LONG DISTANCE WIRES
Being Strung by United States Company.

Answer and Cross Petition is Filed in Suit of R. C. Dugan Against Russell Harmon.

Today was the time set for hearing the motion filed by the United States Telephone company, asking for a dissolution of the temporary injunction restraining it from cutting its wires running into the exchange of the Marion County Telephone company and thus shutting off long distance service. The motion was made in the case of the United States Telephone company against the Marion County Telephone company.

For various reasons it was impossible to hear the motion today and it was continued until November 30. In the meantime, it is stated, the United States Telephone company, is stringing long distance wires into Marion county from neighboring towns and cities, particularly from Mansfield. It is said that the poles of the Marion County company are being used for that purpose. The United States company, it is given out, plans to install an exchange here.

In the suit of Dr. R. C. Dugan against Russell Harmon, the defendant, through his attorneys, Mouser and Quigley, has filed an answer and cross petition. He denied all of the plaintiff's allegations and filed a counter claim for $16.50, claiming that the doctor owes him that amount for failure to effect a cure by using his osteopathic treatment.

Harmon admits that Dr. Dugan treated Mrs. Harmon but denies that the doctor's services were reasonably worth $66.05, the amount asked for in the petition. Harmon alleges that Dr. Dugan agreed to treat Mrs. Harmon a year at a cost of $16.50 a month. If there was no cure, the doctor was to receive no pay. Harmon says his wife was treated during the months of March, April and May, 1905, and was not cured. He paid the doctor $16.50 and he insists that this amount be returned.

WEEKLY LETTER FROM THE NATION'S CAPITAL

The Recent Panic Has Played Havoc with Financial Affairs—Nothing Else is Heard in Washington Political Circles and It is Feared Worst is Yet to Come.

(Special Correspondence.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 23.—In spite of the declaration of the last Republican National Convention that a Republican tariff has always been followed by business prosperity, and similar fallacious boasts of President Roosevelt in his letter of acceptance and speeches, an unfortunate panic is playing havoc in our financial affairs. Nothing else is being talked about in political circles. Secretary Cortright declares the worst of the storm is over, but the news from the West would indicate the worst may yet be to come. The closing of the chief Spring Wheat market of the country at Duluth, an dthe paralysis of the market in Chicago and elsewhere, in consequence of the lack of money, and the determination of the banks to husband their resources is anything but a cheerful prospect. The farmers will, of course, suffer, and wheat, cotton and other agricultural products have already fallen in price. Those farmers who are able to hold their crops until the panic subsides should by all means do so, for the demand from foreign countries will lead to higher prices for wheat and cotton next spring. If not before. This evidence, now produced, that the Republican policies of a high trust-protecting tariff, and of giving every advantage to the banks, have built up a bogus prosperity that at the first adverse wind is no more stable than the child's house of cards, is proof that Republican policies produce panic instead of being panic proof as brazenly boasted. With fifty per cent. more money per capita in circulation, and the supply constantly increasing, the banks are unable to pay their debts when called upon. The Republican policy of aiding the Wall Street banks with all the spare money in the Treasury, except a few millions to pay the current demand upon the government, is not only unfair, but grossly unfair to the more conservative bankers of the South and West who have to bear the burden of providing funds to move the staple crops. The only excuse for providing the funds to move the staple crops. The only excuse for President Roosevelt in carrying out this policy is that he has taken the advice of those mixed up in the Wall Street game, or has allowed his New York birth and training to lead him to the rescue of the frenzied financiers rather than ordering a "square deal" between all sections. This favoritism to the Wall Street interests is shown by his effusive thanks to Secretary Cortelyou, and the not hidden, though unnamed approval of Morgan and Rockefeller for putting in their millions to try and stem the panic. How little those financiers deserve the thanks of the Chief Magistrate of the country is at once seen from the fact that they demanded usurious rates for their money, which is said to have extended to 50 per cent. He can hardly be called a public benefactor who beharzes this less fortunate fellow citizens usury, under the most trying circumstances. The pretense that the Rockefeller millions were loaned at 6 per cent. can be easily shown to be a fable, as far as any large amount is concerned. If the effects of the panic could be confined to Wall Street, there would be but a few tears shed, but unfortunately all lines of business must now suffer in consequence of the unsettlement of financial affairs in New York and at all the large money centers. It is much to be feared that the banks at Western money centers are not so plentifully supplied with cash as the optimistic information given out would indicate, for the Secretary of the Treasury has received calls from nearly the principal cities of the country that it may be necessary to give them assistance. To that end he has called upon the disbursing agents of the government for $15,000,000 of the $72,000,000 now to their credit at the working balance in the United States Treasury. The official statement of the available cash balance in the Treasury at the close of business on October 29th, is given as $22,881,340. But these figures are very deceiving, for of that amount $215,529,538 has already been loaned to the banks and far from being an "available cash balance" it might as well be at the bottom of the sea as far as any immediate availability to the United States Treasury is concerned. To demand its return would cause nearly every bank that holds such deposits to close their doors. Another item is $5,064,571 on deposit in the Philippines, that is certainly not available; then there is given $3,232,659 of silver bullion, that cannot be used as money until coined; then there is $6,954,330 of subsidiary silver, and $1,551,578 of minor coin, neither of which items can be classed as available cash, for only $10 is legal tender. All these amounts added together makes $232,332,776. So that the United States Treasury instead of having an available balance, there is a deficiency of $7,451,436. That is the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of President Roosevelt, must have taken $7,451,436 from the trust funds in the Treasury, or from the "gold reserve" to deposit in the Wall Street banks in their great necessities. No wonder Secretary Cortelyou is at his wits end and is calling upon the government disbursing officers to return part of the money to their credit. But returning to the Treasury about $15,000,000 of such balance is robbing Peter to pay Paul, for it will take it out of the National Banks, which are government reserve depositories in the different large cities of the country either to pour it into the Wall Street favored banks or to deposit it with other favored banks who are in a tight place. The fact is, the Treasury is bankrupt, to all intents and purposes; and existing conditions are similar to those under which President Cleveland was obliged to issue bonds in 1894. The Republican party has had no question to contend with of the double standard. The high tariff taxation has resulted in a large surplus in the Treasury, instead of a deficiency, which President Cleveland had to contend with under the McKinley tariff law, and in consequence of the Supreme Court declaring the income tax section of the Wilson tariff law unconstitutional. The Republican leaders have deliberately turned over to the favored banks not only the surplus, but over seven millions more from some source. This panic has discouraged even the most optimistic Republicans as they feel that no Republican named as likely to be nominated can be elected, for all are committed to the same financial and tariff policy which has created the panic. In speaking of this a prominent Republican said to me today, "your party will gain two great advantages by the present depressing conditions. The party in power will be blamed for the breakdown of prosperity, and as it will force financial legislation to the front as an issue, it will eliminate Mr. Bryan as your candidate, because the business world has no confidence in him on financial affairs."

