two-act dramas is that most men are used to getting at least three drinks during a play.

After the Thaw trial, will come the mending of some reputations which were more or less frazzled by the performance.

The green goods king of New York has been sent to jail, a circumstance which gives Mr. Harrison more room to work, but also food for reflection.

The cartoonists are representing the president playing tag among the presidential aspirants. Fairbanks is so thin that he never gets touched.

Another Federal judge has upheld the employers' liability act of the last Congress. That makes two for and two against. Bets taken on the next guess.

On the same day recently, a man paid $65,000 for a picture, and another $7,000 for a dog. Which is further evidence of the present high cost of living.

The man who introduced that lek-the-editor-bill in the Pennsylvania legislature, may be trying to convince his constituents that he is not in the mollycoddle class, of statesmen.

A Dakota man aged sixty has married a girl of twenty, while his son married the girl's mother aged forty-four. People with nothing else to do can now busy themselves with this latest relationship puzzle.

A Kansas man asserts that he recently saw a rat with horns. As the authorities insist that the prohibition law is being enforced in Kansas, there must be something radically wrong with the soda water in that state.

That Senator Joe Foraker is still "some pumpkins" in Ohio republican politics is shown by the fact that he is attracting a great deal of attention just at the time of the climax of the Thaw trial.

Because of injuries which he received in a fall, Mayor Badger, of Columbus, was placed in the "incubator" at Grant hospital, but the lid was probably not clapped down.

Experts gave the form of insanity from which Harry Thaw is alleged to have been suffering when he shot Stanford White, the name of "brain storm" but it remained for Attorney Delmas to find the name which seems to more nearly fit the case, "Dementia Americana."

Government officials now seem to be pretty thoroughly convinced that the $173,000, which has been missing from the Chicago sub-treasury, was taken by the comely negro woman who did the scrubbing about the building. This speaks well for the vigilance of the sub-treasury officials and the ability of the secret service men who have been working on the case. They have been working on the case for weeks and now they have found the person who took the money.

DICTATING WHO SHALL BE THE CANDIDATE.

For the first time in the history of the nation we find the president, whose term of office does not expire for almost two years, taking a very active part in choosing who shall represent his party in the next election. It is, to say the least, out of the ordinary, but the people seem to take little thought of the affair because they are used to Theodore Roosevelt doing things which are out of the ordinary and expect nothing else from him.

President Roosevelt has not only stated that he wants the republicans to name Secretary Taft as their candidate, but he has hinted that he intends, if occasion requires, to take off his coat, roll up his sleeves and do some of the fighting. He proposes to see that his wishes are respected and if necessary, he will wield his "big stick" against all who dare oppose him. Already, he has hinted that those in Ohio who oppose him, need not expect any favors from his hand.

The president is very anxious that his policies be carried out, but where is there a man who does not think his own ideas are right and who does not want to see the whole world adopt the principles which he himself advocates? We all have certain ideas on certain things which we firmly believe to be right and which we would like to see every other person adopt and advocate, but the man who endeavors to cram his ideas down the throats of other people is set down by the average man as a "crank", whose brazenness is appalling and whose judgment is lacking. Roosevelt has now served as president for almost six years.

During that time he has been continually outlining his policy and has succeeded in accomplishing some things. It would seem that he should now be willing to submit the question of the correctness of his policy to the people without endeavoring to dictate who shall be the candidate of any political party.

What Others Say.

Dr. Richard Cole Newton, in the Popular Science Monthly, tells the people of this country several pertinent things regarding typhoid epidemics which have become so numerous of late years. Dr. Newton believes that a typhoid epidemic is a useless thing and could be avoided. He attributes the epidemics to the lack of interest on the part of the municipalities in which they occur.

So implicitly does he believe that typhoid epidemics could be avoided that he makes a statement that a man who contracts the disease has as good right to sue the city where he contracted it as he would have to sue for damages resulting from falling into an unprotected excavation that the city should be held responsible in the event that the city permits typhoid fever to get a foothold. He says it is in every instance caused by neglect on the part of the people.

