RAISE IN PAY MAKES JOB MORE ATTRACTIVE

Will be Plenty of Applicants for Police Force.

Eligible List Now Exhausted but is Thought Salary Increase will Remedy Trouble.

John Berry was appointed, Wednesday evening, to the position of night patrolman uptown, to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Captain Worthington and the promotion of Patrolman Bond.

The eligible list has been exhausted and Berry was appointed only temporarily until after the next examination. Since the raise in salary it is very probable that there will be a large class of applicants at the next examination and it will undoubtedly be years before the eligible list is again exhausted at a time when an appointment is necessary.

IMMIGRANTS FILL TRAINS

Railroad Officials Find This Traffic too Heavy.

TO RUN SPECIAL TRAINS

Passengers Object to Riding With Foreigners.

Excursion Season on in Full Blast—Hocking Valley Plans One to Detroit July 21—Railroad Notes

Several hundred immigrants passed through the city Wednesday evening, enroute to Chicago. There has been some talk among railroad officials in regard to running special trains for the immigrants and many passengers have expressed disapproval because of the filth and general indecency which prevails among the foreigners as they travel.

If the number of immigrants increase and the protest of the people becomes more forceful, no doubt some action will have to be taken by the officials of all roads. Many people are being compelled to ride among the immigrants.

A RUDE REPUBLICAN.
A western congressman who goes abroad each year tells of the militant republicanism of an American he met in Brussels last summer. This man, it appears, was a merchant in a small town of Indiana. One morning they were out for a ride, and as they passed through the gates of a public park their equipage passed that of King Leopold, which was leaving the park. Following the custom, the congressman, as did every one else near by, except the merchant from Indiana, lifted his hat, whereupon the democratic Leopold also lifted his hat and bowed and smiled. The merchant sat bolt upright looking straight ahead.

"Know who that is?" asked the congressman of the merchant. "Yes; I recognized him from his picture. It's King Leopold." "Then why didn't you bow to him as I did?" The merchant from Indiana stiffened in his seat and squared his shoulders. "I don't bow to no kings," he said.—Philadelphia Record.

Colombia's Great Commerce River.
The port of Barranquilla, Colombia, has a population of 50,000, is 17 miles up the Magdalena river from the Atlantic coast, and owes its importance especially to being the terminus of navigation of the Magdalena, the great commercial artery of Colombia, a river which is navigable for over 600 miles, and carrying on its waters the bulk of the trade of the country. Five river companies have headquarters in Barranquilla, and they operate 36 steamboats and 43 barges, with a total tonnage of 10,688 tons. Steamboats leave port for the interior practically every day. The trip to Bogota, the capital, takes between 10 and 20 days, according to the condition of the river and weather. The return trip is made in between six and ten days.

PREACHER HAS HIS TROUBLES

Compelled to Talk While the Salvation Army Plays

HE FINISHES SERMON

Rival Religious Demonstrations Attract Large Crowd

Rev. McCall Preaches a Strange Doctrine—Believes Ministers Should Live Like Christ.

Rev. Mr. McCall, a pilgrim evangelist who believes that preachers of today should observe the scriptures to the letter, took his stand on the courthouse square Wednesday evening. His tall, slender frame was roughly clad and the flowing beard which fell from his solemn countenance gave him the appearance of a patriarch.

For probably fifteen minutes Rev. Mr. McCall had indulged in his tirade against the world in general and Marion in particular when the Salvation Army arrived with its outfit of drums, tanjos and lusty voiced singers.

All at once Rev. Mr. McCall found his voice mingled with the noise of the Salvation Army's voices and musical instruments. He hastened for a minute, wiped the sweat from his brow, and then proceeded to preach louder than before.

"I wish I had a voice to drown that old bass drum!" yelled the pilgrim preacher. Thereupon the Army lit into their instruments with renewed vigor. But McCall was undaunted and preached all the louder.

"God is in the life of man, not in a noise like that," yelled Rev. Mr. McCall. And the drum boomed with still more violence. "Two nights ago I came here to deliver a sermon and found another man preaching," cried the pilgrim. "Instead of stopping to disturb his services I went on my way."

"Biffy-bang-boom," went the base drum; but the voice of Rev. Mr. McCall could be plainly heard above the din.

"I would be ashamed to disturb a religious service with a noise like that," declared the itinerant preacher.

These two different modes of religious exhortation continued for more than an hour and created a noise that could be heard all over the business section of the city. A crowd of several hundred people gathered on the square during that time and enjoyed the rival demonstrations. Both McCall and the Army proved to have plenty of staying qualities and it would be pretty hard to tell which gave in first.

McCall is a remarkable character who has visited Marion several times during the past few years, preaching his strange doctrine. He is a man of natural eloquence and words flow readily from his lips. More than fifteen years ago he was converted while working in a Southern lumber camp. He preached at first to his fellow workmen and finally decided to give up everything to travel about the country spreading the gospel. Since that time, according to his own story, he has traveled 16,000 miles and has preached in every city of importance in the country.

McCall believes in a literal translation of the Bible. He thinks that all preachers should emulate Christ, and this he tries to do. He walks every place, never boarding a train, and takes with him neither money nor food. He never takes a collection and never asks for assistance. In case he is not offered shelter for a night, he sleeps under the blue sky, by the roadside or in the open field.

McCall is opposed to all church organizations.

"My Bible tells me nothing about following the Methodists, Baptists or Presbyterians," he says. "All I can find are instructions to repent of my sins and follow Christ."

"What's the use of joining a church?" declared McCall in his sermon on the street Wednesday night. "All you do is contribute a little more money to be applied on the preacher's salary."

"The Bible does not tell you to work all week and then go to a church and listen to the preacher's lies," declared the pilgrim. "They don't tell you the truth."

Marriage licenses were issued today to John Zachman and Tracy May Mason both of Marion; Marion Stevens, of Topeka Kansas and Miss Lesta Snyder; Edward W. Castleman and Miss Grace B. Jones both colored, and B. A. Davis and Della Ruth.