President Roosevelt found upon his return here from his bear hunt that a revolt against his policies needed his attention. A desperate internecine fight is impending in the ranks of the Republican leaders for control of the party organization. The Presidency and Congress is at stake. Legislation in the coming Congress depends upon the preliminary skirmish. The removal of the headquarters of the Republican Congressional Committee from New York to Washington is the first open step taken to notify President Roosevelt that his anticipated effort to dominate Congress at the coming session as he did at the last session will not be tolerated by the leaders. An evidently inspired article in the Washington Post outlines the plans of the reactionary Republican leaders, and states their ultimatum to the President and their threats to those Republican Congressmen who are inclined to take tips from the White House instead of from the Speaker. Briefly stated the main points set forth are:

The campaign for the election of Republican members of Congress is to be entirely distinct from the campaign for president, especially in collecting and disbursing campaign funds.

The status of those members of Congress who side with President Roosevelt for more radical legislation "will be taken account of by The Congressional Committee in its future dealing with these same members when they become candidates." Corporations and trusts "that prosper best when Republicans are in power and when Republican policies prevail" are notified they must contribute to the Congressional committee, and that any contributions they may make to the Republican National Committee will not count, when favorable legislation is asked for.

This announced policy of the Republican leaders to cut loose from the President is a political game for high stakes, and the Congressional players evidently don't intend to be short of cash if the fat can be fried out of the corporations. As President Roosevelt said in dealing with Harriman for campaign contributions, "we are practical men;" and these Congressional Republicans are equally practical in their ideas of raising a corruption fund.

It will be interesting to Democrats to notice how the Republican members of Congress will line up on these propositions. How many will adhere to the President's side and who will rally around Speaker Cannon and the other reactionary leaders. The Republican members of the Senate, of course, will be divided on similar lines, but perhaps fortunately for them they will not be compelled to show their hands until the Republicans of the House have exposed theirs.

There is one feature of this fight that may draw the Democrats into it, although on the general principles of letting the enemy fight it out and then whip the survivors, it were better to keep aloof from entangling alliances with either faction, but try to force the enactment of legislation necessary for the best interests of the whole country. President Roosevelt may seek allies in the Democratic camp who added to his own friends in Congress would compose a majority. But after the experience of the Democrats of the Senate when the Railroad rate bill was being manipulated, Democrats will be very wary of any overtures from President Roosevelt, for fear of again being left in the lurch and abused for their pains.

This puts the corporations between the upper and the nether millstone. It should result in any decent trust or corporation magnate deciding to refuse to be bled by either faction. If there are any honest trusts it may induce them to flee from such Republican plundering and to rely upon their constitutional rights and honest government for protection against the virtual confiscation of the assets by the two Republican factions which control different branches of the government.

The best play President Roosevelt can make against this revolt, would be to have his friends announce a rival candidate for Speaker against the arch conspirator Cannon, and let it be known that rather than see Cannon elected he would favor the election of John Sharp Williams, the Democratic leader as speaker. The Republican reactionary leaders would be helpless without the spoils of the House, and the President should be able to control the votes of enough Republican members, who, added to the Democrats, would make a majority. It would only require just 30 Republicans, tariff reformers and others to do the trick.

The above is so interesting and important that even Democratic powers must be subservient to it this week. Next week, however, there is reported by the Bryan Literary Bureau in this city that Mr. Bryan will in a few days make announcement of his future plans. Whether he will declare himself a candidate for the nomination for president, or decide that he does not consider himself the most available candidate is the supreme question.

ROBERT MILLER.
