Ashtland, O., June 3.—The Marion O. and P. leaguers were defeated this afternoon after twelve innings of exciting ball, the game resolving itself into a pitchers' battle. Wilhelm's control was splendid, but Price did the better work with men on bases. Burns, the first man up in the twelfth, got a hit, stole second and third and rubbed it in on his former team mates by scoring on Kautman's drive through short. Kautman's capture of a fly in deep center and Bannon's first base play were features. Score:

Washington, June 3.—The Washington Nationals, who played in the halcyon days of the league, were all amateurs at the time they were defeated by the Creightons. The team was managed by Star First Baseman Who Refused to Play Under Collins, Now Manager of Team.

RISE OF UNGLAUB, NEW LEADER OF THE PILGRIMS

After George Huff quit the Boston American team, satisfied with a brief whirl at big league managerial duties, the natural choice was Robert ("Bob") Unglaub, the first baseman, who was made captain of the team and later was told to take entire charge of the team. Unglaub is playing one of the star games of the league.

Unglaub's bound from the bench to boss, illustrates some of the peculiar shifts that come in baseball. Jim Collins is now working for Unglaub, and it is but a short time since that Unglaub jumped Boston because he said he could not stand to work for Collins. Unglaub's avowed cause for going to the Tri-State, with which he played last year, was that he failed to get a bonus from Boston in 1895, to which he was entitled. He was drawn.

Robert Unglaub.

Drum and his crew moved to Mansfield last night and will open up a two game series there this afternoon, the weather permitting. On Thursday both teams will come here for a game, and then Marion will leave for Newark to play three games. On next Monday the Lime Burners will commence a series with Lancaster at Webb Park.

The line-up was shifted about once yesterday, but the Marionites played superb ball. Price, for the home team, pitched a great game and fanned 11 of the Marionites in twelve innings.

When peace was declared it drove Unglaub back to Boston. He didn't care to return, because he was doing well in Pennsylvania, and because he expected to be forced onto the utility job again. Grimsby being there for first sack. But Unglaub went south early, and Grimsby went south late. And before the regular first sacker got around the other man was the talk of the camp. He got up the bag and Grimsby was never able to drive him off. Grimsby is a fair fielder, and a good hitter. But he hits and fields much better when the score is 4 to 2, Boston, than when it is 4 to 2 against.

Chicago, June 3.—The Chicago motor cycle "trust" had the end of the wagers. The amount wagered was small, but the feeling was high. The pair covered 135 miles in the run, due to a lack of knowledge of the road, being lost three times, near Glencoe, Lake Bluff and Lake-side.

Jack Wren, the leading sporting man of Australia, and backer of Bill Squires, in discussing the referee question in the antipodes the other day, said: "We are as backward in the referee question as we are in boxers. No two of them can agree as to when a man should cease fighting. The clinch question, the interpretation to be put upon the clean break rule, and other silly introductions to the game have been the means of retarding progress in boxing. I think it would pay sport promoters to import a good referee from America. We have none here capable of interpreting the Queensberry rules, and the sport is suffering in consequence. Our active referee's principal difficulty appears to be in defining a clinch, which is, as everyone knows, or should know, an unavoidable mixup or entanglement between the two men who are in heat, and contest, and possibly fighting at short range. A hug to avoid a blow is often mistaken for our referees as a clinch, and the willing fighter, with both his hands free, is prevented from punching the squib who is hanging on to him to avoid doing what he is paid for—fighting. This has become so common here that a stranger would be puzzled to know whether our boxers were wrestling or squibing.

NEW YORK FANS BANK ON MATTY

FOLLOWERS OF GIANTS THINK HE WILL WIN ANOTHER PENNANT.

IS AGAIN IN OLD-TIME FORM

Jotham Enthusiasts Believe Great Pitcher Will Help McGraw's Club Beat Out Chicago Cubs for First Place—Sickness Interfered with Work Last Season—Checkers Is Pastime of Diamond Star.

New York baseball fans are unanimous in the opinion that the Giants will beat out the Cubs in the National league pennant race. These same egotistical New Yorkers point to the return to form of Christy Mathewson as the main reason for this belief.

After one season of partial eclipse, Mathewson has appeared once more as a big factor in the settling of baseball championships by pitching for the Giants in his old-time form. The spotlight of sporting publicity has made a mark of Mathewson. He bathed in its effulgent rays two years ago until his name was a byword among American boys. Then he was hailed as the greatest pitcher of them all. Sickness held him low last season, but he appears to have recovered, and with this return of strength he is cutting another swath in the National league. He is New York's favorite once more, and upon him they build hopes of another world's championship.

In the games "Matty" has pitched this season, his showing has been enough to convince the New Yorkers that he will be a winner all season. With McGinlay in winning form, and Ames, Wiltse, Ferguson and Taylor doing so well, the pitching staff of the Giants seems to be as good as any in either league. It certainly looks as good as the Chicago squad, the most feared of those who wish to drag down the Giants.

Baseball is Christy Mathewson's business; checkers is his hobby. When the Giants are on the road the big fellow drags out his checkerboards and seeks victims. None of his teammates are able to put up a game that can baffle him, so he seeks out the local champions in cities where the Giants play. He will walk miles to meet a good checker player. Frequently he disappears from his hotel and at such times he may be found hunched over a checkerboard in some quiet place where checker players abound.

"Matty" was only a boy when he first came to New York. He was a big, lanky young fellow then, but he has filled out until now he is one of the biggest pitchers in the business. And none of his weight is superfluous, either. In his college days he was a tall, lanky fellow, much resembling his brother "Frank," who is schooling with the Giants these days. At Bucknell college "Matty" gained fame on the gridiron and the baseball diamond. He started as a professional ballplayer or down in Virginia and was sold to New York after a brief experience in the minors. His first stay in New York was very brief. He was shipped to Cincinnati, but later he was brought back in exchange for Amos Rusie.

Mathewson and Bowerman were about the only two real ball players on the New York team back in those days when the players had to be introduced to each other every morning and new managers were showing up