But the statement which the doctor makes that appeals most strongly to us is to the effect that if there were an outbreak of rinderpest or foot-and-mouth disease, the people would take steps to save the afflicted animals. There would be no trouble in wiping out a disease that was carrying away valuable cattle. But when a human being dies, that is different. The loss is not figured up in dollars and cents and the people are willing to take their chances against further affliction.

Girlhood and Scott's Emulsion are linked together.

The girl who takes Scott's Emulsion has plenty of rich, red blood; she is plump, active and energetic.

The reason is that at a period when a girl's digestion is weak, Scott's Emulsion provides her with powerful nourishment in easily digested form.

It is a food that builds and keeps up a girl's strength.

ALL DRUGGISTS; 50c. AND $1.00.

There is a good deal of truth in the statement. We have so long used the dollar mark in measuring things in this world that we neglect everything that is not written with that emblem. We know that a boy is worth something to the community, that every healthy individual member of society is an asset to society, and some few of the bolder and more knowing ones have undertaken to show the exact amount each individual is worth to society. But it is pretty hard for the average man to understand that a case of typhoid fever is costing the whole community dollars and cents and we go about our work hoping that our disease will break out, if at all, in some other fellow's family. It is an absolute truth that we protect our horses and cattle and sheep more zealously than we do our children and ourselves.

The farmer adapts every new device that he can hear of that tends to promote his crops. He sprays his trees to protect his fruit. He sends thousands of dollars to save his soil. The manufacturer saves every penny that tends to get away from him through leaks of any kind. He has devices for ascertaining whether any of his employees get to the shop a minute late. He puts in mechanism to prevent waste. He utilizes every by-product that can be figured in dollars and cents. And yet neither the farmer nor the manufacturer figures upon the human product.

There are farmers who send half way across the continent to get a breed of sheep that will improve their flock, and who then sends their children to school dressed in a manner that will dwarf their whole existence. The manufacturer spends thousands of dollars for a machine that will enable a workman to make a few more pieces of machinery but he would not spend a penny to promote the health of health of the workman, although he seems to know that a workman who feels good is more efficient than one who does not.

These may sound like harsh statements, but they are in very fact the truth. We are striving to build everything better but our fellow men. We are not improving our human stock as we are improving for mechanical efficiency, and neglecting human efficiency. And all because we can see the dollar mark in one case and do not see it in the other case.

LUTHER BURBANK, THE PLANT WIZARD.
The subject of child labor, which has been agitating congress and the people, brings to mind some utterances made not long ago by Luther Burbank, the California plant wizard. Mr. Burbank expressed the belief that children should be trained and cultivated just as flowers are and that by constant attention to the rearing of the young a higher type of humanity in time may be evolved. He holds that children should not be sent to school as early as is the present custom, but should be allowed to run free with nature under proper care. Mr. Burbank of course considers all child labor a crime against the race.

TRUCE IDEA AGITATED

By Political Leaders of Marion County.

MEMBERS OF COMMITTEE

Say There is Method in Their Madness.

Would Like to See Both Conley and Thompson Re-Elected—Some are Opposed to the Plan.

A movement has been started by prominent local republican and democratic committeemen to have the parties form a truce in regard to the election of two justices of the peace for Marion township next fall. Harry C. Thompson, republican, and Charles H. Conley, democrat, are both to be candidates for re-election, and it is proposed to have their names placed on both tickets, practically assuring them of a second term.

The committeemen who are advocating this scheme say that there are a number of advantages to be gained by permitting both of the justices to remain in office. It would tend, they say, to bring the office to a higher and more substantial basis and doubtless mean that none but attorneys would be elected in the future. To have men well versed in the law fill the two offices of justices of the peace is said to be desirable. Both of the present office holders are attorneys and should be allowed to remain for another term, the advocates of this plan say.

The idea has not been taken up for consideration, however, and there are some of the committeemen who say that they are opposed to it. There is a probability that it will be reached at committee meetings to be held in the near future and that an effort will be made to have it approved. Whether the delegates in convention during the coming spring and summer will endorse the idea is, of course, a matter of doubt. It is thought, however, that whatever action the committees may take will have an important bearing.

Those who most strongly favor the idea say that Thompson and Conley are almost certain of re-election, and that to have them placed on both tickets would merely eliminate a lot of work and worry and would remove all doubt. There are others, however, who say that the proceeding would be unusual and would be almost certain to be disapproved by the people. A number of democratic committeemen have said that while Conley is almost certain of being re-elected, there is some doubt as to whether Thompson is as strong, and they think that if a good man were nominated the present justice could be defeated. For that reason they think the trade would be unfair.

The republican committeemen admit almost to a man that it will be a practical impossibility to defeat Conley for another term, but they claim that Thompson is just as strong. There are many of them, however, who say that they think the voters should be given the right to choose between the two candidates for both the offices.

One prominent republican committeeman said this morning that while the plan has been suggested, he does not look upon it seriously and does not believe that it will ever be taken up by the committee. Should the two parties fail to agree to permit Thompson and Conley to run without opposition, it is probable that two other attorneys would be nominated to run against them. Elmer T. Boyd is said to be a likely opponent for Conley, while some young democratic lawyer would be pitted against Thompson. Should there be a chance for anyone outside of the attorneys getting either of the nominations, it is said that T. J. Davies, the Court street tailor, or G. W. McKinley, of the insurance firm of McKinley & Gottschall, would be willing to take the field against Conley. McKinley was justice of the peace a number of years ago and is said to be the man who made the office worth having. It is stated on good authority that either office is now good for between $2,000 and $3,000 a year in fees.

LARGEST METEORITE FOUND IN OREGON

Visitor From Some Other Planet Will Be Exhibited at Alaska-Yukon Pacific Exposition.

A visitor from Mars or some other distant region or planet, a massive meteorite, the largest ever found in the Western hemisphere, will be on exhibition at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle in 1909.

The meteorite stone fell recently on a farm in Lima county, Oregon. It is fifteen feet in diameter which makes it the largest in existence. When it fell it sank ten feet into the ground. The date farmer on whose land it dropped did not realize that the stone possessed any particular interest or value and as it was in his barnyard he filled up the hole so his cattle would not fall into it. Arrangements are now being made to take care of the huge stone until it is time to exhibit it at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, which although held primarily for the purpose of exploiting Alaska and Yukon and the countries bordering upon the Pacific Ocean, will not decline to accept exhibits from other planets.

Oregon seems destined to supply exhibitions with displays from other worlds. The second largest meteorite known to be in existence previous to this was found three years ago in Clackamas county, near Oregon City, by a farmer named Elis Hughes on land owned by the Oregon Iron and Steel company. It was entirely above ground, and is composed of malleable iron with a trace of cobalt and nickel.

Hughes kept his find a secret until he had moved the meteorite onto his own land, when the Oregon Iron and Steel company learned that the stone was discovered on their property. The company enjoined him in the circuit court and won the case, claiming the property as it was found on land belonging to the company. The meteorite was placed on a flat boat and floated down the Willamette river to Portland where it was an exhibit of great interest at the Lewis and Clark Exposition. It weighs about twenty tons and it takes twelve horses to move it.

Women and Children Perish in a Fire in Lisbon's Market District.

Lisbon, Portugal, April 10—Twenty five persons were killed and scores hurt in a disastrous fire which occurred today in the central market district. Many of the victims were women and children.

A Woman Tells How to Relieve Rheumatic Pains

I have been a very great sufferer from the dreadful disease, rheumatism, for a number of years. I have tried many medicines, but never got much relief from any of them until two years ago, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I found relief before I had used all of one bottle, but kept on applying it and soon felt like a different woman. Through my advice many of my friends have tried it, and can tell you how wonderfully it has worked.—Mrs. Sarah A. Cole, 140 S. New St., Dover, Del. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is a liniment. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes rest and sleep possible. For sale by all druggists.
